"They have certainly not consulted the real Russia, the anti-Bolshevist Russia. Prince G. E. Lvov, the Prime Minister of the first Russian Revolutionary Government, who is the spokesman in Paris for the united anti-Bolshevist factions, repudiated the allied proposal for a meeting of representatives of all the Russian factions, including the Bolsheviki, on the Princes' Islands, as an insulting one. Basil Maklakov, the Russian Ambassador in Paris, and Serge Sazonoff, the representative of the Omsk and Yekaterinodar Governments, have endorsed Prince Lvov's statement.

"The anti-Bolshevist factions repudiate the allied proposal for three reasons: First, they do not want to meet the Bolsheviki at the table, considering them traitors to Russia and humanity, murderers of their own brothers, criminals who deal in or use drugs, and all hospitals and sanitoria in the State, the number aggregating 30,000.

"Second, they do not understand how the Allies find it possible to place them, the people of Russia who have sacrificed millions of their best youth for the allied cause, on an equal footing with the Bolsheviki who have betrayed Russia and the allied cause, illtreated the allied diplomatic representatives and citizens, and instituted such a terror that President Wilson considered it a duty in September, 1918, to ask all the civilized nations throughout the world to join in protest against the horrors of the Bolshevist régime; third, the anti-Bolshevist factions representing the Russian people consider it incompatible with the dignity of Russia to meet the allied representatives somewhere on the Princes' Islands. Russia is entitled to full representation in Paris.

Predicts a Free Russia.

"At this time Russia is passing through a period of utmost disorganization unavoidable during great revolutions. Every country that has passed from tyranny to free democratic development knows in her past conditions similar to the present Russian situation. Russia is not dead and not going to die, and the future will see her again great, free, and happy."

The action of the Peace Conference in inviting all factions in Russia to a parley at Princes' Island was indorsed yesterday by the Truth About Russia Committee, which was organized, according to a statement made public yesterday, "to inquire into the Russian situation on nonpartisan grounds, without prejudice or ulterior motives." The committee includes Jane Addams, Frank P. Walsh, Amos Pinchot, George P. West, Lincoln Colcord, Henry R. Mussey, Paul U. Kellogg, J. A. H. Hopkins, and Allan MacCurdy. The statement asserted that Lenine is a man with whom the Allies can deal, for he has always advocated the policy of compromise, and has been prepared to conciliate the western powers by redeeming Russian loans."

Butler Assails Bolshevism.

In a severe arraignment of the present Government in Russia, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, speaking yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the United Waist League of America, at the McAlpin Hotel, told the 300 waist manufacturers, bankers, and jobbers present that Bolshevism bears precisely the same relation to democracy that chaos does to order. Each, he said, is the antithesis of the other. M. Mosessohn, Executive Director of the league, in introducing Dr. Butler, suggested that some day he would leave his present position to accept a higher Presidency—that of the United States. Dr. Butler thanked the Chairman for the suggestion, but said he was not going to forsake his means of livelihood at a time when jobs were so hard to find.

"A great people," continued the speaker, "which had just thrown off the yoke of imperial autocracy, lies prostrate before a still more powerful tyrant. Russia has exchanged an autocracy, which at least had the attributes of dignity and distinction, for one whose chief characteristic is appetite. Bolshevism is at war with civilization, and in particular with democratic civilization. It is now the chief enemy of democracy left in the world. It teaches dominance and control by a group or a class. It proscribes capacity, training, thrift, and service, and it denies any such thing as citizenship with its equality of opportunity and its equality before the law."

In conclusion, Dr. Butler said that despite a few American "parlor, editorial, and academic Bolsheviki," the heart of the American people was sound and its head clear, and that the public here could distinguish between orderly reform and violent revolution.

ASK TO JOIN SWITZERLAND.

Sixty Per Cent. of Populations of Tyrol and Voralberg for Union.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 27.—A plebiscite in the former Austrian districts of Voralberg and Tyrol, which adjoin Switzerland on the east, shows that 60 per cent. of the citizens favor a union with Switzerland.

It is understood, however, that the Swiss Confederation is not anxious to add another canton, especially Austrian, and it is likely to refuse the request.

To be China's Financial Adviser.

TOKIO, Jan. 24, (Associated Press.)—Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, who was recently appointed financial adviser to China, has accepted that post. He will proceed to Peking soon.

WARNS INCOME TAXPAYERS.

Collector Eisner Says So-Called Tax Experts May Cause Trouble.

Collector Mark Eisner of the Third District issued a statement yesterday warning income taxpayers to be cautious about taking the advice of so-called tax experts unless they were men of repute and responsibility. The Collector asserted that the taxpayer was risking his reputation and taking a chance of prosecution if he misrepresented his income, whether on the advice of experts or not.

The most dangerous class of advisers on the income tax, the Collector asserted, are those who offer to revise the return of a taxpayer for a compensation based on the precentage of tax which is saved by his suggestions. Mr. Eisner said that some of the circulars which had come into his possession would indicate that certain corporations offering advice on this subject were in reality soliciting law practice. Cases of this type, he said, would be turned over to the Bar Association. Mr. Eisner made public the following statement from the Treasury Department:

"The Bureau is arranging to furnish for the 1919 income taxpayers in every city and town in the country a free advisory service by trained collectors, agents, inspectors, and deputies. At the offices of collectors and their deputies, and at other central points, information and advice with respect to filling returns under the new Revenue bill may be had up to the final date for filing such returns."

British to Show Their Industries.

The British Industries Fair of 1919 will be held in London in the Pennington Street premises of the London Dock from Feb. 24 to March 7, 1919, it was announced by the British Consul General in this city yesterday. About 600 British manufacturers will exhibit china and earthenware, glassware of all descriptions, papers, stationery and sundries, printing, fancy goods and traveling requisites, toys, and sporting goods. The British Department of Overseas Trade will have offices at the fair.

Army Nominations Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — Nominations of Robert L. Bullard, now holding the temporary rank of Lieutenant General, to be a Major General in the regular army establishment, and of eight officers now temporarily Major Generals to be permanent Brigadier Generals, were confirmed today by the Senate. The new Brigadiers are George W. Read, Charles H. Muir, Charles T. Menoher, J. W. McAndrew, William G. Haan, James G. Harbord, John L. Hines, and Charles P. Summerall.

King of Serbia Seriously Ill.

TO ENFORCE NARCOTIC LAW.

Deputies Confer at Albany on Plans to Curb Violations.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Plans to enforce the law concerning the sale of narcotics have been formulated at a conference of Deputies of the Department of Narcotic Drug Control. The department intends to have its representatives visit every person or institution authorized to possess, dispense, or prescribe habit-forming drugs to ascertain if their records comply with the law, and, in case of violation, to take steps to have the offenders punished.

While the establishment of three branch offices in different parts of the State was provided by the legislation creating the drug commission, it has been decided advisable, for the present, to conduct the business from the office at Albany where all reports will be filed. To facilitate the work of the department the State has been divided into three districts—Metropolitan, Albany, and Western. First Deputy George H. Whitney and Third Deputy Rita A. Yawger, have been assigned to the Metropolitan District, Second Deputy Addison T. Halstead to the Western, and Commissioner Richardson to the Albany District.

Blanks with a letter of instruction and a copy of the law pertaining to habit-forming drugs have been sent to physicians, druggists, dentists, veterinarians, and wholesale and manufacturers who deal in or use drugs, and all hospitals and sanitoria in the State, the number aggregating 30,000.

ENVOY SURE SOVIET WILL AGREE TO CONFER

Vovosky Says Bolsheviki Do Not Fear Intervention If Negotiations Fail.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 25.—M. Vorovsky, the Bolshevist Ambassador here, informed me today that the Soviet Government would not refuse an armistice in European Russia and Siberia.

He was certain that Moscow would accept the negotiations proposed now by the Allies, but was not so sure that the anti-Bolshevist Governments would agree to negotiate. Whether the negotiations had any result depended, he said, on others than the Bolshevist representatives. These, however, would not be authorized to confirm the present situation in Russia as the ordinary peace arrangement.

Vorovsky said that the Soviet Government would not resist at any cost the formation of separate States within Russia.

"We are, for example," he said, "disposed to recognize the Siberian Government, but only if it represents the will of the whole people."

With regard to Bolshevist operations in the Baltic, Voroveky tried to maintain that there were no Soviet troops on that front. As against this, prisoners taken by Finlanders in Esthonia belong to Soviet commands.

"The Allies' proposal came very unexpectedly," said Vorovsky. "We knew there would be no intervention, and we are not afraid of intervention in the event of the negotiations failing. The soldiers in the allied countries are tired of war, and the general opinion in the United States and Great Britain and even in France, is against intervention."

"But this opinion may change," I remarked, "if it is shown that the Bolsheviki do not want peace."

"We do want it," said Vorovsky, "only the Allies do not put acceptable terms."

The choice of the Princes' Islands as the seat of negotiations, Vorovsky regarded as ludicrous, in view of the absence of telegraphic and other communications there. The negotiations ought to be held in Stockholm, Copenhagen, or somewhere in Holland, he said.

"But perhaps," he added, "they feared that the three representatives of the Soviet would use the opportunity of starting a revolution."

ALTERNATIVE RUSSIAN PLAN.

Wilson and Lloyd George Said to Agree on It.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The allied and associated powers are not relying solely on the success of the proposal for a conference of the Russian factions for a solution of the Russian problem.

According to the Echo de Paris, President Wilson took into consideration in making his proposal to the conference the possibility that the Bolsheviki would refuse to cease their hostile attitude and made the cessation of hostilities an essential condition for the holding of the Mermorx conference.

Other proposals relating to the Russian question have, therefore, the newspaper states, been put forward by him in accord with Premier Lloyd George.

HAS HOPES FOR LABOR IN PEACE CONFERENCE

Branting Doesn't Expect Standardized Wages — Condemns Overtures to Bolsheviki.

BERNE, Jan. 26.—A tone of carefully modulated optimism as to expectations of the results to be attained by the International Labor and Socialist Conference now assembling here marked the views expressed today by Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, on his arrival to attend the gathering.

M. Branting mentioned the visit paid to Paris by Arthur Henderson, the British Labor leader, and his conference with Arthur J. Balfour as an indication that the Peace Conference intended to attach weight to the demands and desires of labor. He hoped, he said, that the conference would find a way to establish, perhaps, a minimum of living standards for workingmen, although he recognized the fact that it was impossible to standardize wages, since the buying power of money and prices for commodities varied so largely in the different countries. Thus, he added, it was utterly out of the question for the European laborer to achieve the American wage scale because the cost of living, theoretically at least, was not on a par with the American.

The Swedish Socialist leader expressed wholehearted indorsement of President Wilson's ideas regarding the making of the peace, although some of his remarks appeared to indicate that he was somewhat skeptical as to the complete triumph of these ideas.

Although he was known throughout the war as an anti-German, M. Branting expressed the hope that the Entente would supply the former empire with food and raw materials as soon as possible, because these were absolutely essential to the well being of all workingmen. He was extremely pessimistic as to the German workingmen's future, however, saying that the situation in Germany was extremely critical despite the Spartacan defeat, and he feared for the results unless relief came quickly.

There still existed in Germany, M. Branting said, a strong and vigorous reactionary party which had not learned its lesson from the victory of the Allies, and which must be offset by a coalition of the Majority Socialists with the Liberals on the one hand and the conservative Minority Socialists on the other, if Germany was not to revert to her old status.

Bolshevism was referred to by M. Branting in terms of sarcastic condemnation, although he said he spoke with full realization of its dangerous possibilities. He gave as one of his reasons for believing that Germany should be fed and supplied with raw materials that such action would make industry possible and prevent Bolshevism spreading across German territory and placing France, Belgium, Italy, and England in danger of contagion.

M. Branting quite obviously does not look with favor upon the decision of the peace conference to make an opportunity for conferring with the Bolsheviki, whose régime he styled an autocracy quite as distinctly dangerous as that of the former Prussian clique; but he shrugged his shoulders resignedly and said the Allies would see they had made a mistake.

Referring to the American delegates who had failed to get passports for the conference, Mr. Branting criticised the United States Government for its attitude in this respect, but said he understood the wide difference between the American Socialist and the European Social Democrat. He said he believed that there had been a conflict between Samuel Gompers and the leaders of the Berne Conference, but he hoped the Americans would attend the Trades Union Conference, which would probably be held in France simultaneously with the Berne congress.

GENEVA, Jan. 27.—The Swiss authorities have issued stringent regulations regarding the entrance into Switzerland of Socialist delegates to the conference at Berne. Among others, admission has been refused to Friedrich Adler, the Austrian who killed Count Stuergkh, the Austrian Premier, although his passport had been vised.

REDS GET SHENKURSK AND ALLIES' SUPPLIES

200 Bolsheviki and driven back fifteen miles.

With the flanks on the east and west threatened, the allied positions at Ust Padenga, which were rapidly becoming untenable owing to the Bolshevist bombardment, became exposed to attacks on both flanks and the Americans and Russians were ordered to withdraw to Sheiosha, fifteen miles south of Shenkursk. This withdrawal was carried out without loss except for several small guns which were abandoned in the snow. The temperature in the last few days has been as low as 20 and 30 degrees below zero.

Want Allied Reinforcements.

The Government officials, particularly in the military branch, are more worried over the present problem of the fate of the American and other forces in the Shenkursk sector than they are interested in the Marmora conference proposal.

Regardless of the possibility of an armistice, the military leaders here consider it absolutely necessary that more troops be sent at once to North Russia, if for no other reason than to protect the allied forces already there from the constantly growing number of Bolsheviki, who have three or four guns to the Allies' one and have yet a great supply inland to draw upon, while the Allies are only meagrely equipped with artillery.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Allied forces on the front south of Archangel, mainly American and Russian troops, have evacuated the town of Shenkursk under Bolshevist pressure and withdrawn to a shorter line north of the town, according to an official statement from the British War Office today on operations in northern Russia.

The Americans and Russians had withdrawn to Shenkursk on Jan. 22 being outflanked by the Bolsheviki, who attacked them on Jan. 22-23 after a bombardment of three days. The official statement reads:

The Bolsheviki have continued their pressure against the Shenkursk front. On Jan. 22 and 23 they launched considerable forces in an attack after having bombarded the positions for three days. Our forces, consisting principally of American and Russian troops, were first withdrawn to the defenses of Shenkursk to avoid being outflanked by superior numbers. Later the town and its defenses were evacuated successfully and a shorter line taken up further to the north.

A Russian Government wireless message received here gives military reports dated Jan. 23 and 24, according to which there has been considerable fighting on the various Russian fronts.

The Red forces have occupied a series of villages about fifteen miles west of Shenkursk and captured, after stubborn fighting, positions at Padenskaya, station, about eighty-five miles south of Shenkursk.

"In the direction of Uryev," the message says, "Red detachments, under pressure of the enemy, retired five versts (three and one-third miles) to the line of Hellernon-Lapenkule, thirty versts southwest of Uryev.

"In the Ufa direction a battle is progressing for the possession of Archangelskoi. Our army and the Turkestan Soviet army have united at Orenburg, where we captured many locomotives, 6,000 wagons, and a huge quantity of military material."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — Senator Johnson of California announced today that he would call up and discuss in the Senate Wednesday his resolution calling on this Government to withdraw American troops from Russia. The resolution is now pending before the Foreign Relations Committee, which plans to act Wednesday prior to the convening of the Senate.

FRANCO-RUMANIAN TROOPS REACH KIEV

PARIS, Jan. 27, (Havas.)—A dispatch received here from Vienna says Franco-Rumanian troops have entered Kiev, capital of Ukraine.

The first announcement made of the Franco-Rumanian force which has now reached Kiev was on Dec. 31, when a dispatch from Bucharest stated that it was in Bessarabia on the way to Kiev. A fortnight later it reached Skiva, 100 miles south of the Ukraine capital, and was there informed by the Ukraine National Committee that its services would not be required, as the Government had the situation well in hand and the Bolsheviki "amounted to nothing." Since then, on two occasions, Kiev has been reported to be in possession of the Bolsheviki.

The allied force is under the command of General Berthelot, who with the French formed the left of the attacking line in Macedonia in September, crossed the Danube and reached Bucharest by the middle of October. In November the Franco-Rumanian expeditionary force was mobilized at Jassy and at once penetrated Bessarabia.

BRITISH IN BAKU ADVANCE.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 27. — British forces, according to a report received here from Berlin today, have advanced from Baku and occupied the Trans-Caucasian railway.

The report adds that the British also have occupied Petrovsk and Astrakhan, at the mouth of the Volga River.

EX-KAISER AT SIXTY GETS MANY FLOWERS

BERLIN PRESS IGNORES HIM

Outcry Against Concert Causes Plan to be Dropped—Ex-Ruler May Leave Amerongen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26, (via Copenhagen.)—The Berlin newspapers do not mention the ex-Kaiser's sixtieth birthday tomorrow.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed that reactionaries circulated an address to the ex-Kaiser for signature, which was forwarded a few days ago.

AMERONGEN, Jan. 26, (Associated Press.)—William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor, will awake on his sixtieth birthday tomorrow to find his apartments in Amerongen Castle a bower of flowers sent by many German admirers in Germany and Holland. Since Friday bouquets have been arriving in great quantities from schoolgirls and former supporters in Germany.

At the same time every mail brings piles of letters and telegrams, most of which are of a congratulatory nature. However, there are dozens of caricatures and letters of abuse.

The letters undergo a double censorship. First the Dutch authorities look over them to prevent intrigues. In the second instance a servant of the former Emperor inspects the letters and permits only those communications which he considers will please him to reach the royal exile.

Proposed Concert Abandoned.

Much adverse comment has been heard in Holland regarding the proposed concert which was to have been given Saturday in the castle in the presence of the former Emperor by the Amerongen church choir. It is reported that the concert would be held in honor of the former Emperor's birthday.

The exact facts are as follows: The choir gave a concert in the village church shortly after Christmas which was attended by several members of the former Emperor's suite. Under the patronage of the young Countess von Bentinck, the choir was invited to sing at the castle Saturday evening, the former Emperor knowing nothing about the arrangement. The program, contrary to assertions in the press, was to contain Dutch folk songs, the Dutch national anthem, and psalms and hymns.

The outcry was so great that the concert was abandoned. The former Emperor still knows nothing about it.

The veil which up to this time has hidden William Hohenzollern's daily life from the public has been lifted slightly and shows that he employs his day in the humdrum fashion usual among country gentlemen who do not frequent society.

He rises about 8 o'clock and follows an ordinary routine. His bath, however, is followed by a thorough massage, to which he has been accustomed since his university days. After his bath he has an extremely simple breakfast, sometimes in his own rooms and sometimes with the Bentinck family.

After breakfast he receives reports from the chief of the servants, who lays before him clippings from various newspapers, severely censored, and what remains of the censored mail. A walk in the garden comes next and, in fine weather, wood sawing for the castle fires. Another bath is taken before lunch, which is also a frugal meal.

Writes in the Afternoon.

After lunch the former ruler occasionally takes a short nap, after which he gives himself to writing or dictating to his private secretary, a former officer. Tea is served in the English style at 5 o'clock, and then the exile reads until dinner, at 8 o'clock, after which there is frequently music in the parlor until bedtime.

The former Emperor never wears uniforms nowadays, although many uniforms, including those of all the German guard regiments and several General's outfits were brought across the frontier when he left Germany. He wears civilian clothes made by the local tailor at Zeist.

Those who have not noted the gradual change in his appearance scarcely recognize the elderly civilian with the short, whitish Van Dyke beard and somewhat thinned gray hair, which, however, is still in good condition considering his age.

Enormous quantities of baggage were brought across the frontier when the former Emperor fled, but many of the trunks are still unopened. Little use is made of the silver dinner set for twenty-five covers which was also brought along.

The former Emperor, it is said, is beginning to realize the change in his position with the departure for Germany of many attendants who had been with him for long periods, and to whose presence he had become accustomed.

Bentinck Doubts ex-Ruler Will Go.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 25.—Count von Bentinck, speaking to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent at Amerongen, said that he could not confirm the statement in The London Daily Mail that the ex-Kaiser would soon be obliged, to leave Holland. He did not believe the statement to be true.

The Socialist member Duys's questions in the Dutch Parliament concerning honors to the ex-Kaiser in Holland have doubtless scared the authorities into avoiding the committing of Holland still further in the matter.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—William Hohenzollern has grown very surly and rarely speaks a word to his own servants and guards, according to the Mail's correspondent at Amerongen.

His last recorded remark was made a few days ago, when he said that his time at Amerongen was nearly up," it is stated. His wife, on the other hand, maintains a cheerful disposition and shows an interest in the welfare of the people living near the castle.

The correspondent says:

"The former Emperor is being gradually deserted by every one. He receives practically no visitors."

Buenos Aires German Schools Close.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 27.—Commenting on the birthday of the former German Emperor, one of the afternoon papers here says:

"Though it is impossible to find any one in Europe to celebrate the Kaiser's birthday, there are many here who did. Even the German schools were closed, teaching the children homage to the author of the Lusitania crime. Why must Buenos Aires have this blot upon it?"

POLES CALL FOR DEFENSE.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—According to a Warsaw dispatch received here today by the National Polish Committee, a great meeting has been held in the hall of the Warsaw Philharmonic Society to discuss the question of the defense of the Polish border lands.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the Polish Premier, was present, as also were American representatives and British and Italian delegates. The Rev. Mr. Ielick, speaking on behalf of the Poles of the United States, conveyed their wishes for the complete success of the Polish cause. He added that the Poles in America had collected 10,000,000 marks for the relief of Poland.

NORTHCLIFFE TO SHIFT NEWSPAPER BURDENS?

Resigns Chairmanship of Associated Newspapers—Seeking Health in Southern France.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Lord Northcliffe, according to The Sunday Evening Telegram, has resigned the Chairmanship of the Associated Newspapers, Limited, the company which publishes The Daily Mail, The Evening News, and The Weekly Dispatch, and is to be succeeded by Thomas Marlowe, editor of The Daily Mail. Lord Northcliffe is in the south of France for the benefit of his health, and in answer to inquiries at The Daily Mail office, the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES was told that no information could be given on the business matters of the concern. Stress was laid upon the word "business," and it is the general opinion in Fleet Street that the change, if it occurs, will have to do with only the business management of the company.

Lord Northcliffe has suffered from recurrent throat trouble for some time, and has been obliged to leave London every now and then for the country or the seashore. When he went to France, Jan. 7, The Daily Mail announced: "His doctors think it will be necessary for him to remain there some months. No correspondence can be forwarded."

It is not believed that Lord Northcliffe, when he returns, will relinquish the active management of the editorial policy of his newspapers. In spite of the large amount of time he has given during the war to public affairs, he was in very close touch with his papers until his departure for France, and it is assumed that, even if he gives up the routine work connected with the business side of his publications, he will still be as prominent a journalistic figure as ever.

PRUSSIAN VOTING ORDERLY.

Women Electioneer in Berlin—Ex-Crown Princess Votes Again.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26, (via Copenhagen.)—Cold and snow did not prevent patriotic citizens of both sexes in Berlin from forming long queues at the polling places today to cast their votes for delegates to the Prussian State Convention. In the early afternoon these queues dwindled considerably, leaving the impression that the vote did not equal last Sunday's.

Doubtless the Socialists, with their practical working organization, polled a full vote, while the three People's Parties lagged considerably behind, despite the strenuous efforts of their electioneering agents, among whom were many women blowing their hands and stamping their feet while trying to explain the merits of their respective parties to more or less patient voters undergoing similar bodily exercise.

At one polling place there were sixteen nuns, who after a while received precedence with the consent of the rest of the waiting voters. Last Sunday there had been twenty-two from the same convent. The harsh weather, it was explained, had prevented the sickly ones from exercising the franchise this time.

Soldiers in steel helmets guarded only a few polling places on the north side, where the Spartacide element is still predominant. At all other polling places only policemen were on duty.

Police President Richter stated that there had been no trouble anywhere up to 2 P. M., when this dispatch is sent.

It is reported from Potsdam that the ex-Crown Princess appeared at a polling place early in the morning, as on last Sunday, and the waiting voters were asked by a gentleman in civilian clothes if they would grant her precedence, which was given, nobody dissenting. Prince Eitel Fritz also voted early, waiting his turn like other voters.

The Democrats toward noon formed processions, which, with bands playing, and singing patriotic songs, marched to the polling places, encouraging the waiting voters.

The Lokal-Anzeiger, reviewing the national and State campaigns, quotes the following from William T. Stead's "Americanization of the World" about Berlin and Hamburg:

"These two cities are American in their rapid development, American in nervous energy, American in their systems of rapid transit, and, despite the difference in language, Americans feel more at home there than in sedate London or Liverpool." The Lokal-Anzeiger continues:

"There are two kinds of Americanism, one involving great elements of untiring enterprise, manifested in never-ceasing labor, construction and extension. The other may be epitomized as Barnumism, expressing itself in a popular tom-tom of shrill noises and loud colors. Unfortunately we have had more of the latter lately than the former."

FINDS GERMAN ILLUSIONS.

French General Says People Misinterpret American Feeling.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—A French General who has just arrived from Berlin, describing conditions in the German capital in Le Matin, says:

"The German people, believing the war is over, think that their bad times are at an end. They believe that the German army was not beaten, and that, therefore, no war indemnity will be exacted.

"They labor under illusions regarding the feelings of the American people, especially President Wilson. I have seen processions passing the Adlon Hotel cheering the General in command of the American mission in Berlin."

LAMENTS D'ANNUNZIO TALK.

Paris Matin Regrets His Charge of French Support of Jugoslavs.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—"Poets at times are forgetful," is the heading given in Le Matin today to a paragraph expressing regret that Gabriele d'Annunzio, once so freely fêted by Paris, has written an article for an Italian journal in which he accuses France of working hand-in-hand with the Jugoslavs against Italy.

The poet, Le Matin says, has raked history to find arguments to stir up Italy against France, going back to the carrying off of the bronze horses from St. Mark's in Venice by Napoleon.

"D'Annunzio," adds the newspaper, "recently declared he would write no more romances, but he has written one more, which this nation will read and forgive, remembering the poet's previous tributes to France and the splendid rôle he played in inducing Italy to enter the war."

He Says It Should Be Made a Small Republic, Supervised by the Powers.

Making Constantinople a free city and the dismemberment of Turkey are the keys to the solution of the Turkish problem, said F. Demetrius Kalopothakis of the staff of the American Legation at Athens, in an address yesterday on the Balkan situation before the Women's National Committee of the American Defense Society. Mr. Kalopothakis is on leave from his duties in Greece for his health. He said it was easy to urge the dismemberment of Turkey, but it presented great difficulties. He pointed out that, in spite of the crimes of Turkey, she must be treated justly if a lasting peace were desired.

"Reform is out of the question," he continued. "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear or a civilized government of uncivilized people. There is not a man in Turkey who has the confidence of the people sufficiently to form a Cabinet. The Turkish intellectuals have been the worst of the lot, for they have proved by their actions more sinister and machiavellian than the old Turks. Under the Young Turks massacres were systematized to the last degree."

He said that every Turkish province has a Greek minority, and that to apply self-determination to each province separately would mean a return to the old Turkish misrule of the minority peoples of Turkey.

"Asia Minor has 10,000,000 people, of whom 2,000,000 are Greeks," he continued. "The only way to do justice to the Greeks is the proportionate dismemberment of Asia Minor. If the proportion of Greeks to Turks is 2 to 7, give the Greeks two-ninths of the land and the Turks seven-ninths. But cut it off. Make it separate, so that each nation will have its due share.

"How shall we divide Asia Minor? Constantinople is too important to let one nation have it. It ought to be made a small free State, governed by its citizens under a republican form of government, supervised by the powers. Its hinterland might be composed of the four surrounding provinces, including a population altogether of a million and a half. Under the powers, Constantinople would have a great future. Greece claims Thrace, but if it is thought that Constantinople is too small for a free State Greece is willing to stand back from Thrace in order to allow Constantinople to have it."

The claims of Greece at the peace table embrace northern Epirus, the Dodecanese, Thrace and parts of Asia Minor, according to Mr. Kalopothakis. Italy, he said, has proclaimed of its own accord a protectorate over Albania, desiring to make the Adriatic an Italian lake. He asserted that the population of northern Epirus is Greek in sympathy and desire and not Italian. The claims of Italy in Epirus he called futile and maintained that Italy had deported to an island off Sicily 200 of the most prominent men of Epirus, and had released them but recently on the urgent remonstrance of the Greeks.

"The people on the twelve islands of the Dodecanese have always been Greek. They have always managed their own affairs, although paying a small tribute to the Turks. But no Turkish troops were ever sent to the islands. In her war against Turkey in 1912 Italy seized the islands. The population welcomed the Italians as fellow Christians, but it soon became evident that Italy was interested in remaining there."

As a result of the Italian persecution of the population of 125,000 in the islands, 112,000 of whom were Greeks, he said, the Greek population has dwindled to 45,000. Of the refugees, 5,000 are living on the dole of the Greek Government, said Mr. Kalopothakis, while many moved to the United States and 10,000 died from lack of food. "These deaths were caused by the absolute refusal of Italy to allow the rich Dudecanesians in France and Egypt to send remittance and food to their relatives, so that all communication with the outside world was cut off."

Mr. Kalopothakis predicted that if Italy defeated the just claims of the Greeks and the Italians always did so, sowing a plentiful harvest of hatred to be reaped in the future. "If the Balkan league is formed after peace is signed it will mean something to Italy to be opposed by a confederacy of from 30,000,000 to 40,000,000," said the speaker. "Italy will then be confronted by a serious enemy. I do not think war will come, but there may be an economic boycott which will prove unpleasant to Italy."

Regarding Greek claims in Thrace, Mr. Kalopothakis announced that Premier Venizelos was prepared to place all Greek ports at the disposal of the other Balkan States whenever they required them. This was in answer to the accusation of the Bulgarians that the Greeks desired to take away from them their Thracian outlet to the Mediterranean.

RESENTED FOCH'S DISTRUST

Winterfeldt Objected to Extension of Strasbourg Bridgehead.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 27.—General von Winterfeldt in announcing his resignation from the Armistice Commission, according to an official German announcement, said that Marshal Foch's demand for an extension of the bridgehead six miles east of Strasbourg constituted distrust of the commission's labors.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Accounts received here say the resignation of General D. von Winterfeldt as a member of the Armistice Commission was handed in because, the General said, his dignity and that of his country had been offended. The Paris newspapers characterize the resignation as part of a plan for a reactionary campaign. They say that the German wireless service gives an "extremely insidious" account of the incident, indicating that the Berlin Government feels itself strengthened since the election and the crushing of the Spartacides and again feels free to use haughty language.

The approval of General Winterfeldt's action expressed by the Berlin press is indicated as another symptom of the revival of the German imperialistic spirit. This may be found in some degree in everything coming out of Germany, the Paris newspapers contend. They refer to the recent declaration of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Secretary, similar in tone to that of Winterfeldt. Germany, it is added, is endeavoring to emphasize the slightest sign of discord amon the Allies, for instance as regards the League of Nations, and attempts to represent President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau as opposing each other.

All the newspapers hold that the Allies will have to watch closely the efforts of conquered Germany to rise again, one declaring: "The recently humble are again ready to become arrogant."

The Echo de Paris says that the German Government does not intend to take part at the Peace Conference as a conquered nation, but as a veritable power, and that it is with this purpose that the German Government, realising itself strongly supported at home, is preparing itself for representation at the Paris conference.

PORTUGUESE ROYALISTS HOLD TWO PROVINCES

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Portuguese Royalists are completely in control of the Provinces of Minho and Tras Os Montes, (in northern Portugal,) according to a wireless dispatch from Madrid to the Journal des Débats. Advices to the same newspaper say that it is reported the Republican troops which were defeated by the Monarchists at Coimbra are about to go over to the cause of the monarchy.

LISBON, Jan. 26.—The Government is assembling large bodies of troops to put down the Royalist rebellion at Oporto, says an official statement issued today in which the Republican victory over the rebellious Lisbon troops at Monsanto Hill, near the capital, is described. The statement says:

A certain number of units belonging to the Lisbon garrison declared in favor of the Oporto Royalist rebels on Jan. 23. They left their barracks and took up positions in the mountains of Monsanto above Lisbon. Their forces were composed of one regiment of cavalry and three batteries of field artillery.

The Government immediately ordered faithful troops to surround the position and opened lists for the enrollment of civilian battalions under the command of army officers. In a few hours more than 9,000 enrolled. The rebels were surrounded and promptly defeated. Their guns were captured and what remained of their cavalry fled in disorder, closely pursued by the Republican troops.

The news of the victory aroused great enthusiasm in Lisbon, Ayres de Ornelles, the chief official representative of King Manuel, was with the rebel troops. (A Lisbon dispatch yesterday reported that Ornellas had been killed in the Monsanto Hill fighting.)

DISPERSING BRITISH FLEET.

Archibald Hurd, Naval Critic, Urges Cruises to Distant Dominions.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The British Grand Fleet is being dispersed. Admiral Sir David Beatty, its commander, made this announcement Saturday on receiving the freedom of the City of Edinburgh.

Archibald Hurd, the naval critic, in an article discussing the effects of the dispersal of the Grand Fleet, says that a considerable portion must be placed on a peace footing at once under the "nucleus crew system." He says that with the removal of the "target" in northern waters a strong force must be retained in the Channel and an adequate one in the Mediterranean; the navy must also be employed in a large measure in the distant seas.

The British flag, Mr. Hurd says, must again be seen flying from warships in Canadian waters, the Pacific, Chinese waters, the Indian Ocean, and the Persian Gulf. Whatever the Admiralty's plans may be, he adds, they must fit in with those of the Dominions, which certainly desire to bear a larger share in the naval defense of the empire.

Opportunity is now offered, the article says, for creating something in the nature of an imperial naval force. Mr. Hurd suggests an imperial squadron of vessels of the type of the Queen-Elizabeth for oceangoing work, with each section of the empire contributing officers, men, and vessels to reinforce this squadron. The Dominions would provide local mobile defense forces.

OUR OCCUPATION QUOTA SET

War Council's Decisions Won't Affect Plans for Troops' Return.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The committee appointed by the Supreme Council to consider how many allied and American troops shall be kept on the western front held a meeting today and received reports from experts concerning the situation on the Rhine and in Germany.

Progress, it is reported, was made in clearing up the situation, but much remains to be done before the committee is in a position to make a final recommendation to the Supreme Council concerning the number of soldiers of each nationality required for garrison purposes in Germany and the maintenance of the frontier against any possible contingency.

The determination of the American War Department to return the American troops now in Europe to their homes will not be affected by any decisions reached by the committee. There will be no departure from the plan arranged for the return of troops, allowance having been made in advance for the retention in Germany and Russia of all American soldiers regarded as forming a fair quota for the United States.

34 MURDERS LAID TO OUR MEN IN PARIS

Matin Also Charges Soldiers with Committing Numerous Assaults in December.

MANY DESERTERS SEIZED

Washington Thinks Reports Are Exaggerated—Baker Has Had None from Pershing.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Thirty-four murders, 220 day and night assaults, and nearly 500 serious fights due to American soldiers occurred in the Department of the Seine during the month of December, says the Matin today, reverting to the subject of the reorganization of the American police in Paris. The reinforcement of the police contingent had been demanded by Brig. Gen. William W. Harts, the newspaper asserts, and with the new organization effected police operations have been carried out on a wholesale scale, especially in the Montmarte section, resulting in the arrest of many American deserters.

The American police in Paris had previously been chiefly recruited, the Matin points out, among American officers and men who had been wounded. Their main duty was to give information to American soldiers in the streets and to regulate trifling offenses and carry out night patrols. The majority of the members of this force, however, were not capable of dealing with serious crimes, adds the newspaper, which cites the December statistics as proving the inefficiency of such policing.

Another of the Paris newspapers, the Intransigeant, welcomes the reinforcement of the American police service in days when, it says, attacks by armed men were becoming overcommon and jewelry stores were being robbed in full daylight in the main streets. "For it must be said," says the Intransigeant, "and our friends of the United States deplore the fact like ourselves, that the audacity of some of their 'bad lot' has grown marvelously since the armistice."

The Intransigeant adds that the bar of Maxim's has been closed to officers, American, French and others, because, according to the Prefecture of Police, of violations against the liquor-selling regulations and not "owing to widely rumored incidents." These rumors, the newspaper adds, were to the effect that a fight occurred in the bar, in which American officers took part, some of the reports having it that one of the participants was killed, another that a French officer had been killed, while still another version was that two Americans had been killed.

The recent theft of an automobile, added to a long list of such thefts, is attributed by the Intransigeant to two Americans who are making a specialty of this kind of crime, driving an automobile of their own and taking in tow any car whose owner has left it alone with the ignition cut out, the gasoline tank closed, and the magneto isolated.

Amazed by Reports from Paris.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Official information will be sought by the War Department concerning reports in Paris newspapers that American soldiers have been involved in a crime wave. Secretary Baker said today that the situation pictured in the papers "seemed incredible," and that official reports from France made no mention of the matter.

The American Expeditionary Force has maintained in Paris since American troops began to appear in that city no leave or otherwise a provost guard of military police to aid the French police in handling incidents in which American troops were involved. The same practice is followed wherever there are many soldiers in any community in the United States or elsewhere.

It was said at the Department that disturbances of a minor character were to be expected where many men, freed for the moment from close military restraint, were involved; but since the figures given by the French papers indicated a most serious situation a detailed report probably would be asked of Gen. Pershing, both as to the extent to which the men of his command had been proven to be involved and as to the steps taken to check the tendency to cast aside military discipline.

Officers here said that if the situation was in fact as grave as the Paris papers indicated, undoubtedly the American officials in Paris were fully advised and had already exercised measures to correct it. The officers were inclined to believe, however, that some of the figures given by the Paris papers were based only on suspicions that Americans were involved.

LONDON-BUENOS AIRES AIRSHIP TRIP PLANNED

Sir Woodman Burbidge Expects to be Passenger on a Six-Day Journey.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Sir Woodman Burbidge announces that he has booked passage from London to Buenos Aires aboard the airship which it is proposed shall undertake the trip next August. He says the preparations are being made by the Vickers interests, and it is expected that the voyage will not take more than six days.

Sir Woodman is going to Buenos Aires on business, and considers that the saving of fourteen days on the journey will be worth the increase in fare, which he understands will be between $2,000 and $2,500 for one way. He will take his wife with him, and he believes that there will be other women passengers. The total number of passengers, he says, will be about fifteen.

"As at present arranged there will be two stopping places—one in Spain and one in Brazil.

FRENCH STILL BUYING BONDS

National Defense Short-Term Issues Maintain Their Popularity.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The French people continue to subscribe for the National Defense short-term bonds. In the first fortnight in January subscriptions totaled 1,123,000,000 francs, compared to an average of 1,200,000,000 fortnightly during the last three months.

It is announced that 37 per cent. of the total number of subscribers are buying bonds for a year instead of for shorter terms, the increase being due to the fact that the interest rate on the bonds has been decreased. Heretofore all but 11 per cent. of the subscribers have bought bonds for shorter periods.

SOFIA HONORS D. I. MURPHY.

Street There Named for American Consul General to Bulgaria.

ATHENS, Jan. 22.—The Municipal Council of Sofia has decided to name a street in that city after Dominic I. Murphy, the American Consul General to Bulgaria.

When Mr. Murphy left Sofia for Saloniki several days ago, the Bulgarian Parliament passed a resolution thanking him for his work in Sofia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Dominic I. Murphy, American Consul General at Sofia, is at Saloniki recovering from an attack of pneumonia. A report to the State Department says he is improving rapidly.

STATE-INSURED CONTRACTS.

Commissioner Duffey Suggests Plan to Help Highway Construction.

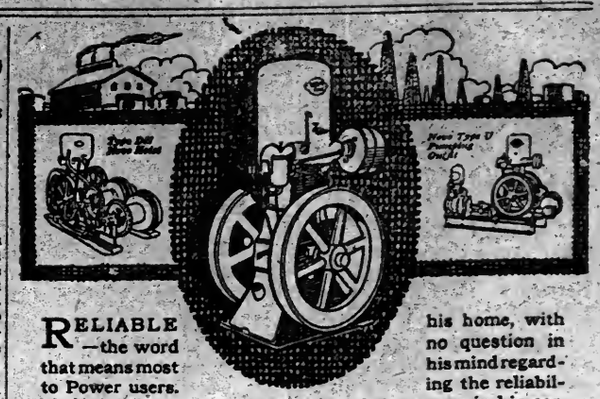
ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Discontinuance of the practice of having contracts for the Department of Highways guaranteed by security companies, and development of a plan whereby the State could insure its own contracts, are suggested by Highway Commissioner Edwin Duffey in his annual report, submitted to the Legislature tonight.

The Commissioner told of a practice which had grown up, under which contractors without prior experience and sometimes without financial resources were provided by a surety company with a certified check necessary to bid. If such a contractor proved to be the low bidder he received the contract and the surety company wrote his bond.

Several contractors, most of whom had obtained contracts with the aid of the surety companies, abandoned their work when war conditions raised the price of labor and materials. Others continued the work, but in an unsatisfactory manner. In some cases surety companies obtained injunctions restraining the department from compelling the completion of contracts on the ground of impossibility of procuring labor and materials.

"It would seem," the report says, "that a plan could be evolved by which the State could insure its own contracts and thus receive the protection for which payment is made."

The report states that in 1915, the last year when normal conditions prevailed, contracts were awarded for the improvement of 1,073 miles of highways at a cost of $11,790,000. At the present price of labor and materials little more than half that mileage could be completed for the same money.



RELIABLE—the word that means most to Power users.

Foreign Selling Rights Open for a Patented Tobacco Stripping Machine

THE most successful labor and tobacco saving device of its type used in the manufacture of cigars is now available for exploitation in foreign fields. This is not a new machine. Its value has been thoroughly demonstrated over a period of years. Today there are about 4,000 of these machines in use in about 1,000 cigar factories in the United States, Canada and also in these countries, which are among those open for representation: Algeria, South Africa, Brazil, Denmark, France, Germany, Mexico, Porto Rico, Spain and Holland. This machine is as logically adapted to the small cigar manufacturer as it is to the large. Its advantages and economies are too numerous to be enumerated here, but every cigar manufacturer discerns them at a glance. It sells "on results" wherever shown.

This Is the Proposition

I am personally interested in this machine. I have sold hundreds myself to cigar manufacturers and I can endorse it unconditionally as a distinctly live-selling proposition in any country where cigars are manufactured. The selling rights to this machine can be secured for foreign countries in any of the three following ways (1) By individual representation—a liberal commission will be allowed. (2) On a Royalty basis. (3) Patent rights can be purchased outright for development in foreign countries.

This Territory Is Open

There's a ready market for this machine right now in South America, Central America, Great Britain, Spain, Japan, India, West Indies, Russia, Switzerland, Sweden, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Denmark, Hungary, Argentine, Cuba, Mexico, Porto Rico, Norway and other places. Therefore, it behooves interested parties to act quickly. Preference will be given to those now connected or identified with the Tobacco Industry. Please write as to territory desired and your qualifications for selling in same. Address—G. C. Sherman.

BRITISH STRIKES SPREADING FAST embraces ten trades unions and a membership of over 1,000,000, in a statement given to The Daily Chronicle says:

"The public generally will be making a big mistake if it regards the events of the last few weeks as an indication of the real state of mind of the general body of workpeople. Most of the outbreaks at the present moment are being engineered by irresponsible young men in factories, who have been fitten with certain ideas which are floating around.

"When those who have been misled into taking strong action in certain industries discover the real facts underlying this agitation they will give short shrift to the men who led them astray. The general body of working men and women, so long as they can be assured that there will be no reversion to anything like the wages, hours, and conditions of labor that prevailed in pre-war times, will be satisfied if the employers consent to concede fair terms."

Want Six-Hour Day on Railroads.

In England there are threats of a national railway strike on Feb. 9. Delegates from district councils of the National Union of Railway Men from all parts of the kingdom met in London today and issued a statement that "If the Government desires to prevent a national stoppage of railways on Feb. 9 it is up to them to negotiate with the railway men's Executive Committee."

The delegates accuse the Prime Minister of displaying apathy in not dealing with the national program as submitted to him by the railway men's Executive Committee. An earlier statement issued by the railway men's delegates said that the conference had decided to support the proposals for a six-hour day. This means a demand that the eight-hour day, which comes into operation on Feb. 1, shall include mealtime allowance with pay.

The threatened strike of London and provincial policemen has been avoided by a promise of an inquiry into the dismissals complained of.

The Sheffield engineers and allied workers have decided to demand a forty-hour week and to take "drastic action" if it is not conceded. They have given the forty-seven-hour system a month's trial and have condemned it.

Bakers Also Threaten Strike.

A dispute which will cause great inconvenience if it matures into a strike is that between the bakers and their employers. The men are asking for the abolition of night baking.

During the war, owing to the order of the food controller that no bread under twelve hours old should be sold, no bread was baked at night. As there is no longer any necessity for this method of economizing in the use of wheat, the employers decided to start night baking again, but the men refused to accede to this plan.

STRIKE AT BANKS THREATENS BERLIN

Ultimatum Sent to One Institution May Lead to Stopping Work at All.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26, (via Copenhagen.)—Berlin is again threatened by a strike, that of bank officials, who may decide to lay down their goosequills next Thursday in order to help the employes of the Mitteldeutsche Kreditbank to gain higher wages and other compensation, to which end they have submitted an ultimatum to the Director of that institution.

The ultimatum having been sent late last night by mail, the management had not received it today, and was unwilling to believe that the employes had taken such a course. The management declared, after negotiating with the employes for nearly a week, that it believed it had convinced them of its willingness to meet the demands as far as possible, and had conceded many increases in salaries and other extra compensations, but that the bank's financial condition did not permit the granting of certain "absolutely revolutionary demands."

The bank had also pledged to abstain from any arbitrary dismissals of employes, even such as had become superfluous since the old officials returned from the war. Nevertheless, the General Association of German Bank Clerks states that if the demands of the Kreditbank's employes are not granted all the other banks in Berlin, and perhaps in many other large cities, may be affected.

VIENNA, Jan. 24, (via Geneva Jan. 25.)—The number of unemployed is growing daily in Vienna and Budapest, causing serious apprehensions, owing to the enormous disbursements necessitated.

The number of unemployed at present is 120,000 in Vienna.

VIENNA, Jan. 25, (Associated Press.)—A second trainload of foodstuffs from the British army in Italy left Vincenza today, and is expected to reach here on Wednesday next.

The plans for the distribution of the first trainload, which arrived recently, have now been completed, and the work has already been begun under the supervision of Major Bathell, Chief of the British Military Mission. As foodstuffs are still commanding fabulous prices in Vienna special precautions have been taken to prevent them falling into the hands of profiteers.

The greater part of the provisions sent will be distributed free among the poorest of the city's population. In addition, the military mission is continuing to furnish weekly rations for the 600 British residents here.

Arrangements have now been completed with Italy for the regular shipment of foodstuffs to Vienna. It is hoped that a trainload will arrive almost daily and that similar arrangements can be made with Switzerland, so that before long Vienna's food situation may be materially relieved.

HOW TO TURN SAD-FACED CHILDREN INTO HAPPY BOYS AND GIRLS

THE New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children seeks out children who are under the influence of cruel and unworthy guardians. The Society removes such boys and girls from their environment into a healthier, happier one. It turns sad-faced little boys and girls, burdened with care and sorrow, into laughing, bright, happy children.

The European War has brought greatly increased activities to the Society, and its available funds are strained to the utmost. To continue the splendid work which has been carried on for more than forty-three years it is in need of contributions at once. All who love children and have in their hearts a desire to help relieve boys and girls who are in distress should contribute to the Society's work.

MORRIS MAKES PLEA FOR A 'SQUARE DEAL'

Packer Cautions Congress Against Adopting Recommendations of Commission.

ACCUSES LIVE STOCK MEN

Charges That Market Committee of the National Association Was Behind Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Edward Morris, 25 years old, President of Morris & Co., the third of the "Big Five" meat packers to be heard by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, considering a bill for Government ownership of refrigerator cars and control of stock markets, pleaded today for what he called a "square deal" for the packers.

Mr. Morris, like his predecessors before the committee, read a long statement in which he carefully reviewed the situation from the point of view of the packers. He asserted that the inquiry of the Federal Trade Commission had been one-sided and that, in his opinion, it was undertaken in a biased spirit. During cross-examination he showed himself well versed in the practical end of the business and acquitted himself so well that he excited the admiration of several members of the committee.

After reviewing the method of the inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission, the witness said:

"The report of any branch of our Government should be entitled to the respect and confidence of all the people. I want to say with all the force at my command that sufficient evidence has developed as to the methods of the Federal Trade Commission in connection with its investigation of the packers to make it highly inadvisable to base any legislation upon any recommendation of that commission.

"It is not merely a matter of fairness to the packers. This is no time for public interest. This is no time for bolshevism' in this country, and I insist that no showing whatever has been made that would justify any puntitive legislation against the packers."

Suggests Another Inquiry.

Mr. Morris charged that the Market Committee of the National Live Stock Association was behind the commission's investigation, and declared that the committee sought higher prices for live stock, which necessarily would mean higher prices to the consumer.

Declaring that he had been informed that the Market Committee received $150,000 annually from the association, Mr. Morris suggested that it might be well for Congress or the Trade Commission to investigate the uses to which that money was put. The witness said he did not mean to intimate that this fund was used for "any improper purpose," but that "its size would make it rather dangerous if it should happen to get into any improper channel."

Mr. Morris said that if the Federal Trade Commission had found that the packers had raised "such a sum or one-twentieth of it for the purpose of raising the price of the articles they sell" they would have been denounced as profiteers. He added that he had heard no criticism of the Market Committee fund, but said this possibly was due to the fact that "the public is not aware of it."

Taking up the Federal Trade Commission's charges in detail, Mr. Morris said that the proof that there was no combination among the packers to control prices of livestock was given by the fact that prices had more than doubled in four years. He quoted from independent packers' testimony before Congressional committees to show that these firms were not oppressed by the large packers and declared that the profits of his company in the fiscal year ended Nov. 3, 1918, on the total capital invested, including borrowed money, was only 7.24 per cent.

Turning to the bill before the committee, the witness gave a list of reasons why he had opposed its enactment. He told the committee that the experiment in Government operation of the railroads has not been so overwhelmingly successful as to justify the belief that great benefit to the community would result from the legislation which would take from the packers all accessories of their business, "leaving them only the simple killing of meat and its preparation for the market."

Says Packers Helped to Win War.

"There has been no fair and intelligent investigation of either the production of raw materials or the sale of the finished product," said Mr. Morris, "that could be the basis for big, broad, constructive legislation. Consequently, there should be no disposition to pass some law simply to have it said that the packers had been legislated against."

Mr. Morris said that "the war would not now be over if it had not been for the five big Chicago packers."

"This," he said, "was one of the big industries that stood up and delivered the goods in the stress of storm. It never faltered and it never wavered, and it never asked or received one cent of assistance from the Government. Be it said to the eternal credit of the packers that they made a smaller percentage of profit during the war period than the Food Administration authorized and approved. In the case of Morris & Co. the war profits were scarcely more than one-half of what the Food Administration approved. This alone gives the lie to the charge of profiteering and should forever silence the charge of monopoly and illegal combination."

In reviewing the history the Morris Company, the witness said that his grandfather, Nelson Morris, entered the business at the Chicago yards on a capital of 50 cents, and when he died was the largest cattle feeder in the United States.

"And you are now President of this big firm, at the age of 25 years?" he was asked.

"I am and I devote myself entirely to it, and have for a number of years," he replied.

"What is your salary?"

"I receive $75,000 a year."

J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co., testified that his salary was $25,000 a year and J. Lowis Swift said that he was paid $50,000 a year as President of Swift & Co.

L. D. H. Weld, manager of the Commercial Research Department of Swift & Co., denounced the methods employed by the Federal Trade Commission in its recent inquiry. He said that the commission had made an improper use of correspondence and placed a sinister motive on the correspondence. The commission, he said, failed to give data which would have explained the correspondence made public in its report.

"The proposed bill for the regulation of the packers," he said, "is based on the erroneous theory that there is a combination among the five large packers to depress livestock prices and to raise meat prices. The Federal Trade Commission has failed to prove that the packers have any such combination, because no such combination exists. The case presented is based primarily on the fact that the percentage of receipts taken by each packer at the various markets remains very nearly consistent from year to year."

Western Man Denies Charges.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 27.—T. W. Tomlinson, Secretary of the American National Livestock Association and also Secretary and Treasurer of the Market Committee of that association, in answer to the charge made by Edward Morris, the packer, before a Congressional committee, that the association annually raises $150,000 for a propaganda against the packing industry, issued the following statement today:

"The Market Committee of the American National Livestock Association was created at the El Paso convention in January, 1916, and since that time it has had entire charge of all the work done by this association and all the money expended relative to the investigation of the meat industry by the Federal Trade Commission and the legislation now being considered by Congress. According to vouchers on file, the Market Committee spent during the past three years the following:

"During 1916, $21,021.03; 1917, $12,067.54, and during 1918, $13,066.66—a total of $47,255.23. These expenditures were mostly for printing pamphlets and statements outlining our position on the control by the packers of marketing facilities, stock yards and other instrumentalities, &c., for attorney fees, expenses of committees, clerical help, and office expenses.

"During the entire three years of its existence the Market Committee has spent less than one-third of the amount Mr. Edward Morris claimed was raised and spent annually."

ARMOUR TO OFFER A PLAN.

Says He Is Drafting Legislation for Regulation of the Industry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co., told the Senate Agricultural Committee tonight at the conclusion of his testimony that he and his counsel were drafting legislation for the regulation of the meat packing industry which he expected to submit as a substitute for similar bills now before Congress.

Mr. Armour reiterated that his opposition to control by the Government or the railroads of refrigerator and live-stock cars and stockyards was predicated solely on his fear that they could not be operated as efficiently as they now are. He said he believed private ownership of branch houses was absolutely necessary, but declared Government-operated branches for the small packers would not be opposed by the large companies.

Francis J. Heney, who cross-examined Mr. Armour, introduced unsigned memoranda which, he said, recorded conferences at which it was agreed that expenses of a $1,500,000 publicity campaign, involving newspaper advertisements in every city above 25,000, were to be borne pro rata by the five big packers, to "educate the public," through dailies, weeklies, and monthlies. The advertisements were to be signed individually by the packers "to prevent any appearance of collusion," according to the memoranda, and all papers were to be used to prevent criticism by publications not receiving advertising.

The witness was asked about a dinner he gave to editors of farm magazines in Chicago.

"Was this part of your educational campaign," asked Mr. Heney.

"Well, if you wish to put it that way," was the reply.

BANKERS CONSIDER NEXT LIBERTY LOAN

MANY IDEAS ARE OFFERED

Country Bankers Anxious to Learn Terms and Amounts They Will Be Asked to Take.

The general Liberty Loan Committee in this district met again yesterday and discussed the suggestions which will be offered to Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass in regard to the terms upon which the Liberty Victory Loan will be offered for subscription in this country in the Spring. The meeting was attended by representative bankers and bond men, and while the broad subject of floating the final $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 loan was gone over it was stated after the meeting that no agreement had been reached regarding its interest rate, tax exemptions, convertibility, or maturity. Other meetings probably will be held this week, and it is hoped that a definite understanding on the terms of the forthcoming issue will be reached in the next two or three weeks.

Bankers and bond specialists in discussing these conferences were careful to emphasize that the rates they agree upon finally will of course be subject to the approval of the Treasury Department, and that they will be offered to that department only as suggestions. Nevertheless, it has been pointed out among the more conservative bankers that it is high time for the local Loan Committee to begin its deliberations, which are expected to extend over a considerable period.

The uncertainty over the terms upon which the fifth loan would be offered was noticed first about a week or ten days ago. This uneasiness was indicated by out-of-town institutions in widely separated parts of the country, and is reported to have been increasing in volume up to the present time. The country bankers, in some instances, have asked their metropolitan correspondents for definite advices on the terms now being considered, and there have been occasional requests for estimates of the amounts of bonds that the smaller institutions would be asked to absorb.

Partly as the result of this inquiry and partly because of the somewhat unsettling effect of Secretary Glass's recent speech in this city, in which he gave it as his opinion that patriotism would play an important part in the placing of the new loan, in spite of the fact that the war was over, the first meeting of the local Liberty Loan Committee was held last week, and the meeting yesterday indicated that the bankers who will have the successful distribution of the new bonds in the Second Federal Reserve District on their shoulders do not intend to let the matter follow its own course.

There have been many suggestions made by different men in the financial district as to just what kind of a loan would go well next April, and it was learned in authoritative quarters yesterday that the local committee is not lacking ideas. To the contrary, it was asserted that apparently every banker and bond man in Wall Street had his own individual idea about what the terms of the new offering should be and what recommendations should be made to the Treasury Department by the committee. It is also admitted that in connection with the forthcoming issue of Liberty bonds more negative points will be brought up than with any of the issues which have been previously offered.

There are those who would prefer to see a bond with a comparatively low interest rate running for five years and non-convertible but tax-exempt, than an issue of higher interest, taxable, and carrying a conversion privilege. Any number of combinations of the different terms and proposed privileges have been offered and it is the business of the local Liberty Loan Committee to choose the most practical and most feasible of all of them. The bankers who make up the local committee realize that they have a hard job ahead of them, and do not hesitate to point out that one of the more complex of their immediate problems is that of proposing terms for the new issue that will take into consideration the effect of a $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 flotation of bonds on other security values.

While there is a wide difference of opinion among bankers and bond men, and even among the members of the Liberty Loan Committee, on all of the terms of the new Government offering it has been quite generally agreed that the new Liberty Bonds should be of comparatively early maturity and that the interest rate should not be increased so that it would overstep the actual credit position of the United States.

SENATORS VOTE FOR PROHIBITION

sequent fight, while yours is being carried on only to add to the gayety of nations. It doesn't really matter what you people up here do, you're going dry whether you like it or not. Down in Louisiana the representatives of the liquor traffic told me that if they could beat the amendment in that State they could beat it in the nation, and if they could not, they believed the national fight was lost.

"They proved to be true prophets, for they lost in Louisiana, and they lost in the nation. A large proportion of our people are Spanish and French. We had to fight the national ideas of those people, and then the religious question was injected into the fight. It did not work. Louisiana French and Spanish and Louisiana Catholics voted for prohibition. Every man answered the question according to his own conscience and from the standpoint of whether it was right or whether it was wrong."

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, with headquarters in Washington, referred to the revelations made by A. Mitchell Palmer, Enemy Property Custodian, as to the money spent by the brewers to control newspapers and influence elections, and said that in view of the investigation of the Senate Judiciary Committee it was a miracle that the amendment was either passed by Congress or ratified by the States.

That investigation revealed," continued Mr. Wheeler, "the methods used by the liquor interests to control this country. The foundation of their system was a survey made of the States by a camouflage organization called the Association of Commerce and Labor. Every leader in politics and business was listed and every fact ascertained that would disclose how he could be reached and controlled. The purpose was to use this when a crisis was on to control such persons to protect the liquor traffic.

"If a business man opposed them he was at once put on the blacklist for a boycott. Here are some of the firms blacklisted: Heinz, the pickle king, because he was President of a Sunday School Association which declared for temperance; John Wanamaker, because he encouraged individual temperance among his employes; the Delaware-Lackawanna Railroad, because it enforced rigid rules against drinking by its employes. The record even shows that they blacklisted the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago because it refused to keep open its bar on Sunday in violation of the law as other liquor dealers were doing."

William H. Anderson, New York State Superintendent of the league, was another speaker and made a bitter attack on Cardinal Gibbons for the latter's opposition to the ratification of the amendment, and more especially because, Mr. Anderson said, the Cardinal had gone out of his way to prevent the ratification in this State.

"We had intended," Mr. Anderson said, "to pass over the attitude of Cardinal Gibbons in silence, but this reiteration of untruthful statements, calculated to raise a sectarian issue, seems to require that we now say that the same dishonest and untruthful statements were widely circulated in New York during the recent campaign, as a sort of religious smoke screen, behind which to mask a Catholic drive for the election of a Catholic Governor of New York.

"If Cardinal Gibbons desires to oppose prohibition because many of the largest and wealthiest distillers of Maryland are members of and liberal contributors to his church, and because most of the saloonkeepers, who belong to any church are Catholics in good standing, or if he wishes to oppose prohibition for any other reason, he has a perfect right to do so, as an American citizen. But he has no right to do it in words which have no basis in fact, but which are calculated to arouse religious hatred and class prejudice. When a high dignitary of a conservative church resorts to incendiary utterances, which impliedly invite lawlessness and suggest that it can be blamed upon prohibition, just so far he becomes an obstacle to law and order and an enemy to the American Republic.

"This is no attack on the Catholic Church. I am glad that we know that Cardinal Gibbons does not represent the entire Catholic Church on this question any more than some Protestant preacher represents Protestant Christianity on this question. I am glad that a large and increasing element of the Catholic Church, especially among the younger clergy, is standing for prohibition in the West and Middle West, and I think Governor Sanders is in a position to tell you this morning that the same thing is true in the South."

Doctors Attack Ratification.

At a meeting of the Medical Society of the County of New York held last night in the Academy of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, Dr. John P. Davin introduced and Dr. William S. Gotthelf seconded the following resolution:

That the Medical Society of the County of New York opposes the ratification by the Legislature of New York of the measure now before it for national prohibition, as irrational, unscientific, and in opposition to the accepted usage of all civilized nations elsewhere throughout the world, and as putting upon the medical profession the burden of prescribing and dispensing alcoholic beverages of proven and therapeutic worth, while allowing the unlimited sale to the public of patent, proprietary, and quack medicines containing alcohol in varying amount without control or hindrance by the officers of the State.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Public Health, to be reported for action at the regular meeting of the society on Feb. 24.

In a severe attack upon the prohibition amendment and its framers, published yesterday in The Mentor, the parish paper of the Catholic Church of the Nativity, at Madison Street and Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, the rector, the Rev. John L. Belford, declared that no one should have the least scruple about evading, breaking or defying so "iniquitous" a law.

"It is the worst invasion of personal liberty the world has ever seen," said Father Belford. "It is not the will of the American people. It is the will of a small minority of narrow-minded bigots who have availed themselves of a weak spot in the Constitution and forced upon the majority a law which is as iniquitous as it is odious. It is an unjust law. No one is bound to obey it. No one should have the least scruple about evading it, breaking it, or defying it.

"How, you will ask, could such a law be enacted? It owes its existence to a band of fanatical thugs and blackmailers. They have held up legislators, as truly as ever a highwayman held up his victim. They have browbeaten, bulldosed, threatened and frightened men into supporting a measure which every decent man loathes and every honest man despises.

"They hired hundreds of spies, detectives, and investigators, put them on the track of every Legislator who would not promise to support their iniquitous measure, and then, when they had crawled through the sewers and strained the cesspools for scandal, they produced their vile evidence and bade the victim deliver his vote or accept the infamy of exposure."

James Holland, President of the New York State Federation of Labor, sent a telegram to Governor Smith yesterday asking him to have the State Senate postpone action on the amendment for at least ten days, stating that if that is done he will be surprised at the mighty protest that will be made to him.

CERTIFIED BY 36 STATES.

"Dry" Amendment Proclamation Is Ordered Prepared.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Thirty-six States, the necessary three-fourths, had certified to the State Department their ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment today, and preparation of a proclamation to make the amendment effective was ordered. This will be issued in a few days.

Officials plan to date the proclamation Jan. 16, 1919, on their understanding of the law that the amendment becomes effective one year from the date of its ratification by the thirty-sixth State—Nebraska.

Certifications were received from Wisconsin, North Carolina, Utah, and Kansas, the latter being the thirty-sixth State to report.

DEBS CASE IN HIGH COURT.

Great Interest in Appeal Against Conviction Under Espionage Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Oral arguments began in the Supreme Court today on the constitutionality of the Espionage act, in the cases of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, convicted of violating the law in a speech at Canton, Ohio, in June, and Jacob Frohwerk, of Kansas City, found guilty of writing alleged seditious articles for the Missouri Staats Zeitung.

Unusual importance is attached to the Debs case by lawyers, because they expect the court to make it the test proceedings in which it will pass on the general validity of the act.

Counsel for the defendants attacked the act as an attempt to abridge the constitutional right of free speech and a free press. John Lord O'Brian, special assistant to the Attorney General, contended that the law obviously was intended to protect the military program against all types of interference, and that since Congress had the power to deprive men even of their lives for the purpose of raising an army, it surely could require citizens to refrain from deliberate obstruction of the process of obtaining necessary fighting men.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAILS.

Transport Carries Large Staff of Army Lawyers to France.

The American transport George Washington sailed from Hoboken yesterday afternoon for Brest with a number of passengers, but Vice Admiral Albert Gleaves, commander of the Cruiser and Transport Division was not among them as it was previously announced he would be. The list included the Italian Labor Mission, headed by Alcaste Di Ambris, which has been here some weeks studying industrial conditions, the Belgian Military Mission, headed by Major Leon Osterrith and fifty United States Army officers, all attached to the Judge Advocate General's Department.

It was said that these officers were going to France to expedite the large number of court-martial cases awaiting trial. Ten Majors and a number of junior officers also sailed on the George Washington to assist the senior officers attached to the Judge Advocate General's Department.

The crew of the transport were all looking forward to bringing President and Mrs. Wilson back from France and are planning entertainment for them.

Wants $5,000,000 from Bingham Estate.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 27.—Inheritance taxes and penalties totaling more than $5,000,000 were sought in a suit filed here today by the State of Kentucky against the estate of Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, formerly Mrs. Henry M. Flagler of New York. The petition asserts the estate is valued at $99,000,000, on which is due the State more than $4,500,000 in inheritance taxes, and that failure to pay it within eighteen months of her death entitled the State to a penalty of 20 per cent., or approximately $900,000.

MOVES TO CONTROL ROADS' RETURN

the assumption that there will be a special session."

"Not altogether," replied Senator Cummins, "although I think there should be a special session. But, even if there is not, if the two Interstate Commerce Committees are permitted to do their work during the interim and are ready to report at the next regular session, we can begin the year with all the differences composed. In view of the circumstances—and they are very grave; their seriousness cannot be overestimated or exaggerated—I introduce this bill.

"I have made these remarks because if we do not pass this bill or something of the nature, and the President is guided by the advice of his Director General and returns these properties in their present condition and under existing circumstances, the United States will see a cataclysm in finance, as well as in railroad operations, such as it has never witnessed before."

More testimony opposing the present plan of control was given to the Senate committee today by Clifford Thorne of Iowa, who represents shippers. As on the previous days on which he appeared, he asked for a restoration of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission and an abolition of the peculiar authority bestowed upon the President and the Director General for the war period.

"The Railroad Administration seems to have no regard for the shippers," declared Mr. Thorne. He objected to the idea of reorganizing the rate structure upon a mileage basis, as recommended by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Robert W. Woolley, saying this would be disastrous to the business of the nation.

ACCUSES COTTON EXCHANGE

Heflin Asks Department of Justice to Investigate Drop in Prices.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Representative Heflin of Alabama announced in the House today that he had asked the Department of Justice to investigate the New York Cotton Exchange, which he charged had violated the Cotton Futures act "in driving down" the price of cotton from 37 to 24 cents a pound.

"The South has been robbed of millions of dollars by this unjust speculation," Mr. Heflin declared. "At a time when the world demand for cotton is greater than ever before the price has been forced down and down. No one is being benefited but the gamblers themselves. The spinners cannot obtain cotton at the present prices and the growers refuse to sell."

Mr. Heflin said Governors of Southern States had appealed to planters to hold their cotton until the price goes back to 30 cents a pound, and that at the close of the present session of Congress Representatives from the South expect to go through their States to urge that cotton acreage be decreased.

BREAK UP MEETING OF EX-SERVICE MEN

Beach Guards' Officer Interferes After a Tumultuous Debate Over Unemployment.

ALDERMEN IN HOT DISPUTE

Collins Denounces the Attitude of the Socialist Beckerman—Hylan's Name Hissed.

A stormy meeting of the "Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Protective Association" at the Rand School, the Socialist headquarters at 7 East Fifteenth Street, last night, was stopped by armed Beach Guards attached to the City Hall Park barracks, under the command of a Warrant Officer, C. Madsen, who interposed in the course of a dispute between Abraham Beckerman, a Socialist Alderman, and Alderman William G. Collins, a Democrat, on the ground that sentiments expressed at the meeting were against the law.

The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Protective Association has a membership of about 500 discharged men who allege that they have found it impossible to obtain work from their former employers. It is seeking the co-operation of the Board of Aldermen of the city in getting jobs for its members and will submit to that body this afternoon a resolution which was adopted at last night's meeting, demanding employment.

After Alderman Arnon L. Squiers, Republican, and Collins, Democrat, had praised the discharged men for the good work that they had done in the war, Alderman Beckerman said that "we have been hearing a good deal of noisy patriotism, but that what we want now is practical patriotism." Mr. Hylan's committee for obtaining employment for the discharged men, he said, was taking care of about 200 cases a day, whereas there were 50,000 unemployed in New York, and this number was increasing at the rate of 10,000 a week.

At the mention of Mayor Hylan's name the audience hissed and booed until the Chairman was forced to ask for order.

When Mr. Beckerman, continuing his remarks, said that neither the State, Federal nor municipal governments had taken any steps toward obtaining employment for discharged men, except by placing placards throughout the city urging business houses to take back those who had left to join the colors, Alderman Collins got up and contradicted the statement. The Mayor's Committee, he said, was doing all that it could and the United States Employment Service was aiding a great many cases.

Alderman Beckerman then suggested a plan for providing jobs for discharged soldiers. The Fire Department, he said, could utilize many more men and the city was eight years behind in the building of schools. If the authorities would get to work at once, he said, many men would find places. He also asked for an eight-hour day, or if it had to be, a six-hour day throughout the country. Mr. Collins angrily said that he was convinced that the meeting was in reality run by the Socialists.

Alderman Bruce Faulkner, who then took the floor, said that, according to Mr. Beckerman, one would think that the Socialists were the only persons who were doing anything for the returning soldiers.

Resolutions were then read by Isaac Witz opposing "the diversion of any large sums of money in entertainment when no provision has been made to secure for us decent jobs, at decent wages, under decent conditions."

When one clause in the preamble saying "no plans have been made to secure permanent employment for men discharged from the army and navy," was read, Alderman Squiers asserted that it was a misstatement and that it would have to be eliminated from the resolution before the Board of Aldermen would act upon it. Chairman Lavitt said that he did not think this was a misstatement. At this, Madsen of the Beach Guards threatened his arrest, but Lavitt said that although he was wearing the uniform of a sailor he had been discharged and therefore did not fear him.

Alderman Collins jumped to his feet at this point and said that the talk in the assembly hall was stirring up sedition, and that it should stop. The Socialists, he said, had opposed everything while the soldiers were on the other side, and now they were trying to win their support. They opposed the selective draft, he said, and the sale of Thrift Stamps. Turning to Alderman Beckerman, he said:

"Neither you nor any one else will turn this into a partisan meeting." Alderman Beckerman then jumped to his feet and said that the meeting was not partisan.

At this point Alderman Collins again got up, walked rapidly to the front of the hall where Beckerman was standing, and, clinching his fists, said:

"You may think you can say anything that you please, but you cannot say anything against this country. If you do, I will order your arrest immediately."

A moment later the proponent of the resolution asked that it be voted upon without removing the objectionable clause. At this point a private belonging to the 12th Infantry, who would not give his name, asked permission to speak, and, it being granted, said that as a great many persons in the room were Socialists and seditious talk was prevalent, it was not a place for a man in the uniform of the United States to be present, and thereupon left the room.

Warrant Officer Madsen at this point ordered the meeting closed, but Chairman Lavitt asked permission to have the resolution voted upon. It was carried with applause. The meeting then broke up in disorder.

AGREE ON RELIEF BILL.

Conferees Make Minor Changes and Early Passage Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—An agreement on the bill appropriating $100,000,000 for European famine relief was reached today by the Senate and House conferees after a brief session. No material changes were made in the bill by the conferees. All of the Senate amendments, with minor changes in phraseology, were adopted, including that by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, Republican, providing that wheat created should be bought as far as practicable in America.

The prohibition added by the Senate against distribution of food to enemy countries also was approved by the conferees, but the provision was redrafted so as to insure that Armenians and other friendly peoples in enemy territory might become the subjects of relief.

Repres ntative Sherley announced that he would present the report to the House at the opening of its session today and press its adoption. Administration leaders anticipated no difficulty in obtaining quick and favorable action both in the House and the Senate, and expect the bill to be on its way to President Wilson at Paris before the end of the week.

FEAR SHORTAGE OF SAILORS.

Our Naval Authorities Abroad Are Discouraging Discharges.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—American naval authorities here are doing everything in their power to avoid adding to the number of unemployed in the United States by retaining in the service every able-bodied sailor who can be induced to remain. Instructions have been given to discharge no man who does not desire to leave the service and who has no prospect of employment.

Apprehension is expressed in naval circles that there will be a real shortage of sailors for the navy on the side of the Atlantic owing to the expectation that a large number will be required to man the German merchant ships which the United States is to take over under the terms of the armistice. This is the explanation given for the sudden change in orders to a number of men who were about to start for the United States, but are being held in French ports.

MANIAC KILLS THREE MEN IN PHILADELPHIA

Overpowered After a Running Fight—German Anarchistic Tracts Found in His Room.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—With a loaded revolver in each hand, a man who gave his name as "Omega, son of Jesus Christ," ran amuck through the streets near the centre of the city today shooting in every direction as a big crowd tried to capture him. Before he was finally overtaken and beaten into insensibility by a motor cycle policeman he had shot and killed three men and wounded five others, two of them seriously.

According to the police the man is a religious fanatic and had become obsessed with the idea that the spirit of his father was being tortured in the power house of the transit company, where he shot his first two victims. Rushing out of the power house before other employes realized what had happened, the lunatic fled through the streets with a crowd of civilians and policemen in pursuit. Two blocks away he came upon Dingall, who was standing in the centre of the street directing traffic. With a wild cry he dashed at the policeman, firing as he ran. Dingall fell, mortally wounded.

All the time the pursuing crowd was growing in numbers, and after a chase of about a mile two motorcycle policemen, Knox and Heron, overtook him. Finding that he was trapped, the man wheeled around and thrust revolvers against the bodies of both policemen and pulled the triggers. The one pointed at Knox was discharged and killed him instantly, but that directed against Heron missed fire, and the officer shot the maniac in the leg and beat him into unconsciousness. The crowd leaped upon him, but he was finally rescued and taken to a hospital.

A notebook found in the man's clothing contains a list of all the power houses in Philadelphia, and in his room were found quantities of religious and anarchistic literature printed in Italian and German. At his rooming house he was known as George Lembo, but beyond this no information was obtainable. It was said he had been there only a short time. He is about 30 years old.

VOTE FOR STRIKE IN FUR INDUSTRY

Manager of Union Sees Little Prospect of Averting Walkout of 8,000 Workers.

GARMENT TRADE DEADLOCK

Agreement Is Reached Between 4,000 Employes and Independent Manufacturers.

With the first week of the strike of 35,000 garment workers just ended, it was announced last night that 8,000 members of the Furriers' Union had voted to a strike for a forty-four hour working week, one price the year around, and a board to review discharges, the strike to begin next Monday. The agreement in the fur industry will expire on Jan. 31 at midnight. Morris Kaufman, manager of the Joint Board of the International Fur Workers' Union, said last night that he saw little possibility of averting the strike, although several agencies were working to this end.

More than 500 shop Chairmen of the Furriers' Union met last night at the Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Avenue, and the result of the strike vote taken among the union members at Cooper Union last week was read to them. Not all the union members voted, it was pointed out, but 4,683 were in favor of the general strike. Mr. Kaufman said that Dr. J. L. Magnes, the impartial Chairman of the Fur Workers' Reviewing Board under the expiring agreement, was making every effort to avert the strike. "If he can do this he will perform a miracle," the union leader said, "for the strike seems inevitable."

A strike committee of seventy members was elected at last night's meeting, with Mr. Kaufman as Chairman. This body, divided into fourteen sub-committees, will make the arrangements for the strike. The locals of the furriers' union, it was said, had more than $200,000 in their treasuries.

About 2,000 garment workers returned to their labors yesterday under settlements which were made on Saturday with independent manufacturers. About 4,000 in all, it was said, would have returned to work by tomorrow under the settlements which were effected on Saturday and yesterday at the Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Avenue. Union leaders pointed out that the settlements could not be made rapidly as each application had to undergo a searching investigation by the union to determine whether or not the applicant was in any way connected with the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, against which the efforts of the strikers are directed.

Says Strikers Are Returning.

Morris Weiss, the President of this organization, said yesterday that the association had entered into no negotiations with the union since the commencement of the strike and that all statements to the contrary were unfounded.

"The strike has been in progress one week," he said, "and many of the shops of the association members have not been affected in the slightest degree and have continued to work full force. In other factories some of the workers who originally went on strike have already returned to work. The association realizes that a large number of the strikers were coerced and that a large proportion were led astray by the union. There is evidenced everywhere among the workers a growing tendency to return to work.

"It would be easy for the members of the association to fill the vacant places of the strikers from the large number of unemployed who are walking the streets and are seeking positions. It is common knowledge that the number of unemployed is gradually increasing in this community. The association, however, is anxious to avoid conflict, and realizing that many of the workers on strike have been imposed upon, has determined that they shall have a reasonable opportunity to return to work."

Mr. Weiss added that if by the end of the week these workers had not returned to their jobs the members of the association would have no other course open to them but to fill the positions from among those who were seeking employment.

As to the question of sanitary conditions in the shops of the association, which, although not the central issue in the strike, is a sore point with the union, Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in an advertisement appearing in newspapers this morning quotes a letter which he received from Dr. George M. Price, Director of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control in the cloak, suit, skirt, and dress and waist industry. Dr. Price refers to the records as to the number of defective shops in the dress and waist industry as submitted to the board at a meeting held on Dec. 6, and says:

Reports Shop Conditions.

"There were in this industry altogether 825 shops with 25,268 workers. Of the 825 shops there were 149 in which no defects whatever have been found (sixty-two association shops and eighty-seven non-association shops). There were 676 shops with defects, of which 175 belonged to members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association and 501 were non-association shops.

"As to the classification of defects, there were 114 shops in the dress and waist industry having serious fire dangers and 330 shops having dirty walls, ceilings, water closets, &c."

The Ladies' Waist Contractors and Manufacturers Association, which has sprung into being since the commencement of strife in the garment-making industry, in a letter to the union yesterday said:

It is desired that the most harmonious relations exist between employes and employers and it is the purpose of all the members of the association to do everything in their power to have them so.

With a view to that end and at the direction of the association, I suggest that arrangements be made at the earliest possible moment for a conference between committees of your organization and the Ladies' Waist Contractors' and Manufacturers' Association, Inc., in the event that such conference should terminate without an adjustment satisfactory to both parties concerned, it will then be in order to submit the matters to arbitration.

Mr. Schlesinger said that a conference with representatives of this association would undoubtedly be held providing the association would furnish a list of members to the union to determine whether any of them were connected with the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, against which the strike is being waged. Mr. Schlesinger called attention to a statement made by Harry Gordon, counsel for the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, that Abraham Baroff, Secretary of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, signed an agreement to the effect that the increase of 9 per cent. granted by the association in August instead of a 30 per cent. increase demanded by the union," and said that such an agreement was never signed by Mr. Baroff or any other officer of the union.

Made 2 Errors in 1,500 Words.

The new shorthand record made several days ago by Herman J. Stich, official stenographer at the Children's Court in Brooklyn, was at the rate of 300 words a minute, with only two errors in a total of 1,500 words of court testimony, which was read in five minutes. An account in Sunday's TIMES stated erroneously that there had been an average of two errors for each 300 words.

Novelties in Women's & Misses' Sweaters are now being shown in regulation or slip-on models in silk or wool, and in a variety of charming colors.

Among them are the slip-on models in the rather intricate but extremely effective filet designs; and those in the coat style, developed in sheer alpaca wool.

A decided novelty, suggestive of the richly-woven matelasse effects, is shown in two silk models (regulation or slip-on) obtainable in the more fashionable shades.

NEARLY ALL TROOPS HOME IN HALF YEAR

General March Testifies Ships Are Available to Transport 300,000 a Month.

SOME MUST STAY LONGER

Needed for Army of Occupation—Practically All Men Out of Home Camps in a Month.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—General March, Chief of Staff, told the Senate Military Affairs Committee today that the War Department had practically completed arrangements through which all of the 1,800,000 American soldiers now in France would be brought back home within the next six months, excepting those needed to do joint police work with allied troops.

This means that shipping arrangements have been made, the General said, to transport 300,00 men a month. To do it, he explained, the Government would use as a part of the shipping complement some of the German ships turned over since the armistice was signed. The Government has put the shipping details into the hands of Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, who has assured the War Department that he expects to accomplish the task of getting the 1,800,000 men home within six months.

Tonnage to transport 300,000 men a month is almost all available now, the General said, and if the negotiations now under way to get a few more ships are completed, the program of 300,000 a month will be carried out. General March said the Allies had allotted ships to the United States to transport the soldiers home. At present, he said, the carrying capacity of the ships at the disposal of the Government is 250,000 men a month.

"If President Wilson agrees to leave ten divisions, or whatever number, in the Army of Occupation, we can get the remainder of our army home in less than six months," said General March. "From the beginning General Pershing was instructed to get the men home as fast as possible, and is straining every effort to accomplish it quickly."

When the armistice was signed there were 1,700,000 men in the camps in this country, General March said, and of these 915,000 have been discharged, leaving 785,000 still in camp.

"Except for those retained for overhead duty every man in camp will be out within a month," said the General.

Senators said complaints had come to them that regiments that had seen the longest service in France were the last to be demobilized.

"That is a military plan," said General March. "It is done to keep experienced men in France for any service that may still remain to be done. It will keep men there who will not unduly excite the Germans and who will be able to overrun them, too, if necessary."

General March told the committee that under the demobilization plans it was proposed to keep a standing army of 500,000 men.

"Unless we can't help it, we won't reduce the standing army below 500,000 men, because that is, after all, only a nominal army," said the General.

In demobilizing the soldiers in army cantonments, he said, only enough men to look after the camps will be retained.

HAMILTON FISH, JR., CITED.

Honored by French for Giving Up Furlough to Join in Attack.

Captain Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the 369th Regiment (15th Regiment, New York State colored troops) has received the Croix de Guerre. The citation came from General Petain in the following words:

"Captain Hamilton Fish, Jr., commander of Company K of 369th Infantry Regiment, being on furlough, came back to spend his furlough with the regiment, knowing it had been engaged. Has rendered precious services—exposed incessantly to danger—before, during, and after the taking of a village, and in establishing contact between the regiment and his battalion."

Captain Fish received the citation during the taking of the village of Sechoult, in the Champagne, on Sept. 30. The Americans suffered heavy losses in the village—ten officers and several hundred men were killed.

Captain Fish was on a seven days' leave, after graduating from the line school. His pass was good only for Paris, but he managed to get up to the front in time to join his regiment and take part in the big September offensive. He stayed with his organization until it was withdrawn, and then went to Paris. He then returned to the staff college and has not been with his regiment since.

Captain Fish represented the Putnam district in the New York State Assembly for a number of years. He was a close friend and supporter of the late Colonel Roosevelt. He took an active part in recruiting the 15th Regiment of the New York State Guard, now the 369th Regiment. He is a son of Hamilton Fish of 810 Fifth Avenue, who was active in New York State politics for many years and who was Speaker of the New York State Legislature.

NAVAL OFFICERS SHIFTED.

Rearrangement of High Commands Follows Return of Overseas Forces.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Orders to naval officers made public today show that with the return of the overseas forces the Atlantic Fleet is being reconstituted. The published assignments of officers show a general rearrangement of the high commands, with Admiral Mayo remaining as Commander in Chief.

The fleet now is divided into two major units, known as Battleship Forces Nos. 1 and 2. While details of organization perfected since the United States entered the war have not been made public, it is understood that all the older battleships have been grouped in Force No. 1, under Vice Admiral Albert W. Grant. This force will consist of Divisions A and B and Squadrons 1 and 2. The newer ships are grouped in Force No. 2, and the assignment of Vice Admiral Henry B. Wilson to command Squadron 4 is understood to place him in line for command of Force 2.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett takes command of the destroyer force of the fleet, now to be divided, as are the battleships, into two groups—Flotillas Nos. 1 and 2. Rear Admiral Ashley H. Robertson, formerly commanding the destroyer force, is assigned to command Flotilla No. 2, while Admiral Plunkett will command Flotilla No. 1, as well as the entire force.

Other important changes in flag officers are Rear Admirals William R. Shoemaker, from the General Board to command Division 3 of the Atlantic Fleet; Thomas Snowden, from Division 3, Atlantic Fleet, to temporary duty in Washington; Alexander E. Halstead, from command of Squadron 5, Patrol Forces, to command of the naval base in France, relieving Vice Admiral Wilson; Carlo B. Brittain, to command Division A, Battleship Fleet; Henry A. Wiley, to command Division B; John A. Hoogewerff, to command Squadron 1, Battleship Fleet; Thomas Washington, to command Division 5; Hugh Rodman, to command Squadron 3; Clarence S. Williams, to command Division 4.

The orders published today also include a general reassignment of commanders of destroyers, cruisers, and merchant ships of the naval transport service.

FOUR MORE ARMY CASUALTY LISTS GIVEN OUT

841, Including 79 Dead, in Latest Lists; Reported Total Now Up to 221,795

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The War Department gave out four army casualty lists today, which contained 841 names, bringing the total for the army up to 216,049. No Marine Corps casualty list was issued today, but the total previously announced for that arm was 5,746. The total for army and Marine Corps was 221,795.

Army lists issued today contained the names of 18 killed in action, 35 died of wounds, 3 died of accident, 23 died of disease, 281 severely wounded, 117 wounded to a degree undetermined, 346 slightly wounded, and 18 missing.

SMITH WILL UNITE ALL STATE'S TROOPS

Governor Appoints Brig. Gen. Vanderbilt to Head Commission on Organization.

O'RYAN MAY BE IN COMMAND

Veterans of the 27th Division Will Have Chance to Re-enlist in the State Service.

In order that the units of the 27th Division, the State's former National Guard, which achieved laurels in France, may be perpetuated, Governor Smith yesterday announced that he had appointed a commission to reorganize and amalgamate the division with the regiments of the New York Guard. The Governor announced that he had appointed Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, once Inspector General of the Guard and later Colonel of the 102d Engineers, to head the commission.

The task of reforming the New York regiments will be under the direction of Brig. Gen. Charles W. Berry, just appointed Adjutant General of the State. Although no statement has yet been made, it is thought likely that the unified force will be commanded by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, the only National Guard general officer to retain his command throughout the war.

The appointment of the Vanderbilt commission will solve a ticklish problem, present and former Guard officers pointed out yesterday, which grew of a decision of the Judge Advocate General of the army, a few weeks ago, that the former Guardsmen, taken into the Federal service on a status which permitted them to serve beyond the continental limits of the United States, would not revert to the States upon their return, but would be granted discharges and automatically return to civil life.

The strength of the 27th Division when it left Spartanburg, S. C., last May was about 25,000. The total of the State organization which took the place of the National Guard is about 20,000. The nominal military strength of the State up to the present has been a full division on the old army formation, or about 22,000 men. Officers indicated yesterday that the commission would have a surplus of more than 20,000 men to act as offset to the many who will undoubtedly decline to re-enlist. Another job ahead of the commission will be the framing of some sort of arrangement whereby the discharged members of the 27th Division may re-enlist in the State service.

It was recalled that when Governor Whitman visited Camp Wadsworth about a year ago he was asked what plans were in contemplation for the future of the New York troops. He replied that he planned to have them return to the State and reoccupy the armories which they surrendered when they were Federalized. He said that he intended to make every effort to see that the identity of the guardsmen was preserved under their old designations or the ones under which they fought abroad—this matter he thought he would leave to the wishes of the officers and men themselves.

Serving with General Vanderbilt, who is a close friend of General O'Ryan, and who for a time was his Chief of Staff, will be officers of the New York Guard, officers of the 27th Division, regular army officers, retired guard officers, and representatives from the naval militia and Home Defense Reserve. In addition to General Vanderbilt, the only other Commissioner known yesterday was Lieut. Col. Jackson Dykman, Judge Advocate General, lately of the Adjutant General's Staff in Washington.

DOUGHBOYS TO SEE HAGENBECK'S ANIMALS

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Jan. 26. (Associated Press.)—In the Coblenz newspapers today the Burgomaster appeals to the self-respect of the Germans to refrain from commercializing iron crosses and other German decorations of war.

The American intelligence officers have discovered several instances where shopkeepers near Coblenz sold iron cross watch fobs with a miniature American flag pinned to the ribbon. This resulted in the arrest of several Germans, who were sentenced to jail.

The Burgomasters of both Treves and Coblenz notify the civilians in today's newspapers that the use of the American colors for commercial purposes must cease. They warn the Germans that if there is an infraction of American orders in this respect they must suffer the consequences.

The Americans in the occupied zone are to receive an opportunity to see Hagenbeck's trained animals on a war basis. Before the war Hagenbeck's had more than 800 animals, but these have been reduced in number, so that when the circus arrived in Coblenz it had only 100 specimens.

Camels, llamas, and many other animals have been killed since the war started owing to the scarcity of food. Fifteen elephants of a herd of thirty remain. The other elephants were killed last Winter and the meat was sold to civilians in the interior of Germany, where the circus was exhibiting.

The circus was permitted to enter the occupied area on the provision that the meat-eating animals would be fed with the carcasses of horses and other animals which are considered unfit for human consumption.

ENJOYING LEAVE IN LONDON.

First Party of A. E. F. Soldiers to Take Advantage of New Orders.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The first members of the American Expeditionary Force in France to take advantage of the order granting a leave of fourteen days to visit England were enjoying the sights of London today. They landed at Southampton Sunday, where they were provided with meals by the American Red Cross, which gave the visitors another meal on their arrival in London. The American Y. M. C. A. has reserved 1,000 beds for their use, and has arranged for restaurants to feed the men at reasonable prices.

The order permits 150 men to come daily, but the first quota was not filled, apparently because the order failed to reach all units.

Each man has an allowance of 60 cents a day for rations and lodging. Expenses to and from London are paid by the American Government, but expenses while traveling in the British Isles must be borne personally.

French War Cross for the 371st.

BREST, Jan. 27.—Vice Admiral Moreau, Maritime Prefect of Brest, today presented the Croix de Guerre to the 371st Regiment, United States Infantry, and also to several officers and men of the regiment. The regiment was cited in an army order for brilliant conduct in the face of the enemy.

WAR OBJECTORS FREED FROM LEAVENWORTH

Two for "Glory of God" Refuse to Go—Kansas House Denounces Baker.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 27.—The release of 113 conscientious objectors, discharged from the service by War Department orders, was begun at the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth this morning. Two, however, refused to leave, saying it was against their religious scruples, as it "would not be for the glory of God." Instructions have been asked from Washington in their cases.

The men were discharged in groups of ten and received the same mileage as that given to discharged combatants, to the point of their induction into the service. They also received a suit of civilian clothes, which few needed as none wore the army uniform while in the barracks. It was said some of the men had between $400 and $500 awaiting them in the form of back pay and allotments. Their homes are in all parts of the country.

The first few to sign their discharge papers, scratched out the line bearing the caption "signature of soldier," and substituted "child of God." Officers thereafter insisted that the "signature of soldier" line stand.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 27.—A resolution condemning the action of Secretary Baker in ordering the release of 113 conscientious objectors and demanding a congressional investigation as to "the delinquency of the War Department" was passed by the lower house of the Kansas Legislature.

The resolution branded the Secretary of War's action as "mischievous, unwise, unpatriotic, unAmerican and destructive of the morale of every person wearing the uniform of the United States army" and declared it "placed a premium on slackerism, cowardice and mawkish sentimentality."

Troops on the Minnekahda.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The War Department announced today that the transport Minnekahda, due at New York Feb. 1, was bringing home the Headquarters Company, Machine Gun Company, Supply Company, Medical Company, and Companies A, B, C, D, I, K, L, and M of the 329th Infantry, (83d Division, Ohio and West Virginia National Army). Through a typographical error the department announced Saturday that these units of 328th Infantry were aboard the Minnekahda. The 328th belongs to the 82d Division, and had not been placed on priority for convoy.

Oklahoma's Men Dance Farewell.

The officers and men of the Oklahoma, which is to sail this week from the North River to Southern waters, gave a farewell ball last night at Terrace Garden in East Fifty-eighth Street, near Lexington Avenue. There were more than 2,000 at the ball.

The large hall was decorated with novel electrical effects, and a feature of the evening was the releasing of hundreds of vari-colored balloons, stamped with the name of the ship, from the folds of huge flags draped across the ceiling.

Souvenirs were distributed to the guests, the women receiving slipper pin cushions and the men leather cigarette cases stamped with the ship's insignia.

"Acid-Mouth" has no warning taste

If "Acid-Mouth" burned like carbolic acid, you would know that a dangerous condition existed in your mouth.

But "Acid-Mouth" is a stealthy enemy of your teeth.

You have no inkling of its presence until a cavity is formed and the first stab of pain shoots through some tooth.

You should be constantly on your guard against "Acid-Mouth." It is believed to be the chief cause of tooth decay.

Pebeco Tooth Paste counteracts "Acid-Mouth," and whitens and polishes the teeth. It should be used regularly in every household.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

Chicago Grand Opera.

On the wings of a westerly musical gale the Chicago Grand Opera Company—and Mary Garden—came to the Lexington Theatre last night. The same favoring breeze also brought Cleofonte Campanini, the director of the organization, and a conductor of prime artistic importance, one greatly admired in this opera-loving community. The first offering of the Chicago association was "Gismonda," by Victorien Sardou, music by Henri Fevrier, which was heard for the first time anywhere in Chicago last Jan. 14. The cast that then participated was the same as last night's.

Gismonda	Mary Garden
Almerio	Charles Fontaine
Zaccaria	Alfred Maguenat
Gregoras	Gustave Huberdeau
Sophron	Marcel Journet
Thisbe	Louise Berat
Agnello	Octave Dua
Simonetti	Lodovico Oliviero
Tiberio	Warren Proctor
Andriolt	Desire Defrere
Pasquale	Constantin Nicolay
Cypriella	Marie Pruzan
Leonarda	Frederica Downing
Donaata	Alma Peterson

Conductor—Cleofonte Campanini.

The opera was sung in French.

"Gismonda" is glorified melodrama. Like the Sardou plays written for the immortal Sarah Bernhardt, it is in the key of theatric exoticism. It is Sardoudledom in full flowering, and excellent material for a libretto. We saw Fanny Davenport and her husband, Melbourne MacDowell, in the piece more than two decades ago at the old Fifth Avenue Theatre. We recall the première, which occurred on a Saturday night, also the caustic criticism of the late Maurice Barrymore. He said that it was the Almerio who should have been thrown down the cistern to be devoured by the lion, thereby saving Miss Davenport the heavy expense of a divorce suit. Barrymore was an incorrigible critic of acting. Certainly he would not have said the same of last night's Almerio if he could have taken a furlough from the other world. Miss Davenport, who lacked the dramatic genius of her distinguished sire, E. L. Davenport, possessed the sumptuous sort of beauty that accords with the rather egregious character of the Duchess of Athens. It may be said that histrionically she would have been no match for Mary Garden.

The Story of the Opera.

The story of the opera is trite to the border of banality. The period is A. D. 1450. The child of the Duchess is pushed into the lion's abode by a designing scoundrel and rescued by a falconer, Almerio; the Duchess, who has sworn to marry the savior of her son, balks at the mesalliance involved, but, being temperamental, meets the base-born hero and spends a pleasant evening with him in his hut on the Hill of the Nymphs. George Meredith's theory of trial marriage practically solved to the sound of flutes, harps, and to pretty miming. The villain, Zuccaria, intervenes. He is killed by Gismonda. Then, in order to avoid further complications, a false accusation of murder hanging over the devoted head of Almerio, the enraptured Duchess swallows her snobbish pride, proclaims herself as the doer of the naughty deed, and weds Almerio—"He shall be the Duke of Athens and my husband before God!"—just as he was her lover before the evil one. A highly moral lady, this, and the wisdom sought to be inculcated is always give your son a stepfather that nobly stood the test. Curtain.

In three acts and four scenes "Gismonda" is presented as a lyric drama with the sometimes effective music of Fevrier, better known to us as the composer of "Monna Vanna." The first act on the Acropolis is slow, in spots even dull; the second contains the best writing of all three; Gismonda's soliloquy in the convent of Daphne and the duo with Almerio are the high lights in a clever score, though hardly an original one. The symbolical dances in Act III. are melodious and rhythmically arresting. The Russian dancers, Ludmilla, Keralli, Kowak, Kharkova, with Andreas Pavley and Serge Oukrainsky as principals, proved the most interesting episode of the evening. The grouping, costuming, lighting of this ballet were alike admirable. Some of the dancing was of the sort that Jules Bois has called "Choreographie viscérale."

M. Fevrier's Score Reminiscent.

That the score of M. Fevrier is reminiscent is only to state a truism; all modern French and Italian music bears the stencil of Wagner. Therefore we were not surprised to hear Fafner roar from the cistern where the lion must have cowered, or to have our ear drums pelted with the Valkyrs, or to swoon with the languorous measures of "Tristan." It all sounded familiar and it would have sounded more mellifluous if Maestro Campanini had gauged the brilliant acoustical quality of the theatre.

His orchestra was too loud throughout; hardly a pianissimo was heard except in the prelude to Act III., pretty bit that had to be repeated. Musically it is saccharine and wabbles finally to the intermezzo of the "Cavalleria Rusticana" with pizzicati accompaniment from the sextet in "Lucia." Nuance was lacking, and chiefly because the heavy brass choir was not kept down. Any one who remembers the interpretation of "Pelléas et Mélisande" by Campanini will not deny that he is a master of nuance.

The entire performance was keyed up above concert pitch, unescapable on a first night like this. Otherwise, the conductor had full control of his forces on the stage and in the orchestra, and the climaxes were never missing. With Miss Garden and the composer, Mr. Campanini was called before the curtain, and there was no mistaking the welcome tendered him.

Mary Garden Charming.

Of Mary Garden it is always the correct thing to say that she is charming. True. Charming, and also many more qualities she boasts. She is exquisite, and she is a great dramatic artist. But her voice is a sonorous mirage. The lower register is still rich, sombre in coloring, thrilling when she wills. The gift of temperamental ecstasy is hers, though the character she painted so subtly is hardly worth the powder and shot to blow it sky-high. A sensual prowling panther notwithstanding the al fresco exhibition of mother-love in Act I.

The panther glides from its midnight jungle to meet its mate, and then Miss Garden's magic began to operate. Her soliloquy was the finest bit of psychology expressed in voice, mimique, and with the entire arsenal of her personal beauty that we have seen on any single dramatic or lyric, for years. She needs a more intimate atmosphere than this huge auditorium. Some of her more delicate strokes vanished a few feet from the footlights. But her diction, her phrasing, her general grasp of the rôle—into which she has only had a few weeks to work were most impressive. She has distinction in every pose, distinction in the carriage of her head and arch of the neck.

Her cadenced step in the first scene was replaced by rhythmic movements in the second act that revealed her glowing inner life. She was all flame and gold—except when she sang above the staff. Even then she infuses it with a characteristic timbre. A singing actress. She is much thinner than last year. (Sound the anti-fat motive as warning!) That she was gowned beautifully is it necessary to add? Her triumph was indisputable. People like Mary Garden because she has that rarest of artistic virtues—personality.

Charles Fontaine Makes His Debut.

Charles Fontaine, who made his début, is a French tenor with all the excellencies and shortcomings of his school. He is a big virile chap and has a voice that roars and vibrates and tremolos. He sings flat or sharp at discretion. Whoever placed his voice placed it below the chest and above the nose-bridge. He made at times most extraordinary sounds; yet he pleased. The reason for his reckless production in the duo of Act II. may be set down to nervousness. New York musical audiences, cordial as they are, have such a terrifying reputation, that like the famous John L. Sullivan, they have their adversary whipped before he puts up his fists—or opens his throat.

We refuse to believe that after all the good things we have heard of this young man with the powerful vocal organ, that he cannot give us more plangent singing. He seldom sang legato, and when he wasn't explosive he was almost inaudible. Little wonder. He hardly had breath left to sing "Je vous aime" after such prodigal outpourings. We await a more favorable opportunity to judge him. He has the stuff, and a temperament that nearly swallowed little Mary, body and bones. An actor he is, but—values, values, values! He, too, received a hearty greeting.

The other rôles were well distributed. It was pleasant to welcome an old and tried artist like Marcel Journet and to note that Alfred Maguenat and Gustave Huberdeau—also no stranger—may be counted upon in the future. Altogether an auspicious opening of the Chicago Opera season, and we hope that we are to hear such masterpieces as "Louise" and "Pelleas and Melisande." And Mary Garden.

SOCIETY IN BRILLIANT ARRAY.

Pink the Ruling Color in Costumes —Chicago Represented.

Society was largely represented last night at the opening of the Chicago opera season. The assembly, which packed the Lexington Theatre, was much more brilliant in costumes in comparison with last season, when war cast its gloom. A welcome transformation made by the opera management in the matter of lighting was the soft pink indirect glow in the boxes.

Pink, in varying shades, seemed to be the predominating note in color, in the costuming, splashed with green. There were new faces in the boxes, for quite a colony of Chicago society folk attended the premiere.

People came early, and the stalls and boxes were filled when the curtain rose on the colorful scene of the Acropolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn were in their box before Miss Garden made her first entrance, also Clarence H. Mackay and his two daughters, the Misses Katherine and Ellin Mackay. Mme. Alda watched the performance from the second tier of boxes, and nearby was Frieda Hempel, who is now Mrs. William Kahn; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Miss Miriam Harriman, Cortlandt Field Bishop, Mrs. Herbert Shipman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hastings, Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, and Mrs. Hamilton Wilkes Carey were in the boxes.

Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. C. H. Truax, Mrs. Henry Devereaux Whiton, Mrs. Edward B. Close, Mrs. Albert Cornell, Mrs. C. P. H. Gilbert, Mrs. E. R. Campbell, Mrs. Anderson T. Herd, Mrs. James McLean, Mrs. Newbold Morris, Mrs E. Parmelee Prentice, and Mrs. Alexander M. Tiers were among those who have boxes for the season. Harold F. McCormick, President of the Chicago Opera Association, and Mrs. McCormick entertained in their box.

Other boxholders included Mr. and Mrs. William Wade Hinshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron W. Bastedo, J. B. Cobb, Manton B. Metcalf, Max Pam, Vice President of the association; I. M. Stettenheim, Cleofonte Campanini, and F. W. Woolworth.

FLAG LOWERED BY ERROR.

Niblack Reports on Italian Treatment of American Emblem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Rear Admiral Niblack, commanding American naval forces in the Adriatic, informed the Navy Department today that the action of the Italian authorities in hauling down the American flag on the steamer Dinara at the port of Jaissa on Jan. 16 was due to a misunderstanding and that the Italian commander had apologized and ordered the flag restored. His message revealed that the interallied as well as the American flag had been lowered.

"The Italian Government," said Admiral Niblack's dispatch, "has been authorized by the Adriatic Naval Committee to requisition all Austro-Hungarian merchant vessels to be controlled by the Allied Maritime Council. The refusal of some of the crew on particular ships to go to sea under the Italian flag is attributed to ill feeling toward the Italian people.

"The Naval Committee has adopted another plan to guarantee that the ships go into service, numbering six in all, three of which were requisitioned by the United States, to fly the United States flag at the main and the interallied flags aft. Similar treatment will be accorded the other three ships to be requisitioned by the British. Naval representatives have given written permits to each ship to proceed to sea.

"The Italian authorities had not been advised on the decision of the Naval Committee in connection with the steamship Dinara. The United States and allied flags were hauled down by the Italian senior officer and the Italian colors hoisted, the ship not being seized. After the matter was referred to the Italian senior officer and he stated that the act was done through ignorance, and after expressing regret, the United States and allied flags were again hoisted."

Bill in to Bar Berger.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A bill designed to prevent Victor Berger of Milwaukee, Representative-elect from Wisconsin, from being seated as a member of the House, was introduced today by Representative Clark of Florida, Democrat, and referred to the House Judiciary Committee. Berger recently was convicted of violation of the Espionage act.

Nance O'Neil Acts at the Palace.

Nance O'Neil, making her first appearance on the local stage since "The Wanderer," is at the Palace Theatre this week in "The Common Standard," an interesting one-act play of anonymous authorship which gives its star the opportunity for varied acting. Alfred Hickman and Dodson Mitchell appear with her.

The new bill at the Palace also includes such well-known entertainers as Belle Baker, Trixie Friganza, the Morgan dancers, and Frisco. Frances Kennedy sings, and Harry Langdon and Felix Bernard and Jack Duffy are among others who appear.

Caruso in "La Forza del Destino."

Five of the Metropolitan season's recent novelties, as well as two revivals from last year, are in the current week's gala bills on Broadway, where last evening Caruso appeared again in Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," with Miss Ponselle, Mr. De Luca, and others of Mr. Gatti's original cast. Though it was the opera's fifth performance, the Metropolitan was filled to the limit, and the standees' line before the performance began reached around the house to Seventh Avenue.

MUSIC NOTES.

Magdeleine Brard, the young French pianist who was to have made her debut yesterday in Aeolian Hall, will appear instead next Tuesday, Feb. 4.

Leopold Auer is ill with an attack of pleurisy and has postponed his recital of Beethoven's violin sonatas this evening at Aeolian Hall.

Anna Bussert, who was in the last "Robin Hood" revival, alternating with Bessie Abbott as Maid Marian, will sing that role again at the Park next Monday.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

A Corneille Comedy.

LE MENTEUR, a farce by Pierre Corneille, at the Theatre du Vieux Colombier.

GorQato	Robert Bogaert
Dorante	Henri Dhurtal
Alcippe	Marcel Millet
Philiste	Jean Sarment
Clarice	Lucienne Bogaert
Lucrece	Mme. Bresange
Isabelle	Jane Lory
Sabine	Renee Bouquet
Cliton	Romain Bouquet
Lycas	Henry Bart

In his offering for the present week M. Copeau presents the great Corneille in the less familiar side, which is to say the comedy side, of his art. "Le Menteur," like "Le Cid," derives from the Spanish, being imitated (and, indeed, very largely appropriated) from Lope de Vega. And, like "Le Cid," it is none the worse for that. In fact, it is probably the best of the Corneille comedies. Capably produced and acted, it interested last night's audience throughout, and though nobody's sides were endangered from laughing, it proved genially and abundantly amusing.

The liar has long been a favorite figure on the stage and has ranged from the swashbuckling, vainglorious Gascon of romantic comedy to the furtive and terror-stricken husband of the modern farce of amorous escapade. Corneille's hero leans toward the romantic type.

An innocent youth, just returned from the university to Paris, and standing much in awe of the fashionable great world, Dorante clothes his ignorance and timidity in tale after tale as to his achievements, involving a perfectly simple situation in ever deepening mists of mendacity. He lies glibly, delightedly, gloriously, and with a wealth of picturesque detail that inspires his valet with awe and wonder—and sometimes even commands his belief. Finally, having lied himself into disgrace with one and all, he turns to and lies himself out, thus affording the play a happy end. The moral is delivered by the valet. Lying is a dangerous and difficult art, and if you would succeed at it you must model yourself on Dorante!

The performance of Henri Dhurtal in the title part is more remarkable for abounding physical vitality and fluent gesture than for psychology. It fills the eye but rarely illumines the mind. Romain Bouquet, who plays his valet, has a greater measure of comic inspiration. As the true character of his young master dawns upon him and develops before his eyes, his wonder, admiration, and delight are evinced with strokes of miming as subtle as they are laughable.

Robert Bogaert is Dorante's perplexed father. Lucienne Bogaert and Mme. Bresagne present the two young ladies to whom he pays his equivocal addresses, and Renée Bouquet is the clever and pretty maid who furthers the romance.

Tinoco Fears Revolt in Costa Rica.

MANAGUA, Jan. 27.—Travelers arriving from Costa Rica report that the Tinoco Government has a large number of men under arms and that a very strict censorship is being enforced. Personal baggage is searched, and there is a great delay in the transmission of telegrams from Costa Rica. The travelers say that President Tinoco evidently fears an invasion of Costa Rica by Costa Ricans driven from the country when he gained control there.

BUYS MOORE ORIENTAL ART.

Brooklyn Museum Pays $2,450 for Jadeite Vase—Returns, $32,480.

Returns for the first day of the sale of the Rufus E. Moore rare Oriental art treasures were $32,480. The Brooklyn Museum was one of the purchasers, paying $2,450 for a large imperial green and white jadeite vase, 11¼ inches high, with dome cover and bird upon the top. Around the body of the vase was encircled with an archaic dragon motif band, and the cover with a band of palm leaves. The conventionalized dragon handles supported each a loose ring, and the vase was cut from one block of the jadeite. A. Augustus Healy, President of the Museum, made several purchases.

H. J. Barrett paid $2,000 for a white jade tripod censor and cover, and William Richmond gave $700 for a carving of red and white cornelian.

A hanging vase, with a tall and heavy handle, supporting the vase from side loop handles, with a cover attached to the large handle by a seven-loop chain, all carved from one block of the purest pork-fat white jadite, went to H. Grimes for $3,000. This is said to be the largest and finest specimen of its kind. It is set in an elaborately carved teak wood frame. A beautiful green jade brush holder, 5⅞ inches high, and 7⅝ inches in diameter, beautifully carved in high relief and undercut from one block of moss-green translucent jade, went to F. J. Pope for $3,300, the highest price of the afternoon.

A large low white jade dish on four short feet with heavy handles, in the centre a branch of peaches and leaves and a bat cut in high relief, the outside carved in low relief, said to be the finest speciment of jade from the Prince Kung collection, went to H. Grimes for $1,200. A magnificent vase of flawless crystal, 15 inches high, with cover, with vigorously sculptured designs in high relief and undercut carving, went to F. J. Pope for $1,300. One of the mipортant pieces of the sale, a French altar tabernacle of solid silver with columns and windows of rock crystal with intaglio carving, made for a relic of the Blessed Virgin, went to Seaman, agent, for $1,100.

Blue and white porcelains and old Chinese bronzes will be sold this afternoon.

LOUIS XVI. SET, $23,500.

Furniture Brings Top Price at Sale of Allen Art Collection.

In the sale of the collection of objects of art for the account of A. Mitchell Palmer, Allen Property Custodian, at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon, the Metropolitan Museum of Art was a purchaser, paying $470 for a last of the 18th century bust of terra cotta, a young man, life size, showing the influence of Houdon. The big price of the day was paid for a Louis XVI. set of furniture, eight pieces, the silk covering embroidered after designs by Philip Lascelle, which went to Max Bruell for $23,500. Three long draperies of the embroidered silk were included.

F. L. Wagner paid $600 for a fifteenth century Florentine stucco relief, the Madonna and Child, in the style of the Della Robbias; a pair of late seventeenth century walnut stands went to J. E. Brown for $525; a Florentine walnut cassone, second half of the fifteenth century, to F. L. Warburg for $1,400; a set of six English middle eighteenth century Chippendale chairs went to Ginsburg Levy for $1,000; a gilt-bronze mantel clock, Louis XVI., went to S. J. Bloomingdale for $430; P. W. French & Co. paid $1,550 for a rosewood table of the Louis XV. period, inlaid, with leather top; a rosewood and gilt bronze table, leather top Louis XV. went to M. Magnus for $2,600.

THE COVENANT OF PEACE.

The world will have full knowledge of the constitution of the League of Nations only when the Peace Conference shall have come to an agreement, shall have adopted it and given it to the public in the final form. From Paris dispatches and other sources much information, however, is already available. Great Britain and the United States, it is declared, have already come to an agreement about the organization. It is practically certain that the proposal of a sort of super-sovereignty has been abandoned. There will be no parliament of nations vested with power to impose its laws and decrees upon members of the League. Neither will the League maintain a large military and naval force to execute its decrees and bring offending nations to terms. No member nation will be obligated to make war upon any other nation or to furnish troops for such a war. It is our belief that the representatives of no important nation at Paris have advocated the adoption of either of these features. They have been the chief target of critics of the League of Nations project; criticisms should be silenced by their disappearance from the field of discussion.

It is our understanding that the League will be, first of all, a covenant between the member nations not to go to war until the cause of dispute has been submitted to arbitration or to the Conference created by the League States; nor until the Conference has made its report and decision. We do not see how any Senator of the United States can quarrel with the League of Nations whose basic principle is already embodied in treaties of arbitration now in force between this country and more than a score of other nations. The successful negotiation of these treaties was due largely to the untiring labors of Mr. BRYAN, although the principle had received wide approval prior to his official relation to the matter. Between Aug. 7, 1913, and Sept. 15, 1914, Mr. BRYAN signed treaties with twenty-six important nations, including Great Britain, France, Italy, China, and many South American States. In these treaties provision is made for an International Commission composed of five members. We quote here the substantive provisions of the Arbitration Treaties:

> Article I.—The High Contracting Parties agree that all disputes between them, of every nature whatsoever, to the settlement of which previous arbitration treaties or agreements do not apply in their terms or are not applied in fact, shall, when diplomatic methods of adjustment have failed, be referred for investigation and report to a permanent International Commission, to be constituted in the manner prescribed in the next succeeding article; and they agree not to declare war or begin hostilities during such investigation and before the report is submitted.
> Article III.—In case the High Contracting Parties shall have failed to adjust a dispute by diplomatic methods, they shall at once refer it to the International Commission for investigation and report. The International Commission may, however, spontaneously offer its services to that effect, and in such case it shall notify both Governments and request their co-operation in the investigation.

The assurance of peace here, as it will be in the League of Nations, is that submission to arbitration, to the findings of an International Conference or Commission, necessarily involving a delay of many months or a full year, will have a powerful, usually an effective, tendency to prevent war. It may be said that it is an imperfect guarantee. That is true of any contract, for all covenants may be broken. But the incentive to compliance and good faith, the penalties certain to be visited upon transgressors, are immeasurably greater than they could have been imagined to be at the time these Arbitration Treaties were signed. The penalty for violation is so terrible that we may fairly call it compelling to peace. Germany made a "scrap of paper" of the treaty in which she gave her joint guarantee of the inviolability of Belgian territory. Is there any nation on earth that would venture to bring down upon itself the awful punishment inflicted upon Germany for her breach of faith? By that act and other acts of like perfidy she became an outlaw among nations, and the nations rose against her to destroy her military might and punish her. They did what they set out to do in a manner no German will ever forget.

Crimes not conceivable cannot be said to constitute a public danger. It is not conceivable that any nation a member of the League will have the hardihood, will be insane enough, to enter upon the path which Germany followed to her destruction. No dynastic ambition, no land hunger, no imaginable dream of territorial, political or economic expansion would prompt any Government of reasonable men, any God-fearing people, to violate this pledge to refrain from making war until its cause of quarrel had been submitted to impartial arbitrators. That could not have been said in the past. It can be said now because the war has created a new spirit among nations. That is the world's compensation for the war, for if it had not raised up the new spirit, if it had left the old arrogance unchastised, if it had not made every nation feel that it was in a sense its brother nation's keeper, the war would have been an unmixed evil, a calamity without any balance of advantage. The new spirit is, in its essence, a more profound sense of justice, of respect for law and for the public opinion of the civilized world. That is the great sanction behind the League of Nations. Beyond all doubt it will be powerful enough to make war vastly less probable, practically to guarantee peace to the world. There are other sanctions, other powers, too, for it is contemplated that the League shall use the practically irresistible weapon of decrees of non-intercourse against offending nations, and that in the last extremity military force may be employed. We may be sure that for their own safety and the sanctity of the covenant great nations abundantly able to undertake that work of compulsion would willingly contribute ships, men, and munitions for its performance. The League of Nations project has now taken form and has reached a stage of advancement where criticism should give way to advocacy and helpful suggestion.

OLD FRIENDS.

Does Senator PENROSE, who palliates his "reactionary" qualities and practices by a great ability and experience and a considerable sense of humor, when he isn't making set regular Republican speeches, repeat "Woodman, spare that tree!" as the accomplished Forester who was a candidate against him in 1914 swings the axe and seeks to clear the Senate Committee on Finance of that old gnarled root of hunkerism? At any rate, it is a happiness to see the Forester emerge from the woods. He had not been heard of for some time. 'Twas feared that he was lost.

That BOIES PENROSE is more incorrigibly a son of Belial than any other Old Guard Republican; that a tariff bill which he might have a finger in would be higher and wickeder than any other disciple of the heaven-high protection school would brew; that BOIES PENROSE is by right of succession heir of all the iniquities of Uncle JOE CANNON, and that Progressive babies are now scared to sleep by the mention of the dire Pennsylvanian, as formerly by that of the dire Danville name—these are facts, suppositions, legends, superstitions, according to the taste and fancy and shade of politics of the infidel or believer therein.

Still, as the returning Forester winds his silver horn and blows "The Hunting of the Penrose," those of us who halloo for the huntsman and those who commiserate his quarry may meet in the unity of one noble thought. Our Washington dispatches enumerate Mr. PENROSE among the Republican Elder Statesmen who think that Mr. MANN shouldn't be the Speaker of the next House. If, for the good of the party, Mr. MANN is to make the great renunciation, why shouldn't Mr. PENROSE be called upon to consent to martyrdom and give up the Chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee in the next Congress? The voices to persuade him must come, however, from the Republican citadel, not from the greenwood tree.

ARMIES OF OCCUPATION.

When the United States entered the war an obligation was assumed to play the game to the end, to use a homely phrase. No patriotic American would have it otherwise. After victory was won in the field it would become necessary to enforce the armistice terms, and later to make sure that the peace conditions were not evaded by the forces which the enemy still had at his disposal and within call. Until he proved his good faith by his works it would not be the part of wisdom to withdraw all the allied troops from his territory.

Germany is the enemy to be watched and suspected, and, judged by her "bad eminence" in the war until her armies were outfought and beaten, she cannot be trusted now. This should be clear to thoughtful Americans, and pride in their army should restrain them from demanding that every unit be brought home without regard to the performance of a manifest duty. A day or two ago Representative GARLAND of Pennsylvania introduced a resolution providing for "the return of the soldiers by every "transportation facility that can be "made available." In his remarks upon the resolution Mr. GARLAND said: "There is nothing around them but "rain and tombstones and ruin. There "are plenty of French and British "there to police the country." It may be unpleasant for American units to remain "over there" and help to wind up the war, but perhaps it is even less congenial to the French and British, who had more than four years of it. If we took a hand in the struggle solely to save them, Mr. GARLAND's resolution might have the color of reason, but there was a good deal of self-interest in our participation. Then we should shirk none of the consequences. Of course, we shall do nothing of the kind. Allies once, allies to the end of the ordeal!

Most of our troops will be brought home; those remaining to share the vigil of our allies will obey orders like the good soldiers they are. Otherwise one might despair of the loyalty and steadiness of a democratic army. In a few days, or very soon, the Peace Conference will probably report upon this subject. Anticipating the views of its own Commissioners, Sir DOUGLAS HAIG, Sir ERIC GEDDES, and General HENRY H. WILSON, about the British contribution, the British War Office has issued a preliminary statement about the responsibility of the Government. It says:

> The task to be undertaken is the formation and maintenance of armies of occupation of moderate size, compared with what we now have, but of the highest discipline and efficiency, which will discharge our duty and safeguard British interests during the period which must elapse before the ordinary peace-time volunteer army can be created. The pay of the armies must be substantially advanced, while the present armies will continue to be demobilised as quickly as possible.

In another paragraph it is stated that "the United States, France, and "Italy will act with her [Great Brit-"ain] in maintaining the common in-"terests and securing the advantages "gained together." This policy has, of course, been decided on by the Governments of the Allies. It may be supposed that the American force will consist in part of regulars who enlisted before the United States entered the war and whose terms will not soon expire. In the selection of additions to this nucleus the War Department is likely to turn to units that have never been on the firing line and suffered casualties in battle. If Great Britain can increase the pay of her soldiers in the army of occupation the United States can afford to do the same. It should not be difficult to fill the ranks with officers and men willing to serve for the "emergency" contemplated by the Selective Service act.

LOWER LIVING COSTS.

THE ANNALIST's index number of the food cost of living for last week fell below the average of the year thus far, but still remains above that for any other war year. Index numbers are interesting because they are beyond control, and are neither bought nor sold. The same reasons which make them interesting to consumers make them uninteresting to those market operators who pay more attention to securities than to commodities. THE ANNALIST's food index number is calculated from the prices of twenty-five commodities representative of a family's consumption. As yet these twenty-five commodities are not all cheaper to the family buyer, but they cannot fall in the index number without first falling in the open market, and finally in the retailers' shops.

Nothing will help this along so well as close buying, and continuance of that thrift which finally has piled up supplies so that the home market is overstocked. Prices have not begun to fall because the demand is less, for the world is still short of the good things of life. The demand is not absolutely less, but it is less in proportion to the supplies which will be taken at the prohibitive price level. There is not too much food, but there is more than will be bought at the level prevailing before last week, and holders are seeking buyers.

The chief cause is the armistice. It has not produced food for the destitute, but it has altered the conditions under which they have been fed by charity. Last year we exported two billion dollars' worth of food, four times the pre-war average, and double any war year. It was not possible to take such quantities out of our supplies without reducing them. And since many of the purchases were made with foreign tax funds, the prices rose even more than the quantities taken might have raised them if the food had been bought economically, with reference to profit and loss. The armistice operated to release foreign hoards, released shipping for carriage of surplus supplies to where deficiencies existed, and lessened the demands for the support of our armies in proportion that they are brought back home.

It will be months yet before there can be new foreign harvests, but anticipation of them will depress prices before they can be garnered. It is sure that the cost of living will fall further, for the world cannot support from industry the prices caused by the recklessness of cost resulting from war and famine. The world's present accessible excess is here, and from now on less of it will be given away, and more of it will be bought with reference to payment by those who eat it. But the decline now begun should not excuse extravagance or waste, nor is it likely to. There is a fall in war wages as well as in food cost, and both falls will proceed together in rough relation to each other, slowly but persistently through the months until normal relations are restored.

DEMOCRACY LIMITED.

At first one might suppose that the militant suffragists have suffered a sad relapse from immutable principle in the interest of momentary expediency. Having failed to annoy the President into forcing the passage of the Federal woman suffrage amendment, they now appeal to the people; those ladies who suffered for their convictions in Occoquan Jail are to tour the country on a train known to the profane as the Prison Special, to the elect as the Democracy Limited, "to make it clear to the people that "the Administration is responsible for "the fact that American women are "forced to endure imprisonment in "their effort to secure the passage of "the amendment."

Of course, the women endured imprisonment—if that verb may be applied to an action which savored much of passionate desire for a not too onerous martyrdom—because they tried to make the President too uncomfortable to work at a time when the nation was at war. At this assault at once upon the majesty and the welfare of the United States public sentiment rose to the President's relief, and it can hardly be doubted that the militants lost more than they gained. But their new method does not mean the abandonment of terrorism; it is only a change in objective. The militants will go from State to State stirring up trouble for recalcitrant Senators; eventually they may be able to bulldoze enough of them to pass the amendment.

It is quite in the new theory of government which has lately been demonstrated with such distinction by the Anti-Saloon League. The Democracy Limited goes forth to do its work on a limited democracy, a democracy modified by terrorism. State rights have lately been abridged in order to make the North conform to the standards necessary in the South, and the militant suffragists, observing the triumph of the militant prohibitionists, can hardly be blamed for seeing some hope that a still further abridgment may be effected to make the South follow the lead of the North. The secret of the State has been divulged—that the nation can be dominated by well-paid flying squadrons of agitators. Nobody is likely to forget this fact for some years to come, for everybody will use the method. It is announced that in the cultural centre of Syracuse University there has been born the organization which will conduct the crusade for the anti-tobacco amendment to the Constitution. The W. C. T. U. is actively behind it, the Y. M. C. A., though it has taken down the "No Smoking" signs, is furnishing co-operation by its propaganda on the dire effects of nicotine, which ought to make considerable impression on the returning soldiers. Under the circumstances, the passage of the woman suffrage amendment, the anti-tobacco amendment, or any other amendment is only a question of the persistence, the affluence, and the implacability of its supporters.

GERMANS AT THE POLLS.

It is probably fruitless to attempt to make any comparison between the popular vote for members of the Reichstag in 1912 and for members of the National Assembly in 1919. The age limit of the electors has been lowered from 24 to 20. The franchise has been given to women, who must be greatly, but we don't know how greatly, in excess of the males. The exact population is not known. In December, 1910, it was nearly 65,000,000. At the general election of 1912 the number of registered electors was 14,441,436, of voters at the polls 12,260,626. The Socialists, then united, got 4,250,401; the Centrists, 1,996,843; the National Liberals, 1,662,670; the Radicals, 1,497,041; the Conservatives, 1,126,270.

For the general election of Jan. 19 the "full returns" from Geneva do not include the votes cast by two or three very insignificant minority parties. The returns show a total vote of nearly 27,000,000, to be exact 26,931,585, of which the Majority Socialists cast 11,112,450, the Democrats 5,552,930, the Christian People's Party, Centrists that were, 5,838,804; the Nationalists, 2,739,196; the Independent Socialists, 2,188,305. The actual total vote cast was considerably more than double that of 1913; yet Alsace-Lorraine is in French hands, and, presumably, the Polish provinces and Danish districts contributed only genuine German votes.

Twenty-seven million is a tremendous vote for a population which, we may assume to be no greater than, which may not be as great as, it was in 1910, a population of 65,000,000, and in which an unusual proportion of young men must have been killed off. In 1916 the population of the United States was estimated by the Census Bureau at 101,032,339. The total Presidential vote was 18,514,350. Universal woman suffrage might swell the total to something over 30,000,000. The non-voters in the United States are a legion. In Germany the interest of most in saving, and of some in ruining, orderly government "brought out" what must be regarded as a surprisingly large vote.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Commendable Form of Self-Reliance. Without intending in any way to deny or minimize the responsibilities with regard to the men who fought in France that rest on those who remained at home, one still can praise warmly the measures already taken in some of the military units to insure that the members of them shall have employment, and, if they need it, care, after their return. This has been done to some extent by many, perhaps by most, of the regiments that have been on active service, but the officers and men of the 77th Division seem to have undertaken this important task in a particularly systematic manner.

The result is that practically every man in the division already knows that a place is waiting for him on arrival here, and is therefore spared the anxieties felt by others who have heard the reports about the difficulties encountered by returning soldiers when they look for work.

The officers of the division are united in a divisional association for the purpose in part of providing, and in part of finding, positions for all whose financial future is not assured by the promises made to them by employers before going abroad. Moreover, the effort is not only to see to it that the men get their old places or others of the same kind, but there is also recognition that many of them feel that their military training and experience have qualified them to fill much better positions. The divisional association treats this as a worthy ambition, and is doing effectively what it can to facilitate the achievement of the desired end.

Another activity of the association is in the way of marking and caring for the graves of the men who fell in France. It is not waiting for this to be done by the Government, or by civilian societies hereafter to be formed, though of course there will be full co-operation with such agencies when they come into operation.

Confidently Facing the Future. As already observed, action like that of the 77th Division Association is no excuse for stay-at-homes to forget the debt they owe to the men who did the fighting. But there is no help so good as self-help, and when self-help is possible it is to be commended and encouraged not because help from others thereby is made unnecessary, but because there is always a moral advantage to be derived from doing for one's self what one can, without waiting for others to do it for one.

This rule should not be followed with an iron rigidity. There is nothing disgraceful or humiliating in the acceptance of well-earned assistance in time of need, and none could earn it better than have the men who so cheerfully and bravely plunged into the horrors of the war with Germany. But the same courage they showed then they will show now, and it is highly characteristic of them that they purpose still to do their full share in solving the economic problems that confront them in common with other Americans. With peace returned, they prefer to be as little as may be a special class of Americans.

Newspaper Work in Siberia. Much attention has been accorded to the dispatches which THE TIMES correspondent in Siberia, CARL W. ACKERMAN, is now sending to this paper. The getting of news in that country is now work of the hardest and most dangerous kind, and even after it has been obtained the task of getting it to the cable stations is one attended with enormous difficulty. The distances to be covered are so great that even in the best of times the would-be chronicler of Siberian happenings cannot expect to get them all with any promptness, and now, with everything in confusion amid bitterly antagonistic activities and agencies, the task requires next to superhuman energy. This, it is hardly an exaggeration to say, Mr. ACKERMAN has displayed, and if his dispatches are sometimes over a month old when they finally arrive here that is less wonderful than that they arrive at all. Naturally he has come to share the feelings, the anxieties, and the indignations of the leaders whom he has been able to credit with an honest purpose to overcome the powers of evil in Russian territory and to restore civilization in that distracted land. As naturally he views the Siberian situation from the standpoint of the various peoples and forces now undergoing such hardships and perils there, and he is urgent that aid and relief shall come to them from the Allies before it is too late to save them. He remembers the promises that were made, the hopes that were encouraged, and immediate intervention seems to him the only remedy for the evils that surround him.

The Military Intelligence List.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If Professor Clarence R. Skinner of Tufts—not Clarence "Aurelius"—was, as you say editorially, a student in Berlin University, 1896-9, it must have been when he was a ten-year-old in knee breeches.

I have no sympathy with pacifism or Bolshevism, but if, as I understand, Professor C. R. Skinner's chief offense was in forming one of a committee of defense for a preacher accused under the espionage act—the law presuming that every accused is entitled to defense—that seems small cause for affixing what may prove a life-long stigma to the name of a useful and honorable man.

The only legal basis of a blacklist by publication is conviction of specific offenses by legal process. In at least a dozen cases this list of sixty-two names is a cruel libel.

J. H.

New York, Jan. 27, 1919.

TO LIEUT. COL. JOHN McRAE.

(Died in Flanders Jan. 28, 1918.)

Others have fought, like you, and some have sung
Of scarlet bloom upon the fields of death;
And we have watched, and we have listened, wrung
By helpless feeling, till the quickening breath
Of Justice fanned our listless wills to flame,
And pushed to proof the lovers of her name.

From yours and from your comrades' falling hands
We caught the torch, thank God, not quite too late!
Oh, we were shamed indeed, if His commands
From faithful lips like yours had had no weight—
If we had broken faith with you who died,
And, in the breaking, no disgrace descried!

Now, though your body lies on well-won fields,
Your eager spirit still its power wields
To mind us of the task so well begun,
To warn us lest your toil be all undone,
The pageantry of peace be pasteboard show,
While waiting horrors skulk in leashed row!

Speak to our souls in every sunset hue:
Bid dawn, returning, spread your faith anew!
Memorial cross, dismantled gun, affirm
The power of wills like yours to end the term
Of mortal greed, inhuman hate and pride,
And found the Reign of Truth for which you died!

NEW M'ADOO PLEA FOR RAIL CONTROL

Says Development of Inland Waterways System Is Absolutely Dependent Upon It.

5-YEAR PERIOD ESSENTIAL

Necessary for Co-ordination of Railroads and Waterways with American Merchant Marine.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Jan. 25.—W. G. McAdoo, former Director General of Railroads and former Secretary of the Treasury, made public today a telegram in which he urged five-year Government control of the railroads as a necessity for the development of inland waterways and for the co-ordination of the railroads and waterways with the new American merchant marine.

The telegram, addressed to Albert Krell, Chairman of the Miami and Erie Improvement Committee of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, was sent in response to an invitation to attend an inland waterways meeting today at Defiance, Ohio. It read:

"Regret it is impossible for me to attend your inland waterways meeting at Defiance, Jan. 27.

"It seems to me futile to expend great sums of money on the development of our inland waterways unless our Government adopts an intelligent policy about railroad control. The future of waterways development is absolutely dependent upon a Government control which will enforce the operation of the waterways and the railroads, and a co-ordinated and articulated system which will give the people the benefits of an efficient combination of water and rail facilities. This cannot be accomplished under the present railroad law, which provides that the railroads cannot be controlled by the Government for a longer period than twenty-one months after the return of peace. Within a twenty-one months' period no substantial development of existing waterways can be made nor can their operation in so brief a period afford any adequate test of their value.

"Upon the return of the railroads to private ownership, which must be made within the 21 months period, as the present law provides, the cut-throat competition of the railroads under private control with the partially developed waterways will effectively destroy water transportation as heretofore and the people's investment in these facilities will continue to be of little if any value.

"I have urged the Congress to extend the period of Federal control of the railroads for five years because that will give us time to develop some of the most important existing water routes, co-ordinate them with the railroads and prove their worth as a part of a great American transportation system.

"I also feel that the Government should control the railroads and the inland waterways for a period of five years so that they may in turn be co-ordinated with our Government merchant marine which has been built at a cost of more than $2,000,000,000 and which under existing law the Government controls for a five-year period.

"Unless we look at this great problem with vision and from the standpoint solely of the American people instead of from the standpoint of the selfish interest of private railroad owners, private steamship owners, private shippers, private investors, or any other single class, we shall not measure up to our obligations to the American people nor realize the great opportunities and destiny that lie ahead of us.

"The confusion of counsel about the railroad problem, made daily more evident by the great variety of conflicting views and opinions now being presented at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate at Washington, makes it more and more clear that the course of wisdom, sagacity and prudence is to extend Government control of the railroads for five years, that our inland waterways be developed to the largest possible extent during that period, and that these inland waterways and rail facilities be co-ordinated with our great merchant marine in an endeavor to get for American business enterprise a fair participation in the benefits of world commerce.

"No part of our Union is more vitally concerned in this question than the great States of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, as well as those bordering on the Lakes, the oceans and the Gulf. Many of their leading ports will continue to be starved and their development arrested unless they are given a chance under the impartial control by the Government of rail and steamship facilities.

"The powerful and sleepless forces of reaction are solidly arrayed against this plan. They will defeat it unless the American people are aroused to the situation. The time is short. The matter is vital. My earnest suggestion to you and your associates is that you press upon the attention of the Congress the importance of the five-year control in order that the things you want to accomplish may be brought about.

"W. G. McADOO."

SCORNS PINCHOT'S ATTACK.

Penrose Likens Progressive to Cheap Sideshow on Wrong Side of Fence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Senator Penrose displayed seeming indifference today to the open letter written to him by Gifford Pinchot, former Progressive leader, calling for his withdrawal as claimant, under the seniority rule, to the Chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee under the Republican reorganization in the next Congress. He seemed unruffled over Mr. Pinchot's insistence that for Mr. Penrose to assume the Chairmanship would mean the ruin of the Republican Party's hopes in 1920.

"I hardly consider Pinchot's open letter as worthy of being dignified by a reply," said Mr. Penrose. "The most charitable treatment that can be accorded him is to throw over him the mantle of oblivion. The statements in his letter are maliciously false or relate to matters that were thoroughly thrashed out in the Senatorial campaign in Pennsylvania, when I received a plurality about as large as either of my opponents had votes.

"I don't know of any responsible political party in the United States which would welcome Mr. Pinchot into its ranks. In this busy era Mr. Pinchot seems to me to be about as important as the cheap sideshow outside the fence of a county fair. He is like the tattooed man or the cigarette fiend."

An effort was made to ascertain the sentiment of Republican-Progressives in the Senate as to Mr. Pinchot's attack upon Mr. Penrose, but no comment was forthcoming. The fight against Mr. Penrose, it was said, would be confined to the Republican caucus of the Senate and not be aired outside.

URGES TAX ON SOFT DRINKS.

Mayors' Committee Believes It Would Replace Revenues on Liquors

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—A tax on soft drinks to make up the deficit in revenue the State will face because of national prohibition is one of the recommendations of the subcommittee of the Taxation Committee of the New York State Conference of Mayors and other city officials. Taxing of soft drinks, it is hoped, by the committee, may prevent an increase in taxes on realty.

A State income tax and a business tax also are included in the recommendations which will be acted upon by the main committee of the conference probably next week. The subcommittee suggests that the Emerson 3 per cent. tax on mercantile establishments be amended to make it applicable to all corporations doing business in the State.

KEEP FORD CONTEST ALIVE.

Senate Sends Resolution to Committee—Newberry Files Countercharges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—By a strict party vote of 37 Democrats to 26 Republicans the Senate today referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses the resolution to investigate the election of Truman H. Newberry as United States Senator from Michigan. This action means that the matter will be kept alive during the remainder of the present session of Congress. Senator Lodge appealed from the decision of the chair to commit the resolution to the committee, and it was upon this appeal that the Senate voted.

Mr. Newberry filed with the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which has been investigating the allegations of extravagance in expenditure made against Mr. Newberry in the election, a statement in which he accused Henry Ford, his opponent, with having resorted, through his campaign manager, to "elaborate, expensive, and pretentious expenditure, unknown before in history," in his own campaign. Mr. Newberry insisted that the present Congress has no jurisdiction to investigate the election of a Senator to the next Congress.

Mr. Newberry attacked what he characterized as a "trick" of the Ford campaign managers to control the Michigan election. Agents and detectives of Mr. Ford, he said, have traveled through the State since the election collecting evidence upon which to base charges of extravagance and fraud on the part of the Newberry managers. In some instances, he said, they had used Red Cross nurses to serve summonses upon voters, the nurses not knowing that they were being "drawn away from their patriotic duty."

Myron H. Walker, the United States District Attorney at Grand Rapids, a Democratic appointee, Mr. Newberry said, used a Ford stenographer to take statements of witnesses as to votes cast at the election, to be used against Mr. Newberry. Red Cross ambulances, he said, were impressed into service in this work.

Mr. Newberry cited in particular one "very expensive, elaborate, and pretentious booklet prepared and distributed to a number estimated at about a half million," the cost of printing which "must have been $75,000," and the postage "from $10,000 to $15,000."

"Two occasions at least can be shown," he continues, "where Democratic postmasters had mail carriers distributing Ford literature the Sunday before election and withholding other mail from distribution until the Ford political mail a day or two before election had been distributed."

He declared it would be shown that the Ford workers "insisted on voting men who were not registered, and in some cases, men whose citizenship was doubted."

EXAMINE BURLESON TODAY.

Republican Members Primed with Questions on Wire Control.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Republican members of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads were primed tonight with questions to ask Postmaster General Burleson when he appears tomorrow morning before the committee in support of the Moon resolution to extend the period of Federal control over the telegraph and telephone systems. The Republicans contend that there is no necessity for retention of Government operation, now that the armistice is signed, and the Postmaster General will be asked why he considers it necessary that the control period be lengthened. Mr. Burleson is a frank advocate of Government ownership.

Few members of the committee seemed sanguine tonight over the prospect of the resolution receiving a favorable report. A countermove will be made in the form of a resolution directing the return of the properties in about four months. Martin B. Madden, who ranks second among the Republican members of the committee, favors such legislation. Judge Moon, Chairman of the committee, who is the author of the extension resolution, believes it will be favorably reported.

The committee had planned to vote on the resolution tomorrow after the appearance of the Postmaster General, but the vote probably will be deferred, as three members, Griest and Heaton, Republicans, and Sterling, Democrat, all of Pennsylvania, are in attendance upon the funeral of their colleague, Representative Edward E. Robbins of Greensburg.

LONGWORTH FOR GILLETT.

Ohio Congressman Throws His Speakership Strength to Easterner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Representative F. H. Gillett of Massachusetts today appeared to have made an appreciable gain in his candidacy for Speaker of the next House. Mr. Longworth of Ohio, one of the candidates, advised his friends that he desired to see Mr. Gillett elected and the rules revised so as to destroy seniority succession in the composition of committees. Mr. Fess, also of Ohio, is still a candidate.

The developments indicated that Mr. Longworth would throw his entire strength to Mr. Gillett, and in the event of his election, which would carry with it a revision of House rules, would fight for the Chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee.

Members from New York, Pennsylvania, and Indiana who had intended supporting Mr. Longworth for Speaker, following his lead, declared for Mr. Gillett. As a result of this trend toward the Massachusetts member a caucus has been called of the Pennsylvania Republicans for Feb. 5. New York Republicans will take up the Speakership fight Feb. 7, and the Indiana delegation will declare itself within the next two weeks. Out of these States, managers for Mr. Gillett say, sufficient votes will be received to place Mr. Gillett in the lead over James R. Mann.

Thus far Mr. Gillett has not been looked upon with favor by the West, and the Republicans may be forced to find a compromise candidate. For such a situation Mr. Fess is keeping himself in readiness, being strong in the West.

8-HOUR DAY FOR WOMEN.

Bill in Albany to Reduce the Present Nine-Hour Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Declaring that an eight-hour day is becoming an established economic fact, Senator Graves of Buffalo introduced in the Senate tonight an Eight-hour Day bill for women. There is at present a nine-hour limit for women workers in factories and mercantile establishments, and the new measure, which is backed by the Women's Joint Legislative Conference, would reduce the working hours a week to forty-eight. In other respects its provisions are practically the same as the present fifty-four-hour a week law.

"A worker can accomplish more in eight hours of intensive endeavor than in nine hours of exhaustive effort, as the firms adopting the eight-hour-day have discovered," said Senator Graves. "If these firms have found the eight-hour day necessary to the health of their men workers, how much more necessary it is for women workers, with their additional home cares, to have the protection of an eight-hour day.

"In many establishments in this State the eight-hour day has been obtained by the men, but women being unorganized, have, unfortunately, been exploited and forced to work, not merely nine hours in factories and mercantile establishments, but longer than that in industries and occupations not covered by the present nine-hour-day law."

DR. KIRCHWEY SENDS PROTEST TO BAKER

Assails "Calumniator" Who Submitted List of Names to Senate Committee.

WANTS ACTION REPUDIATED

Official of Intercollegiate Socialist Society Also Resents Action of Military Intelligence Bureau.

More protests were sent yesterday to Secretary of War Baker and the Senate Investigating Committee against the list of sixty-two more or less prominent men and women submitted to the Senate Committee on Friday by the Intelligence Division of the War Department as being persons whose activities had not been helpful to the country during the war.

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, Federal Director of the United States Bureau of Employment, one of several persons on the list in Government posts, said in a telegram to Secretary of War Baker:

"The calumniator who submitted to the Senate Committee investigating German propaganda a list of persons alleged by him to have been concerned in disloyal activities is, I believe, connected officially with the department of the Government over which you preside and is therefore presumably under your control. Not as a favor but as a matter of the highest privilege and of justice I ask you to repudiate his action and to act immediately for the protection of loyal citizens against baseless and shameless attacks of this character.

"The War Department under your administration has made a notable record of achievement in the conduct of the war. It cannot afford to have its record sullied by assuming responsibility for the vilification and aspersion of citizens as loyal as yourself, and who have with no less devotion than you have shown done all that in them lies to support the aims and activities of the nation in the prosecution of the war."

Evans Clark, Director of the Bureau of Research maintained by the New York Socialist Aldermen, telegraphed to the Senate Committee:

"I wish to protest emphatically against the use of my name in any list connected directly or by implication with German propaganda. My active connection with the Socialist Party is the best proof I can offer of my unqualified condemnation of the Kaiser's régime, and my sympathetic support of the forces in Germany that have so completely overthrown it.

"The Socialist war against the Kaiser began many years before 1917 and continued to the time of his abdication. The Socialist Party is the only party in the United States whose leaders and followers have never been implicated by Government exposures in embarrassing relations with German propagandists. Not 1 cent of German money has ever been nor can be traced into the coffers of the Socialist Party.

"The real reason why Socialists appear on Government proscription lists seems to be that they have not only fought autocracy in Germany but have openly and continually opposed it at home. Mr. Stevenson's index is a good example of the Prussianism that now exists in the United States. That Mr. Stevenson is under the orders of Secretary Baker is a commentary on the failure of so-called 'liberal' leaders in and out of the present Administration."

Harry W. Laidler, Secretary of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society, protested against the use of the name of the society in connection with the list in the following telegram to the Senate Committee:

"In the list of alleged pacifists and radicals submitted by the Military Intelligence Bureau the names of several college professors were included, and, after their names, the words, 'Intercollegiate Socialist Society.' In most instances the only connection that these men have had with the society has been as indorsers of the society's stated object, 'To promote an intelligent interest in socialism among college men and women.'

"The society is an educational, not a political, propagandist organization, having been organized to throw light on the world-wide movement toward industrial democracy known as socialism, in the belief that no intelligent collegian can afford to be ignorant of the movement and that no one can intelligently support or intelligently oppose socialism unless he understands its ideals and aims."

Several other protests were sent to Secretary Baker and the Senate Committee on Saturday.

DEPLORES PACIFIST LIST.

Baker Also Denies Stevenson Was Intelligence Officer or Employe.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Secretary of War Baker today issued a statement in which he asserted that Archibald Stevenson of New York, who last week submitted to the Senate Committee investigating German propaganda a list of pacifists and others called for by the committee, "has never been an officer or an employe of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department." Incidentally, Mr. Baker made the statement that he had no personal sympathy with publication of lists of persons with reference "to their supposed opinions and grouped under general designations such as pacifists."

The statement issued by Mr. Baker is regarded by men closely identified with the Senate Committee's investigation as being more of a criticism of the committee than of Mr. Stevenson, even if not intended as being such a criticism. It will be recalled that the lists submitted by Mr. Stevenson last week were presented in response to a request from the committee.

It was brought out when Mr. Stevenson appeared before the committee as a witness that he had been employed as a special agent of the Department of Justice under A. Bruce Bielaski, and that he was later identified with a bureau of the Military Intelligence Branch of the Army, located in New York City. The statement was made tonight that the particular bureau with which Mr. Stevenson was identified in military intelligence work was the subject of an order issued by Secretary Baker on Friday directing the abandonment and closing down of its work. The order was issued after Mr. Stevenson had appeared on the witness stand before the Senate Committee.

The statement was made by one in a position to know that there could be no doubt that Mr. Steevnson had been identified with that branch of the military intelligence work and that he served without pay from patriotic motives.

"I am receiving telegrams and letters with regard to a list of persons handed to the Senate Committee by Mr. Archibald Stevenson, who is represented in newspaper accounts as a member of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department. Mr. Stevenson has never been an officer or an employe of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department.

"I am told that he and a number of associates have, throughout the war, sought to analyze books and newspaper contributions with a view of determining the opinions of their writers toward the war. I personally have no sympathy with the publication of lists of persons classified with reference to their supposed opinions and grouped under general designations such as 'pacifists' which may mean any one of a dozen things, some of them quite consistent with the finest loyalty to the country, and some of them inconsistent with such loyalty.

"As a matter of fact, the War Department does not undertake to censor the opinions of the people of the United States. It has no authority to classify such opinions.

"In the particular list accredited to Mr. Stevenson there are names of people of great distinction, exalted purity of purpose, and lifelong devotion to the highest interests of America and of mankind. Miss Jane Addams, for instance, lends dignity and greatness to any list in which her name appears."

WILL SHARE PROFITS WITH ITS WORKMEN

Willys-Overland Company Announces Plan for a Division, Half and Half.

PROTECTION FOR CAPITAL

After Fair Return on Investment and Just Compensation to Labor the Rest Will Be Divided.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 27.—A half-and-half profit-sharing plan with employes in all branches was announced today by John N. Willys, President of the Willys-Overland Company. A fair return on the capital invested is a provision included in the grant.

The distribution will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, and will be retroactive, taking effect from Jan. 1, 1919. The company has 10,000 men on its payroll, and all will be affected.

Details of the plan to be announced later, Mr. Willys stated, would show that the profit sharing would be based on the length of time the employe had been with the company. It was estimated by an Overland official that the share of no employe would be less than $100 a year.

The statement issued by Mr. Willys announcing the division reads in part:

"That after permanent capital and permanent labor have each been justly compensated, having due regard to the cost of each, (the cost of capital and the cost of living,) then the additional profits accruing from the joint employment of permanent capital and permanent labor shall be divided equally among them—fifty-fifty.

"This plan the Willys-Overland Company is going to put in operation at the earliest possible moment, profit sharing beginning Jan. 1, 1919, for the years 1919 and 1920, and each year thereafter if the plan proves satisfactory to both capital and labor. I am determined to do my best to work out for our companies the plan which will recognize this right.

"The detail plan when ready to present will recognize and reward individual efficiency, departmental efficiency, and increasing reward for continuous service, and these plans will have no influence on periodical adjustments of wages."

In making the announcement to his employes, Mr. Willys repudiated socialism, Bolshevism, and the I. W. W. He said:

"First, I want it distinctly understood that I do not believe in or have any sympathy with any phase of Bolshevism or anarchy of any type. Every man ought to be proud of the degree of success that comes to him through honest effort."

Mr. Willys announced also that the Overland plant would be greatly increased to take care of the additional volume of business created by the purchase recently of the Moline Plow Company. Farm tractors on a large scale are to be manufactured.

HEIGHTS WINS NEW SCHOOL.

Estimate Board's Support Is Gained, Speakers Tell Meeting.

A high school for Washington Heights is a certainty, according to speakers who addressed a meeting last night in Public School 132, Wadsworth Avenue and 182d Street, for the purpose of consolidating opinion in support of the school project. It was asserted that eleven votes, two more than needed, had been pledged to the school idea by members of the Board of Estimate.

Thomas W. Churchill, formerly President of the Board of Education, said that during his tenure of office he had realized that the Heights needed a high school to accommodate its rapid growth, but that money had not been available. He expressed the opinion that the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate only needed information on the necessity of such a building "to become enthusiastic in support of it."

Discussing the site for the building, Mr. Churchill said in his opinion the structure should be put up near the tip of Manhattan Island, near Van Cortlandt Park preferably, for that would afford room for athletics and ample transit facilities.

Frank L. Dowling, President of the Borough of Manhattan, said that the question of the school was taken up at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate and that a number of Associate School Superintendents had been there to advise the board. He said that he favored the construction of the school building and that ten other votes had been gained in support. Mr. Dowling said that Superintendent Shallow had recommended that the high school be put up somewhere in between 175th and 183d Streets, and that estimates and plans for the building probably would be placed before the Board of Estimate within a week.

Mr. Dowling said that the construction of a building for a teachers' training school would be started at once on the lot at 141st Street and Hamilton Place.

DENIES 'PHONE INJUNCTION.

Federal Court Refuses Application to Stay Rate Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—United States Court Judge John Rellstab this afternoon denied the application of the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners for a temporary injunction to restrain operation of the schedule of increased telephone rates put into effect last week by Postmaster General Burleson. The utility board, it is understood, now plans to sue in the State courts for a writ of mandamus to stay the operation of the advanced rates, the Federal authorities having, by Judge Rellstab's decision, refused to interfere pending a determination of the proceedings upon final hearing.

L. Edward Herrmann, counsel for the board; Assistant United States District Attorney Steelman and John L. Swayze, general counsel for the New York Telephone Company, made the argument before Judge Rellstab. Steelman and Swayze attacked the court's jurisdiction, insisting that while the litigation was directed against the Postmaster General, and the telephone companies, it was in reality a suit against the United States and, therefore, not within the jurisdiction of the District Court. It was argued that the utility board was seeking an injunction against the President of the United States, involving action performed by him as Commander in Chief.

Counsel for the board argued that no authority had been given by Congress to fix rates and that the resolution it undertook to convey such power was in violation of the Federal Constitution and infringed upon the rights of States. He held that the measure specifically reserved to the States the right to enforce police regulations, one of which he said was the power to fix rates.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 27.—When the Indiana Public Service Commission opens its fight tomorrow against the new long-distance telephone rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson, it will have the moral support of representatives of eight other States and the active support of James E. Markham, Assistant Attorney General of Minnesota. The commission has already obtained a restraining order against the rates, and its petition for a permanent injunction will be heard in the Federal District Court tomorrow.

The Post Office Department will be represented by Charles M. M. Bracelin, Solicitor for the Department in Washington. He will be assisted by Robert Slack of Indianapolis, United States District Attorney.

Today representatives of Public Service Commissions or legal departments of eight Central States met with the Indiana Public Service Commission and assisted in outlining the method of attacking the rates. Among these representatives were John G. Price, Attorney General of Ohio; Clifford L. Hilton, Attorney General of Minnesota; Clarence A. Davis, Attorney General of Nebraska; James E. Markham, Assistant Attorney General of Minnesota; Thomas H. Bailey, Deputy Attorney General of Michigan, M. B. Oldrich, Deputy Attorney General of Wisconsin; Thomas E. Demcy, Chairman of the Illinois Utilities Commission; Fred W. Putnam, member of the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission; F. S. Jackson, counsel for the Kansas Public Service Commission, and A. Z. Patterson, counsel for the Missouri Public Service Commission.

PLAN FOR A "NEW G. A. R."

Veterans of the Foreign Wars Seek Membership of 2,000,000.

Plans to make the Veterans of the Foreign Wars of the United States "the new G. A. R.," were announced yesterday by F. Warner Karling, Commander in Chief, following a three-day session. The first step will be the inauguration of a nationwide campaign to recruit a membership of 2,000,000 or more, a committee being appointed to carry through the campaign.

The organization was founded about twenty years ago by veterans of the Cuban and Philippines campaigns. Later on many veterans of the Boxer trouble were admitted. One of the first members was General Pershing, while the late Colonel Roosevelt and the late Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell were also members. One of the dozen or more posts organized in the last week in New York was named Quentin Roosevelt Post, in honor of the Colonel's hero son.

Second Alsace-Lorraine Dance.

The second of the Alsace-Lorraine supper dances, held after the opera, took place last night at the Hotel Lorraine, the proceeds being devoted to the Free Milk for France Fund. Roshanara appeared in a special dance after midnight. Among the supper hostesses were Mrs. John Aspegren, Mrs. James T. Terry, Mrs. William Disston, Mrs. J. Stevens Ulman, Mrs. Templeton Crocker, Mrs. Lyman V. Kendall, Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich, Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. A. L. Carroll, and Mrs. Charles H. Pope.

Geza de Polgary, Portrait Painter.

Geza de Polgary, a portrait painter of this city, died yesterday at Atlantic City, where he had gone for his health. Mr. Polgary was born in Hungary 57 years ago and came to New York in 1908 after studying under famous instructors in Budapest and Paris. He became a citizen of the United States. Among those whose portraits he painted were former President Taft, the late Mrs. Russell Sage, and the late Mayor Gaynor. The Austro-Hungarian Government purchased a number of his paintings.

To Wed Miss Dorothy B. Browne.

Horace Nichols of Whitesboro, N. Y., who gave his age as 33 and his occupation as that of an electrical engineer, and Miss Dorothy B. Browne, a daughter of Grant H. Browne of Goshen, N. Y., aged 24, took out a marriage license on Saturday from Clerk Scully. They said they were to be married in February in St. Thomas's Church. Miss Browne's father is said to be the owner of the Brownleigh Park Stables at Goshen, where he has a large country estate. He is well known here in New York, and the family usually stop at the Waldorf or the McAlpin when here. He formerly had a large racing track in Canada and owned several strings of racers.

Delehanty-White.

Michael Delehanty, a Supreme Court clerk, and Miss Grace Edwina White, a daughter of Mrs. Josephine White of 13 Bank Street, were married last evening in St. Joseph's Church, Waverly Place, by the Rev. Father John A. Grogan. Miss Elsie White was the maid of honor and John E. Fitzpatrick was the best man.

Frank D. Shelley.

Frank D. Shelley, organizer and President of the Young Men's Democratic League, died yesterday of pneumonia in St. Luke's Hospital. When Frank L. Dowling was President of the Board of Aldermen Mr. Shelley was his secretary and later he served in the same capacity for Commissioner of Public Works Loughman. Mr. Shelley was 30 years old.

The estate of Stephen H. Brown, member of the Stock Exchange firm of Vernon C. Brown & Co., who died on July 20, 1917, was appraised yesterday at $348,389, of which $126,850 was the value of his interest in the firm. The bulk of the estate went to his wife, Mrs. Grace V. Brown.

FRENCH E. CHADWICK REAR ADMIRAL, DIES

FOUGHT IN THE CIVIL WAR

Rear Admiral French Ensor Chadwick, U. S. N., retired, who was Chief of Staff of the North Atlantic Fleet in the battle of Santiago and who was one of the few surviving officers of the navy who served in the civil war, died at his home, 72 East Eighty-second Street, yesterday. Admiral Chadwick was a native of West Virginia and was 75 years old. He had been in poor health for more than a year and was stricken with pneumonia a week ago. The body will be taken to Morgantown, West Va., the old Chadwick home, for burial. Mrs. Cornelia Miller Chadwick, the Admiral's wife, survives him. There were no children.

For years Admiral Chadwick was one of the navy's best known officers. He was a contemporary of Sampson, Schley, Evans, Taylor, and Philip, and was an Annapolis graduate of the Class of 1864. In the Summer of 1864 he was a midshipman on board the old Union sloop of war Marblehead during the pursuit of the Confederate warships Florida and Tallahassee. From the close of the civil war to 1872 Admiral Chadwick as a junior officer served on many of the famous vessels of the old navy, among them the Juanita, Sabine, Tuscarora, and Guerriere.

After a tour of duty as an instructor at the Naval Academy he was in 1882 assigned to duty on the Powhatan and ordered to Europe to gather information for the Bureau of Navigation. While engaged in that work he was detached from the Powhatan and made Naval Attaché of the American Legation in London, retaining that position until 1889, when he was again ordered to sea, this time as commander of the gunboat Yorktown.

Secretary of the Navy Benjamin F. Tracy, in his annual report for 1889 in a reference to the work of Admiral Chadwick, wrote of "Commander Chadwick, whose extraordinary ability and judgment during six years of difficult service in England and on the Continent have had a lasting influence upon naval development in this country."

In 1892 Admiral Chadwick was appointed Chief of the Naval Intelligence Service and in 1893 was placed at the head of the Naval Bureau of Equipment. In 1897 he assumed command of the armored cruiser New York, then flagship of the North Atlantic Fleet, and was one of the officers appointed to the Naval Board of Inquiry which in 1898 investigated the destruction of the old battleship Maine, the blowing up of which precipitated the war with Spain.

When Admiral Sampson was assigned to command the North Atlantic Fleet he hoisted his flag on the New York and Captain Chadwick was made his chief of staff. For eminent and conspicuous service at the battle of Santiago, Congress advanced him five numbers in his grade. After the Spanish war and in 1900 Admiral Chadwick was appointed President of the Naval War College at Newport. In 1903 he was designated Commander in Chief of the South Atlantic Fleet. In February, 1906, he was retired from active duty after a service of forty years and ten months.

The funeral party which will accompany the body to Morgantown will leave this city tomorrow evening.

DAVID HOCHSTEIN KILLED.

Lieutenant David Hochstein, the young New York violinist, was killed in the battle of the Argonne Forest in France, it became known here yesterday. Hochstein's name has not yet appeared in the published casualties.

He was an artist of high aims, and had taken his violin with him both to Camp Upton and overseas, where his last letters to his family were mailed after a concert given by our soldiers in a French town. The young officer returned to the front and was soon afterward unofficially reported missing.

Lieutenant Hochstein was born in Rochester Feb. 16, 1892, and studied in New York, as well as with Auer in Petrograd and with Sevcik in Vienna, where he won a scholarship and a first prize of 1,000 crowns given by the Austrian Government. He made his début as violinist in Vienna in 1911, and after a tour of England was heard widely in the United States. A "Minuet" and "Ballade" for violin were among his published compositions.

ISMAIL KEMAL BEY DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Ismail Kemal Bey, former President of the Provisional Government of Albania, is dead. He was about 76 years old and a member of an ancient noble family.

Ismail Kemal Bey came into prominence in 1908, when as Deputy for Berat he was suspected of being the leader of the Young Turk revolt. In 1912 he proclaimed the independence of Albania and became Provisional President. He relinquished that post in 1914 and he was reported last year to be living in Paris. Ismail Kemal Bey rose from a subordinate position in the Turkish Government service to that of diplomat and State Councillor. He held liberal reform views, and was said to have managed the 1909 revolution in Turkey. Owing to his opinions, however, he was forced to leave Turkey and he lived for some years in both Paris and London.

Legislature Eulogizes J. L. McEntee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Both branches of the Legislature adopted resolutions tonight upon the death of Joseph L. McEntee, the Albany correspondent of The New York Sun.

When both bodies adjourned it was out of respect to his memory. The resolutions stated in part:

"His death comes as the personal loss of a friend to many of the individual members, who have long known his cheerful personality, to whom his familiar and kindly greeting has been an almost daily experience, who gave him their confidence and received in return loyal, just, and considerate treatment. In the handling of public news he was accurate, truthful, fair, and courageous, and in his death the Senate has lost a most able and efficient reporter of its proceedings. He was a newspaper man of wide experience, and enjoyed the acquaintance, friendship, and confidence of men in all parts of the State and nation prominent in the business and political world."

The Albany Legislative Correspondents' Association, of which Mr. McEntee was a member, also adopted resolutions upon his death.

Andrew E. Shanley.

Andrew E. Shanley, one of five brothers well known as New York restaurateurs, died yesterday at his home, 148 West Ninety-first Street, of pneumonia. Mr. Shanley was born in County Leitrim, Ireland, twenty-nine years ago, and came to this country several years ago. When he came here his four brothers were already in the café business in New York. He joined them and in time their little place downtown grew and they branched out into wider fields. At the time of his death Andrew Shanley with his brother Patrick owned the Shanley restaurant at 117 West Forty-second Street.

STALLINGS SEEKS A TRADE TO BE RELIEVED OF HERZOGS' $10,000 CONTRACT

WOULD SEND HERZOG BACK TO NEW YORK

McGRAW WANTS COOPER

Manager Cannot See How Second Baseman Would Strengthen His Present Lineup.

Although the Boston club of the National League is trying to put through a three-cornered baseball deal with the Giants and Pittsburgh, Manager McGraw said yesterday that as far as he knew there was little chance of the trade being negotiated. The Boston club wants to get rid of Charley Herzog and his large $10,000 contract. New York wants to get Wilbur Cooper, the left-handed pitcher, while the Boston club is anxious to get two or three good players. Boston figured that McGraw could use Herzog in a trade for Cooper.

According to Manager McGraw, there is little chance of Herzog coming back to the Giants. The New York leader said yesterday that if he believed that the return of Herzog would strengthen the club he would not hesitate to get him back. In baseball, McGraw says he would not allow personalities to interfere with any policy which might improve the team's chances. He pointed out, however, that Herzog has a heavy contract and that for the past two seasons he has fallen off in his batting. McGraw fails to see where Herzog would be an improvement on any of the players now with the club.

McGraw said that he had already made an offer to the Pirates for Cooper but the club was not inclined to part with the left-hander. New York has several players who could be used to advantage by either Boston or Pittsburgh, but a three-cornered trade which would satisfy all parties concerned would be difficult to negotiate.

The Boston club, it is stated, may have to release Herzog, because they have decided that they cannot carry him at the present contract price. It is certain that no club would take him in a trade unless this contract was in some way modified. Herzog last year signed a contract for two years at $10,000 a year.

The recent separation of the major and minor leagues has left the majors in a quandary about what to do with their surplus players. In the past, the youngsters who have been given a trial on the Southern trips have been farmed out to minor leagues under an optional aggreement, whereby the majors could recall the players if necessary.

There will be so many players to be turned back to the minors after the Spring training trips that it is certain that minors cannot afford to buy them all. If they are sold to the minors and later in the season the majors want them back they will be forced to pay higher prices than they paid in the first place, and the present system is going to entail extra expense to all concerned.

There are several major league club owners who advocate an extension of the player limit beyond twenty-one players, so that each club could carry a number of younsters and develop them as the season goes along. If a major league club should run into a stretch of hard luck, as it often does, and have three or four players on the injured list at one time, it would be at a decided disadvantage under the twenty-one-player limit. This is only one of the many situations which are sure to arise over the break of the majors and minors, and many baseball men believe that one season will be enough to show the minors that they are better off under the old terms of the national agreement.

The St. Louis club is trying to arrange a trade whereby they can spare Second Baseman Ray Schmandt of Brooklyn who is a St. Louis boy. Rickey talked the matter over when he was at the baseball meetings here a couple of weeks ago. Catcher Snyder is one of the players who may figure in the deal with the Dodgers.

Jack Hendricks, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals last season, may go back to Indianapolis and pilot the Hoosiers next year. He had a conference yesterday with President James C. McGill of the Indianapolis Club of the American Association meeting in Chicago. Branch Rickey has announced that he would take the job of managing the Cardinals. The St. Louis situation is likely to be upset at any time, however, because the club may be sold unless a number of outstanding notes are extended.

The rumor was revived in Chicago yesterday that Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Cubs, would soon buy a franchise in the American Association and attempt to plant it at the old West Side Park, the former home of the Cubs in the Windy City. The plan, it was reported yesterday, was to merger the St. Paul and Indianapolis franchises.

This yarn, however, isn't taken seriously by baseball men, for when the majors and minors separated it was understood that each would recognize the territorial rights of the other. To place a club in Chicago would be a direct violation of this understanding.

Bernie Boland, the Detroit pitcher, who defended the Yankees during the last few seasons nearly every time he walked out to the mound, has signed his contract for the coming season, so that adds just one more thing for Manager Huggins's lads to worry about.

TO FIX ROWING DATES.

Columbus Crew Will Race in Childs Cup Regatta.

Detailed plans for Columbia's rowing program for the coming season will be announced after the meeting of the American Rowing Association, but in the absence of a definite statement, Charles Halsted Maped, Chairman of the university Committee on Athletics, let it be known yesterday that the Blue and White will fashion its schedule this year on the model of those prevailing before the war, except that it will not be topped off with an intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie.

The 'Varsity eight of the Blue and White will row in the Childs Cup regatta. There has been an invitation received from Annapolis to send a crew to the Severn to row the Middies, but whether this will be accepted or not has not been decided.

At the association meeting plans for an intercollegiate regatta over a short course are to be discussed. This race would probably include Pennsylvania, Cornell, Princeton, and the navy. It is said that Yale would like to row a race with Columbia, and may invite Columbia to take Cornell's place in the proposed Cornell-Princeton-Yale race on the Housatonic, if the Ithacans cannot send a crew to Connecticut.

TO HOLD SPRING MEETING.

United Hunts Association Will Have Two Days of Racing.

The United Hunts Racing Association at a meeting yesterday afternoon decided to hold a two-day Spring meeting at Belmont Park Terminal about the middle of May. Steeplechase and flat events will be run at this meeting.

Rufus C. Finch of Plainfield, N. J., was elected to the Membership Committee of the association. The committee members present at the meeting were I. J. R. Muurling, President of the association; Captain Joseph E. Irwin, F. Ambrose Clark, Frank J. Bryan, Morton L. Schwartz, H. A. Bourne, and H. D. Tallmadge.

IMPROVE N. Y. TENNIS CLUB.

Plans Will Be Announced at Annual Meeting Tonight.

The annual meeting of the New York Tennis Club will be held at the Republican Club this evening, when officers will be elected. The Nominating Committee has made the following recommendations: President, C. B. Winne; Vice President, Dr. Wallace Krugler; Treasurer, Louis S. Bailey; Secretary, Stanley L. Butler; Captain, H. J. Steinkampf; Governors for two years, Maskell E. Fox and Dr. George B. Stanwix.

An amendment concerning the membership limit will also be submitted, as follows: "The membership of the club shall be left to the discretion of the Board of Governors, but at no time shall the men membership exceed 200, nor the women membership exceed 100, nor the junior membership exceed 50."

Plans will also be submitted for improving the courts and grounds generally, as well as the clubhouse.

FARRELL BACK ON TEAM.

Columbia Forward Has Quick Recovery from Injury.

Columbia will not send a crippled basket ball team against Princeton on Thursday after all, for Tom Farrell, right forward and acting Captain of the five, who turned his ankle in the game with Pennsylvania on Saturday night, reported for practice yesterday, and had a short workout. The swelling had departed from the ankle, so that he was able to play without difficulty.

Vollmers, who substituted for Johnson in the closing minutes of Saturday's game, will make a desperate fight to win the place permanently. Against the Quakers he showed good form, and expects to get a chance to play in the Princeton contest.

VAN BUREN IS MEDALIST.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27.—The qualifying round of the Lakeworth tourney, first of the annual golf contests to be played here this season, produced only mediocre golf today. J. R. Van Buren of New York was the medalist, with a card of 77. Most of the good players whose names have figured in past Palm Beach tournaments were missing. The cards were all high, an 85 being enough to get into the first flight. One fluke was that of J. B. Elwell of New York, medalist last year with 72, whose card today was 92, putting him into the third division. The field was not typical of the usual Palm Beach tournaments, but may be expected to improve with early February arrivals.

The Score, First Flight.—J. R. Van Buren, New York, 77; Charles Hathaway, New York, 78; M. A. Carroll, New York, 78; Douglas W. Paige, New York, 79; Alfred Morrell, New York, 81; Colonel J. E. Smith, Wilmington, 82; O. L. Gubleman, Essex County, 82; A. W. Cameron, Philadelphia, 83; Harold Vanderbilt, New York, 83; H. C. Clark, Myopia, 84; J. N. Wallace, Jr., Rockland County, 84; George E. Warren, Essex County, 84; A. F. Hunton, St. Davids, 85; T. Frothingham, Jr., Essex County, 86; S. G. Wilcox, New York, 85; A. G. Mellwaine, New York, 85.

NINE STRAIGHT VICTORIES.

Barnard Five Defeats Adelphi by Score of 50 to 10.

Barnard School's basket ball quintet annexed its ninth straight victory yesterday when it overwhelmed the Adelphi Academy of Brooklyn five in a one-sided game on the Barnard court. The score was 50 to 10. The successful team outclassed the Brooklyn schoolboys from the start. At the end of the first half, Barnard's players were leading by 22 to 7. Robertson was the victorious team's chief scorer. He made twelve field baskets.

The line-up:

Barnard. (50.)	Position.	Adelphi. (10.)
Bolles	R. F.	Knite
Farrell	L. F.	Morumm
Robertson	C.	Michel
Tighe	R. G.	Smalley
Hubbell	L. G.	Lewis

Field goals—Bolles, (5.) Farrell, (4.) T. Bailey, (2.) Robertson, (12.) Campbell, Hubbell, Knite, (3.) Morumm. Goals from foul—Knite, (2.) Substitutions: For Barnard School—T. Bailey for Farrell, Campbell for Tighe, A. Bailey for Hubbell. For Adelphi—McMahon for Morumm. Referee—William T. Cooper, De Witt Clinton High School. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

SHOW HONORS WON BY AMERICAN PEKE

Mrs. Michael Van Beuren, daughter of the late John D. Archbold, carried off the honors yesterday in the tenth annual show of the Pekingese Club of America, held at the Hotel Plaza. Mrs. Van Beuren, with Chang Chio of Sunnyfields Farm, an American-bred Peke, captured the prize for best of show over a competitive field of 248 of this popular breed of canine. This success gave Mrs. Van Beuren a leg on the trophy valued at $500, offered for competition by the late J. Pierpont Morgan.

In addition to this victory, Mrs. Van Beuren's entry also received the award for the best American-bred Pekingese exhibited, which gave her a leg on the cup offered by the late James Gordon Bennett, who was a former honorary president of the Pekingese Club of America. This cup, also, is valued at $500.

The show was held for the benefit of the Fatherless Children of France, Inc., and from every standpoint was the most successful in the history of the organization. American-bred Pekes carried off the majority of prizes offered, outscoring their foreign rivals.

Mrs. Van Beuren's victory with Chang Chio of Sunnyfields Farm made the second time in the history of the club that an American-bred dog has been given the best of show prize. The former winner was Miss Lydia Hopkins of California, who in 1914 captured the show's best award with Hop Ting of Downshire.

Cairnwhin Tinto, an imported female, was runner-up to Mrs. Van Buren's entry. Cairnwhin Tinto, in the three previous shows, won the prize for best of show. The prize for second best dog went to Miss Warren, with Lee Wah, another American-bred Peke.

The show attracted a number of newcomers, who shared in many of the prizes distributed. The most successful was Mrs. Charles E. Engels of New Rochelle, who was particularly successful in the lightweight classes with Sen Wah.

FAST BOUTS ON BATTLESHIP

The jackies of the U. S. S. Mississippi saw a real boxing show of a half a dozen fast bouts last night, with General Secretary Michael J. Hogan of the Knights of Columbus as master of ceremonies. Dan Morgan was the director and Pete Prunty the announcer. The bouts were witnessed by nearly 1,000 sailors and one woman, who had a ringside seat.

The sailors not only enjoyed the boxing, but Secretary Hogan distributed 5,000 packages of cigarettes, 500 packages of tobacco, and 500 pounds of candy. The bout which pleased the sailors most was the mill between the two negro heavyweights, Smoke Kelly and Harry Wills. Kelly weighed about 245 pounds, but Wills toyed with him and won as he pleased.

Frankie Burns and Steve Connolly, the bantamweight champion of the fleet, had a lively three-round bout, and so did Kid Carter and Jack Britton. Eddie Fitzsimmons of Yonkers and Leo Johnson of Harlem added three rounds of real action, and Jimmy Duffy of Lockport boxed three rounds with Young Compton, a welterweight of the Mississippi. Jack London and Harry Robertson of Chicago also boxed three rounds.

S. T. Walton, Horseman, Dead.

Word reached this city yesterday of the death at Colorado Springs of S. T. Walton, for many years Secretary of the Washington Jockey Club. Mr. Walton was among the most popular and best-known horsemen on the American turf during the period of the Washington Jockey Club's existence.

NEW HIGH AVERAGE MADE BY NEUSTADT

Class C Billiard Player Scores 73-21 in Tournament Match at Lawler's Academy.

J. Neustadt, the young Brooklyn amateur, made a new average record yesterday for the national Class C 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament which is being played at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. In defeating Charles J. Steinbugler in the opening game of the final round play, Neustadt returned an average of 73-21 for his 150 points. This effort eclipses the former record average of 5 10-28, which Neustadt made some time ago.

Neustadt probably never before displayed such good form with the cue. He tallied his 150 points with a consistency which was impressive, while Steinbugler, in twenty turns at the table, collected only 55 points. Neustadt led from start to finish, and while he showed unusual ability at nursing the balls once he had them in position he was also called upon to negotiate some difficult shots at times. Invariably however, the young Brooklynite succeeded with the unusual attempts. Neustadt had high runs of 23 20, and 17.

Ferdinand Unger defeated James Blaisdell and the latter lost in the evening to Gus Gardner. S. Brussel defeated J. R. Langdon.

The scores:

ACTUAL FACTS

About Conditions of Sanitation and Fire Safety in the Dress and Waist Shops of New York City

114 Shops Have Serious Fire Dangers; 330 Shops Have Dirty Walls, Dirty Ceilings, Dirty Water Closets, Etc.

In an advertisement printed in yesterday's newspapers, the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association challenges the statement made by President Schlesinger of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union about the unsanitary and unsafe conditions in the dress and waist shops of New York City.

The following letter by Dr. George M. Price, Director of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control in the dress and waist industry of New York City, fully substantiates the facts and figures given by Mr. Schlesinger to Mayor Hylan. We reproduce this letter in order that the public may not be misled by the advertisements of the Manufacturers' Association:

Mr. Benjamin Schlesinger, President, Jan. 27, 1919
International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union,
New York City.

Dear Sir—

I have your inquiry of January 27, asking me for a copy of the records as to the number of defective shops in the Dress and Waist Industry, as submitted to the Board at its meeting of Dec. 5, 1918. In compliance with your request I beg to inform you as follows:

There were in this industry altogether 825 shops with 25,268 workers. Of the 825 shops there were 149 in which no defects whatever have been found (62 Association shops and 87 non-Association shops.) There were 676 shops with defects, of which 175 belonged to members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association and 501 were non-Association shops.

As to the classification of defects, there were 114 shops in the Dress and Waist industry having serious fire danger, and 330 shops having dirty walls, ceilings, water closets, etc. Very truly yours,

EQUALLY UNTRUE

The statement by the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association in the same advertisement that "The leaders of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, in conference with the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, absolutely refused to consider any working agreement until the Association would agree to assure every worker employment for life after she had been in any manufacturer's employ for two weeks," is equally untrue. No such demand was ever made by the Union.

Mr. Schlesinger, in his letter to Mayor Hylan of January 15th, made the position of the Union on the question of discharge clear in the following paragraph:

> The question of the employers' right to discharge workers is not as difficult as has been made to appear by the employers. The Board of Arbitration, under the chairmanship of Justice Louis D. Brandeis and Judge Julian W. Mack, has on many occasions decided that the employers have the right to discharge any worker for fair, just and reasonable cause, but the Board has held that in view of the fact that the workers under the protocol had surrendered their legal right to strike as a remedy against abuses of the employers' prerogatives, they are entitled to a substitute for such remedy in the form of a machinery for the speedy adjustment of their complaints against unreasonable and unjust discharges. We are prepared to meet them on either side of the proposition; they may claim absolute freedom to discharge their workers justly or unjustly, fairly or unfairly, and in that case we must reserve our right to secure redress against abuses of unfair employers by such means as we have at our command; or they may limit their right of discharge, and in that event we shall be quite ready to surrender our rights to strike against discharges.

PLAN INTER-STATION MAIL SUBWAY HERE

SAYS BURLESON APPROVES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—By the terms of a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Oliver of New York it is proposed to build a mail tunnel from the Grand Central Station to the Pennsylvania Station in New York at an estimated cost of $1,500,000. Mr. Oliver said the project had the approval of Postmaster General Burleson, who recommended it in his annual report.

The plans of the Post Office Department, Mr. Oliver said, contemplated extending the tunnel eventually to the old Post Office in City Hall Square, but the building of the proposed tubes would carry the mail directly from the Grand Central to the new Post Office, Eighth Avenue and Thirty-third Street.

The construction of an inter-terminal mail subway, which has been under favorable consideration by the Post Office Department since 1913, was recommended by Postmaster General Burleson in his last annual message, at which time he asked an appropriation of $1,500,000. Subsequently it was decided that the project should be separated from the general annual appropriation.

The proposed subway would be a radical departure from the tube system to which Mr. Burleson has been so unalterably opposed. It would be big enough not only to transport all the mail between Grand Central and the Pennsylvania Station, but for a great many years, until the bulk of mails greatly increases, it would suffice for the movement of much express and baggage, notably for the transportation of the many thousands of trunks, which now have to be hauled overground from one station to the other.

It is planned to make the subway 11 feet wide and 6 feet high above the rails, and equipped with a double track designed for the operation of cars 8 feet long, 4 feet high, and 3 feet 10 inches wide. The cars proposed are to have closed sides but open ends, and to be built to transport crates with open sides and closed ends. At the terminals the trucks would be wheeled direct to the distributing rooms and replaced with others loaded with mails for the other end. Thus all rehandling would be avoided.

Two Routes Considered.

Two routes have been contemplated for the proposed subway. One would run the subway across Forty-second Street to Eighth Avenue, and thence to the new Post Office and the Pennsylvania Station. The other would be straight down Lexington Avenue to Thirty-fourth Street, across to Eighth Avenue, and into the Post Office and the station. In view of the fact that it is hoped eventually to extend the tube to the downtown Post Office and to Brooklyn, some engineers think the first-named route would be better.

The amount of mail matter now transported between the two stations averages something like 20,000 pouches and sacks daily, and weighing from 650 to 700 tons, and is steadily increasing. The mails are trucked now on the surface 1.51 miles, requiring about 77 trips daily.

Just before the outbreak of the war the Electric Carrier Company, of which M. E. Sturges is President, H. H. Rogers and Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan Vice Presidents, and E. R. Sutton of the Interborough engineering staff, Secretary, constructed at Paterson, N. J., a full-size plant of the type with which it is proposed to equip the mail subway. This company, which, according to statements made to Postmaster General Burleson, was backed financially by Cornelius Vanderbilt, operated for several months this three-phase automatic railway in which one motor element, the primary, is carried on the car, and the secondary on the track, both being flat. The cars were operated automatically from dispatching stations. Reports of its operation by Stillwell and Putnam were put before Mr. Burleson before he recommended the construction of the subway.

In a statement commenting upon the introduction of the bill, former Postmaster Edward H. Morgan last night asserted that Mr. Burleson had induced its presentation, though the House Post Office Committee originally was against it. Mr. Morgan declared himself as emphatically in favor of such tubes, and said that he was, in fact, Chairman of the committee that first worked out a scheme for a trunk line system of such tubes years ago. He said the introduction of the bill meant the abandonment of Mr. Burleson's "ridiculous contention" that the mails of great cities could be delivered satisfactorily overground.

The statement asserted that it was the purpose of the proposers of the subway plan to have a system to carry eventually "substantially everything sold by the big stores," though this, it explained, did not appear on the face of the bill.

Mr. Morgan, who was ousted by Postmaster General Burleson in the face of much opposition, returned to his attack on the Postmaster General for abandoning the pneumatic tubes, asserting that his former chief's attitude on the question was indefensible, and that though the British Government already had built demonstration tubes and meant to enlarge them it had no intention of abandoning them for a complete tunnel system with automatic cars, which was yet on paper.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Heavy Buying of Dresses.

From reports received in the trade the sale of women's dresses this season has been very good. Voiles and ginghams have been big sellers. The amount of business obtained so far this month by one of the firms selling this class of merchandise shows an increase of $40,000 over the same month of last year. On the higher priced lines, including georgette, silk, satin and combinations of georgette and satin, re-orders are being received almost daily. The only question now is being able to make prompt shipments.

More Knitted Neckwear Sold.

After checking up the sales that have so far been made this season on men's knitted silk neckwear, it was said by one of the makers that at least 50 per cent. more merchandise has been sold. Both in the local and out-of-town trade there has been a steady increase in the sale of this neckwear that retails from $2.50 up. Fancy patterns in subdued colors are selling equally as well this season as the plain staple lines.

Will Advance Price of Waists.

With the arrival of the out-of-town waist buyers, the sale of Georgette and crepe de chine waists has increased greatly. In some instances, the stocks in the hands of the manufacturers are very low. It was said yesterday by one of the makers that, in view of the settlement of the strike, it would be necessary to advance the prices on some lines from 15 to 25 per cent. Buyers who placed their orders early have avoided this, but those who have been holding off will have to pay more for their merchandise.

After the Better Goods.

Unlike many other lines at present, there is very little discussion in the women's neckwear trade by buyers regarding the prices. Although the orders that are now being taken are not exceptionally large, they are being duplicated more often. From what the men on the road say, and also judging from the goods that are being purchased by out-of-town buyers who are now in the city, the higher priced lines are more in demand.

Silk Sweaters Selling Well.

Salesmen who have returned from the West and Pacific Coast with the Spring lines of women's pure silk thread sweaters say that the business has increased at least 25 per cent. Buyers in every section were very much interested in the new offerings, especially those that retail at from $25 to $65 apiece. Owing to the number of new styles and colors shown, the buying this year was much heavier than in former seasons. Through the East and in the local trade the sales have shown a considerable increase.

Muslin Underwear Reduced.

The decrease in the sale of muslin underwear has led to a reduction in price amounting to 33 per cent., the additional 8 per cent. having been made a few days ago, according to firms in this line. Even this, it is said, has not proved much of an inducement to buyers. Another firm in the same business said it had not reduced the price, but was giving the retailers more value for the money. It also asserted that business is very satisfactory, considering the present outlook in the trade.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Notice was sent to the trade yesterday by B. B. & R. Knight, Inc., that the price of 4-4 Fruit of the Loom muslin had been advanced for 21½ cents, net sixty days, and that orders for future delivery would be taken "at value" only.

Cooper & Grapes, coat and suit makers, have removed from 302 Fifth Avenue to larger quarters at 30-34 West Twenty-sixth Street.

The local office of O'Connor, Moffatt & Co. of San Francisco, which is now at 114 Fifth Avenue, will be removed to 432 Fourth Avenue on Saturday.

Gray Goods Dealings at Low Ebb.

Declines in the price of cotton are continuing to have a demoralizing influence in the local gray goods market. Yesterday things were almost stagnant, transactions being few and hardly any of them worthy of note. Some sales were reported of 38½-inch 60-48 printcloths at 8½ cents, but buyers refused to pay 9½ cents for 64-60s in the same width. Beyond this there were a few sales of sateens and low-count gauze goods at reductions.

Buttons That Are Used.

There is a big demand for small metal buttons this season, manufacturers say. The small pearl buttons are selling largely for vestings for women and the vegetable ivory buttons, which when made up take every color and the appearance of many materials, are used in large sizes for capes, coats, suits, &c. There are glass and jet buttons used on the high-class suits and the fancy button is used for different purposes. Glass and jet buttons previous to the war came largely from Austria, but are now made in this country.

First Aid to Window Dressers.

Wax ladies, whose profession is wearing beautiful clothes in shop windows, have developed a new method of growing their arms. They now slip into a socket in the shoulder which gives them the appearance of growing on and they can be slipped out and in at will, which is a great aid in getting on a gown. Hitherto they have been screwed on in a complicated way, and, to take off the wax ladies' arms, it was first necessary to take off her head, the screws being on the inside. The improvement is a first aid to window dressers.

Ribbons for Hat Trimmings.

Smart ribbons have been brought out in Indian designs for outing hats for women. While the designs are Indian, the colors are delicate and suggest a beautiful Panama hat. In the deeper tones for outing hats there are ribbons of Roman effect. The polka dot is good for hat trimming, and in larger sizes, in the wider ribbons, each dot as big as an apple. There are beautiful things in two-tone ribbons, one side one color and one the other. Some of these are all in the pastel shades and others in deeper tones, contrasting colors brought together. Two colors are also used in beautiful quality grosgrain ribbons, these having the body and edge different with rich contrasts. Handsome broad metallic ribbons are rich and heavy, made to wholesale at $50 a bolt of 10 yards. A ribbon, not new this year, but deep and rich in color and design, the latter Egyptian, is the Cleopatra, and a ribbon suggesting contrast in color and design as well as the war is Aviation. Ribbons in delicate colors and soft brocades in all widths are for the trousseau.

Outside of Chicago

One of the best manufacturing districts in the country is located in the 13 counties surrounding Chicago.

The prosperity of this territory, served by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, is reflected in the Company's earnings, which are over double interest charges on its total funded debt.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Strong and Weak Spots Mark Irregular Movements of Stocks —Ocean Rates Lower.

Stocks which were affected by specific news developments scored positive movements in yesterday's dealings, while the balance of the list displayed considerable irregularity. The shipping issues were quite naturally subjected to speculative selling pressure as a result of the sharp marking down of freight rates to England put into effect by the British Ministry of Shipping, and one or more of the oil share group were in demand after attention had been called to new production in Texas. Steel common gained some ground at the same time that other steel stocks declined. As far as the general market was concerned—and this applied to bonds also—conditions surrounding business were practically unchanged from the sluggish factors of last week, and the action of the Money Committee in taking restrictions off loans was the subject of very little comment during the session. In view of the substantial decline in loans reported by the Clearing House banks on Saturday, predictions made in banking quarters some time ago that loanable funds would be plentiful late in January appeared to be working out definitely. Call money yesterday went as low as 3⅝ per cent., equaling the minimum of the year, and most borrowing was put through at 4 per cent.

Much more significance than that entailed in the effect on shipping stocks was contained in the reduction of ocean freight rates. A decline of more than 60 per cent. in certain carrying charges was drastic enough to cause something of a shock to the International Mercantile Marine and Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies issues, but the broader aspect of the decline of rates reached out to many corporations not directly interested in ocean transportation. It would be reasonable to expect a favorable result from lower carrying costs in an increase of exports, provided, of course, that buyers across the seas feel that the saving of transportation will offset commodity prices in our markets. The movement would be of influence on imports also, and it may be that the cut in freight rates marks a distinct step forward in breaking the bonds of trade lethargy in several directions. The United States Shipping Board, according to recent information, desired to maintain ocean rates for a time, but it is difficult to see how current levels may be adhered to with the British shipping interests out for business. Any development which helped to stimulate trade would be welcome in the long run, and evidence is appearing from time to time that neutral countries, as well as the allied nations, are in need of various raw materials which would move more quickly from the United States if costs of deliverey were lowered appreciably. A step to facilitate the flow would be the establishment of prices lower than those prevailing at present. In a way a reduction of freight costs has the effect of a decline of prices, as far as the foreign buyer is concerned, and yesterday's downward swing may contain matter of economic import for the readjustment period whose extent cannot yet be discerned.

A meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee during the day is worthy of mention because of the indication supplied by it that bankers are getting down to particular details of the coming offering of Victory bonds. In the next few weeks the situation will be thoroughly canvassed and frequent exchanges of ideas between the financial leaders and the Treasury Department may be looked for.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

NO FAVORS FOR THE ALLIES.

American bankers and, presumably, American investors are ready and willing to advance capital and supplies to the European Allies on adequate terms, but are not willing to grant them preferential treatment, according to an officer of a large downtown bank. Referring to a Paris dispatch to THE TIMES, which stated the belief that American financial interests were prepared to advance credit and supplies on "easy terms" to the Allies, this banker expressed the belief that the Allies would have to compete with American industry in the credit market.

As for the United States assuming a full share of the whole European war debt, that, too, was considered entirely out of the question by bankers who were interviewed on the subject. In this respect, banking opinion was in harmony with THE TIMES dispatch, which said that American representatives abroad did not favor the proposal.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steel Dividend Action Today.

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation will meet this afternoon to take action on the quarterly dividend. Prior to such meetings of the Directors there is always considerable speculation in the Street as to what the action will be. The last dividend on the common shares of the steel corporation was 1¼ and 2 per cent. extra. There seems to be a general idea among traders that this rate will be cut, but as to how much opinion differs radically. Some reports are to the effect that the extra dividend will be 1 per cent., thereby placing the stock on a 9 per cent. annual basis, as against the 13 per cent. now prevailing. Others believe that the rate will be on a 7 per cent. annual basis. Since the Bethlehem Directors fooled the knowing ones a short time ago by maintaining the 10 per cent. annual rate on the common, there is less disposition to consider that the reduction on United States Steel will be drastic. On the other hand, there are not many who consider that the present rate will be maintained.

Texas Company Strong.

The so-called "speculation in oil stocks" yesterday was very largely a matter of buying Texas Company, which issue gained something more than 5 points on the day and touched about the highest point to be reached on the present movement. The rights were also strong, selling in the neighborhood of $18. Texas Company, of course, profited, marketwise, because of reports of the bringing in of the new 20,000-barrel well. Incidentally the stock did what so few stocks ever succeed in doing—it advanced strongly in the face of "rights." Usually it is just the other way; stocks persist in declining when rights to new stock are being dealt in.

Shipping Rates and Cotton.

The cotton market, always nervous and capable of wide movements, performed up to its best records yesterday, when, after losing 100 points in the first hour or so, it picked up and gathered in again virtually all of its losses when the announcement of the British reduction in shipping rates reached the financial district. Cotton people were overjoyed at first in the belief that the export movement would be greatly expedited, but lost some of their enthusiasm later when it was realized that it is quite as much a matter of ships as it is of rates.

Orders for Export Steel.

Recently substantial orders for steel products have been placed in this country by Holland, these being the first that have been received from the Netherlands since before the entry of the United States into the war. The fact that Holland is buying steel is not in itself of such great significance, unless it can be taken as an indication of what may be expected from other countries which have for a long period been cut off from supplies of steel. The fact that Holland is ordering steel here would presume that the steel-making facilities of Europe, expanded though they have been to meet war needs, are still not in a position to engage largely in export trade. This would give to the industry in this country a fertile field for placing steel products, provided there is an urgent buying demand that cannot brook delay.

Nova Scotia Steel Declines.

The recent announcement of the temporary cessation of operations by the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company seemed to find reflection in the action of the stock yesterday. On a turnover of only 300 shares the stock declined 2¾ points.

St. Paul Dividends.

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul common and preferred stock were both features in yesterday's market. This action was apparently the result of rumors that the company's compensation contract with the Railroad Administration was about to be signed and that when the contract is executed the Directors would be in a position to declare the full 7 per cent. dividend on the preferred stock. The common stock which opened at 37¼ sold up to a high for the day at 39½, while the preferred after opened quietly at 67 sold up to 73½ and closed at 70.

The Freight Rate Cut.

The 66 2-3 per cent. ocean freightrate cut announced by the British Ministry of Shipping yesterday was unexpected, but it did not cause as much surprise in some quarters as might have been expected. Local shippers and shipowners through their organizations have been asking Washington to make a definite cut in the Shipping Board rates in order to let them compete with British merchants and manufacturers for some time, and in making those requests it was suggested more than once that further cuts would follow the initial announcements made in Europe. Special committees representing shippers have gone to Washington repeatedly to secure an easing of the tonnage situation and in many instances their trips have proved fruitful. Yesterday it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the Shipping Board would not hold the American shipper in suspense much longer, but will scale down our rates to meet those announced by the British Ministry of Shipping. While the announcement of the rate cut was not particularly surprising the amount of the cut was greater than the majority of shipping men had forecast.

Marine Shares Under Pressure.

A drop of about 4 points in Marine preferred yesterday was attributed partly to the development of a bear attack and also to the cut in British shipping rates. It was argued in some quarters that the reduction in rates by the British Ministry would adversely affect earnings on the large British tonnage owned by International Mercantile Marine, which amounts to about 750,000 tons.

The Ranger Field of Texas.

No more spectacular development has occurred in the oil resources of the country than that in the so-called Ranger Field of Texas. This development has been closely associated with the movement of stocks of companies holding property there. Much of the land has yet to be proved, but the wells that have been brought in are many and the prospects for others are put forth so alluringly that the stocks of these companies that hold nothing more tangible than the land itself have moved up in accord with the general speculative enthusiasm.

Brunswick Dividend Increase.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, which recently sold an issue of short-term notes, announced yesterday a dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the common stock, which places the issue on a 7 per cent. yearly basis. The last previous dividend on the common stock was 1½ per cent., paid on May 15 of last year. After that declaration dividends were suspended because of the war. The company has for some time been readjusting its plants to changed conditions.

PAY $709,059 IN PENSIONS.

Steel Corporation's Report Shows 2,861 Names on List.

The eighth annual report of the United States Steel and Carnegie Pension Fund, which applies to the United States Steel Corporation and all of its subsidiaries, shows that the total disbursements for the year amounted to $709,059. In 1917 the total was $712,506, and in 1916, $711,130. The disbursements for the year 1911, the first in which the fund operated, were $281,457. Since the plan was first put in force the total disbursements have amounted to $4,367,107.

A summary of the report shows that there were 2,933 active pension cases Jan. 1, 1918, and that during the year 214 were added. The discontinued cases during 1918 numbered 286, so that those continued beyond Dec. 3, 1918, were 2,861. The average age for the cases, as shown in the report, was 65.51, and the term of service averaged 30.13 years. The average monthly pension during the year was $22.10.

CONSOLIDATED GAS REPORTS A DEFICIT

80-CENT LAW IS ASSAILED

President Cortelyou Praises Efficiency of Women Employed in the War Emergency.

The annual report of the Consolidated Gas Company for the year ended Dec. 31, which was submitted by President George B. Cortelyou at the annual meeting of the stockholders yesterday, showed a deficit of $1,292,393 after the payment of dividends, as compared with a surplus of $753,922 at the close of 1917. The net income after interest charges and taxes was $5,702,400, equivalent to $5.68 a share on the $100,253,000 capital stock. The report of the year previous showed a net income of $7,741,077, equivalent to $7.75 a share on the stock.

In view of the deficit after the payment of dividends several of the stockholders asked Chairman Garver whether it was likely that the dividend rate would be maintained this year. He replied that it was impossible to make any predictions, but called attention to the fact that the company had not paid out all of its earnings in dividends during other years and that a surplus had been built up in preparation for a "rainy day."

Speaking of the company's suit to invalidate the 80-cent gas law, Mr. Garver said the increase in operating costs had been so heavy he felt sure that the law would be declared void. A speedy trial, he said, was hoped for, but he anticipated that several months would elapse before a decision would be reached.

The income account of the company for the last two years follows:

Operating income	$94,400	$2,538,259
Other income	7,141,372	6,080,857
Gross income	$7,235,772	$8,234,236
Interest	1,533,372	1,493,159
Net income	$5,702,400	$7,741,077
Dividends	6,994,793	6,987,155
Deficit	$1,292,393
*Surplus.		*$753,922

In his address to the stockholders President Cortelyou said in part:

"By direction of the Board of Trustees a suit has recently been commenced by the company in the Federal court to test the validity of the law limiting the price of gas to 80 cents per thousand cubic feet.

"Under this rate the company was scarcely able to earn during the year 1918 any return upon its investment in its gas business, and there is every prospect that, notwithstanding the termination of the war, the earnings will be still further impaired during the ensuing year by the high cost of labor and materials and other elements of cost.

"The gas sent out by the Consolidated and its affiliated gas companies during the year 1918 exceeded the quantity sent out during the year 1917 by 7.02 per cent. The extreme variation in the monthly output occurred in January and December. In the former month the increase in the output amounted to 25.47 per cent.; in the month of December the decrease in output amounted to 7.37 per cent. The output in December 1917, exceeded the output in December, 1916, by 18.46 per cent.

"In all of the departments except the manufacturing and street departments, the shortage of labor has necessitated the employment of women to perform work theretofore performed by men. In clerical departments and those performing only the lighter grades of mechanical work, this did not seriously impair the efficiency of these departments, and in individual instances the work was performed quite as satisfactorily by women as by men.

"The price of practically all materials and supplies used by the companies was higher in 1918 than in 1917. The rates of wages paid were also higher.

"The purchase price of twenty-seven materials, such as coal, wrought-iron pipe, cast-iron pipe, steel bars, sheet iron, malleable iron fittings, red and white lead, pig lead, copper, fire clay, and building materials, used in quantities by the companies, increased 61 per cent in 1918 as compared with 1917, and 123 per cent. as compared with the year 1913.

"The total increase in the combined operating expenses of the gas and electric companies during 1918 amounted to $5,450,950, including an increase of $1,590,949 in taxes, and an increase of $1,488,529 due to the greater quantity of gas and electricity sold."

COTTON HAS NERVOUS DAY.

Declines, Then Advances, on News of Ocean Freight Cut.

The cotton market yesterday was again highly nervous and irregular. At the start and for an hour or so thereafter, the market declined steadily, on selling by local ring traders and some liquidation for New Orleans account. It was reported also that Japanese interests were selling. Liverpool bought moderately on the early decline and some of the Wall Street houses covered a few shorts. The selling, however, was much more aggressive than the buying and on the early break prices receded virtually a full cent a pound for the active near months.

Then came the news that the British Ministry of Shipping had reduced the Atlantic rate by 60 to 70 per cent., and the market, rejoicing that now the export movement would be allowed to go forward in much greater volume, became pronouncedly bullish. Nearly all of the early losses were recovered. The recovery was not entirely maintained, although the market continued firm to the close, and at the conclusion of business prices were 10 to 40 points below Saturday's closing figure.

The trade, especially in the early part of the day when the market was at its weakest, was inclined to lay great stress on the labor troubles in England.

The technical position of the market is considered to be very strong, with few speculative longs and a tremendous short interest. Incidentally, the market is down some 10 or 12 cents from where it stood when the long decline started. At the present time futures are quoted at less than most experts figure the cost of production.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Saving Your Investments

The man who by intelligent thrift is able to invest regularly often loses the benefit of his industry by an injudicious selection of securities. For the assistance of successful business men who are not intimately familiar with securities and their markets, we offer without charge the services of our Statistical Department. You are invited to call or write for information regarding any security.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 4,926 packages. Fairly large offerings, sluggish trade, and strong pressure to sell, with lower and unsettled prices for all classes of stock. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 62½@63c; extras, 92 score, 51½@52c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 49½@51c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 48@48c; lower grades, 45@47c; unsalted, higher than extras, 54½@55c; extras, 53½@54c; firsts, 51@53c; seconds, 49@50c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 50½@51c; good to prime, 48@50c; common to fair, 45@47c; renovated, extras, 50c; firsts, 48@49c; lower grades, 41@46c; imitation creamery, firsts, 45@46c; ladles, current make, firsts, 41½@42½c; seconds, 40c; lower grades, 38@39c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 35@35½c; No. 2, 37c; lower grades, 34@36c.

EGGS.—6,664 cases. Arrivals continue comparatively light, and advices indicate very moderate supplies in transit for the near future, although conditions in the country continue favorable to increased production. The tone of the market is firm at the moment, the offerings being no more than needed for the current requirements of the trade. Exchange sales were uniformly at 59½c for firsts from various sections, and that is the ruling price on average prime stock from store. There is some shortage of very high grade goods for which the market rules slightly in sellers' favor. Little doing in storage eggs and values nominally unchanged. Nearby white eggs are still in comparatively light supply. Some receivers are short of fancy stock to fill current orders, others report a sufficient supply and are generally offering at unchanged prices. Fancy Petaluma whites are meeting a fair demand at 70c, less desirable qualities are selling at lower prices, ranging down to 64c for some very good useful qualities. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 62c; extra firsts, 60@61c; firsts, 59@59½c; seconds and poorer, 56@56½c; dirties, No. 1, 54@55c; No. 2 and poorer, 50@53c; checks, good to choice, dry, 48@49c; undergrades, 43@47c; refrigerator, 32@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 70c; ordinary to prime, 64@69c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 64@69c; pullet whites, 64@65c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 69@70c; lower grades, 64@68c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 62@67c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 64@66c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 60@62c.

Big New Oil Well Comes In.

The Texas Company has brought in an oil well with an estimated daily capacity of 20,000 barrels, in Brazoria county, Texas. The well has been cut to 8,000 barrels a day, pending the completion of pipe line facilities. This is the largest strike in the Gulf fields in several years. The Texas Company has almost completed a six-inch line from West Columbia to Damon Mound, where it has 500,000 barrels storage.

New Liberty Bank Officials.

Directors of the Liberty National Bank yesterday elected George F. Murnane and Joseph F. Maxwell Vice Presidents. Mr. Murnane is now in France as Deputy Commissioner of the American Red Cross, associated with Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Liberty National Bank. He is Vice President of the H. K. McCann Company. Mr. Maxwell was formerly with the First National Bank, as assistant cashier.

Costs Cut Gross Income.

The United Light & Railways Company and subsidiaries report gross earnings of $9,161,197 in 1918, an increase of $1,598,049 over the preceding year. Net income after taxes amounted to $2,673,731, a decline of $106,570. The surplus of $979,789, after meeting fixed charges, was $207,618 less than in 1917.

To Extend Trading in Futures.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 27.—Commencing Feb. 3 trading in futures on the Cotton Exchange here will be extended to and include September, under special new contract terms.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

New York Assay Office shipped $1,800,000 of silver to India yesterday. The bullion was produced by melting down silver dollars.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company has declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share, payable March 1, provided that sufficient funds have been received by that date from the United States Government. Stockholders of record Feb. 3 will receive the dividend.

Simas Thomas of Paterson, N. J., was elected a Director of the Manhattan Shirt Company yesterday. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed steady and moderately active. Final prices were substantially higher than previous low levels in a majority of the active issues, and several stocks had net gains. Trading after midday was mixed in character and professional, with speculative interest centered in a small group of stocks. Prices improved in the afternoon session, but the market lacked any emphatic demand, and the list, as a whole, never fully recovered from the severe selling pressure that obtained after the opening.

BROOKLYN LIGHTING COMPANIES MERGED

Consolidated Corporation to be Known as the Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc.

BURR'S PROTEST IS HEEDED

Because of Corporation Counsel's Objection, Questionable Franchises Are Not Validated.

The application of the Kings County Electric Light and Power Company and the Brooklyn Edison Company for permission to merge into one concern to be known as the Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc., was granted yesterday by the Public Service Commission. Permission was also granted to the new company to issue $5,500,000 of gold bonds under a blanket mortgage of $100,000,000. Because of the protest of Corporation Counsel Burr against the merger on the ground that it was sought only to make valid the alleged questionable franchises of the two companies, the authority granted by the commission carries a provision that it shall not be construed as a review or to validate any lapsed or invalidated franchise or to enlarge or add to the powers and privileges of the merged concern.

Mr. Burr and his assistant, Vincent Victory said yesterday that the courts would be asked to decide whether the Public Service Commission had jurisdiction to permit a merger under the transportation corporation law which is the only act giving it power to permit mergers when the companies were incorporated under the general corporation law. In any event, it was said, the courts would be asked to pass upon the validity of the franchises of the merged companies.

The Kings County company has a capital stock of $19,000,000 of which $17,-[illegible] is outstanding, and $1,837,400 is reserved to meet an equal amount of 6 per cent. debenture bonds. The capital stock of the Edison Company amounts to $5,000,000, all of it outstanding. Two mortgages on the Kings County property aggregate $7,176,000 besides three ancillary mortgages issued to secure bonds of the Edison Company. There are two mortgages on the Edison Company's property aggregating $10,000,000 of which $4,820,000 is still due. The total amount of the mortgages of both concerns is $11,996,000.

In its application to the commission the Kings County company claimed to have the right to capitalize for more than an additional $10,000,000 because of additions to its plant and facilities. Of the total of $100,000,000 which the merged company may issue in securities only such portions will be sold as shall be consented to by the commission. It is also provided by the commission that the bonds sold shall net the company not less than 85 per cent. of the face value.

In making public its action the commission explained that every share of the stock of the Edison Company, which is the operating company, is owned by the Kings County company, and that the hearings upon the applications developed that the reasons for the merger are the simplifying of a large number of bookkeeping and financial transactions.

COMMODORE OPENS TODAY.

Several Thousand Guests Inspect New Hotel.

The new Hotel Commodore, adjoining the Grand Central Terminal, which opens for business today, was inspected yesterday afternoon by several thousand invited guests. The wonders of the hotel were explained by employes, who guided the guests about in small parties. Two orchestras played in the grand ballroom and the main lobby.

A buffet luncheon was served to the guests in the ballroom. Descriptive booklets describing the features of the hotel were distributed by the management to those who attended.

COURT CALENDARS

CASES WILL BE CALLED IN THE ORDER GIVEN BELOW.
(<) This character means versus or against.

FEDERAL.

Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — William P. Maloney and Owen N. Brown of New York City were admitted to practice.

164—U. S. and Mrs. J. Brown, aplts., v. New Orleans Pac. Ry. Co. et al.; 165—U. S. and W. R. Turner, aplts., v. same; and 166—U. S. and S. N. Grant, aplts., v. same.—Decrees in Nos. 164 and 165 reversed, and decree in No. 166 affirmed.

252—The Bank of California, National Assn., plain., v. F. W. Richardson, as Treasurer of State of California.—Decree reversed, with costs, and cause remanded.

113—The Bank of California National Assn., plain., v. F. D. Roberts, as Treasurer of State of California. Per curiam.—This case is controlled by the opinion in Bank of California v. Richardson, just decided. Indeed, it was submitted without briefs upon the briefs filed in that case. For the reasons stated in the previous case, therefore, the judgment here must be reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

165—E. V. Buskirk, administratrix of estate of W. V. Buskirk, deceased, plain. v. Erie Rd. Co. Per curiam—Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

182—J. D. Boxley, plain. v. E. M. Scott and F. Cheney. Per curiam—Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Education Notes.

Commencement exercises of P. S. 119, 257 West 133d Street, will be held at 10 A. M. today.

The commencement at St. Nicholas School, P. S. 10, Boys', 117th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, will be held at 9 A. M. tomorrow.

The School and College Committee of the City College Club has been directed to cooperate with the Board of Education's committee now considering teachers' salaries.

Beginning Feb. 3 the Fordham University School of Law, located in the Woolworth Building, will resume afternoon sessions.

Professor Leigh Hunt will speak on "Corot, Millet, and Rousseau" at the City College in Doremus Lecture Hall at 4:15 P. M. today. Professor Samuel Baldwin will speak on "Beethoven and Expression in Music" at 4:15 P. M. This course is given in the great hall of the college.

The Board of Examiners announces examinations for promotion licenses to teach in the grades of the last two years in elementary schools, to be held Feb. 24 and again in September. Candidates will be required to take but one academic paper instead of a major and minor subject as heretofore. An official announcement of this examination will be issued to all schools within a few days.

The preparation of the eligible list for appointment as teacher-clerk in elementary schools is announced. Candidates will be admitted to this examination who will have completed a year of service in school office work not later than June 30 next. Experience as a clerical worker under the substitute's license in the administration office of the Board of Education will be accepted as experience in school office practice. The age limit has been fixed at 40, but is not to be applied to those already entered upon service as substitute additional teacher. The salary runs from $600 to $1,200, by annual increase of $50. Applications should be filed at the offices of the Board of Examiners not later than Feb. 1. The written and oral tests will be held Monday thereafter.

Applications are invited for license as teacher of training in high schools on the following subjects: Accounting and business practice, biology, chemistry, economics, elocution, English, French, history, mathematics, physics, Spanish, and stenography and typewriting, (Gregg or Pitman.) Application should be filed in proper form not later than Jan. 31. The examinations will probably be held during the following week. Teachers in training receive $2 a day. Successful experience as teacher in training will be accepted toward meeting the qualification of experience in teaching required of applicants for license as assistant (i. e. regular,) teacher in high schools. The examination will consist of an oral test in the applicant's specialty, and a rating of the applicant's personality, including use of English.

The Retirement Board will meet at 4 P. M. today in Room 710, Municipal Building.

The Stuyvesant Evening Trade School announced yesterday courses in estimating for printers and typography for advertisers, which are given on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30. Courses in proofreading and printers' English are given on Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30. Application for admission should be made at the office of the Principal, Fifteenth Street, near First Avenue.

At the Brooklyn Training School for Teachers a free thirty-hour course in educational measurements will be offered to teachers in New York City. The course will be given on Tuesdays from 4 to 5:30 P. M., beginning Tuesday, Feb. 3. Registration in advance is not required.

WINE VAULT CLEARANCE

We offer famous Vintage Champagnes, such as Pol Roger, 1904, 1906, 1909; Clicquot 1906, etc.; Brandies, Burgundies, Clarets, Rhine and Moselle Wines, Ports, Sherries, Cordials and Gins, and Scotch, Bourbon and Rye Whiskies. They represent the great reserve stocks imported and carried for our discriminating wholesale trade.

We also have large quantities of the more popular Wines, Gins, Brandies, Cordials and Whiskies, Cased and in Bulk.

Though we still offer a broad selection, the finer goods are being rapidly bought up.

An early inspection of the stocks is invited.

SEEK TO CONCILIATE MILLS AND WORKERS

Reconstruction Commission Hopes to Avert Conflict in Textile Industry.

AFFECTS 40,000 IN STATE

Employment of Discharged Soldiers and Tunnel to New Jersey Also Up for Consideration.

The Governor's Reconstruction Commission began work yesterday on several problems that are pressing for early solution, the most important of which is the alleviation of the conditions confronting the textile industry in the central part of New York State, where 40,000 workers will be thrown out of work on Feb. 3 if present plans are carried out. The problem of the unemployed discharged soldiers in New York City, who have come from other parts of the country, will also be taken under consideration early this week, and on Saturday the Committee on Education, of which Dr. Felix Adler is Chairman, will hold its first meeting to consider the administration of the Slater military training law and related educational questions.

The Governor yesterday presented another problem to the commission. He desires it to inquire into the merits of a proposition to build a tunnel for vehicles under the Hudson River to connect New York City with New Jersey. The commission will determine the relative advantages to the two communities, the proportionate amounts which they should bear, and the feasibility of financing the project if the desirability of building it is determined upon.

In the various reports which come to the commission from the centres of the textile industry, the manufacturers contend that there is not enough work to keep the employes in their jobs, and that, therefore, they must be released, whereas the workers hold that they are now entitled to the eight-hour day, which was promised to them during the war, and declare that on and after Feb. 3 they will work only eight hours. The Committee on Industrial Problems, of which V. Everit Macy is Chairman and Charles P. Steinmetz is Acting Chairman, and the Committee on Unemployment, of which John G. Agar is Chairman, will hold a joint meeting in Albany next Thursday to take evidence and to hear testimony in the case. The inquiry will be conducted by Abram I. Elkus, Chairman of the commission, and if it is found necessary, will be continued in other parts of the State.

Labor Leader Makes Statement.

With reference to these labor troubles, John Golden, President of the Textile Workers of America, said yesterday that the workers are not contemplating a strike, but that the plan was for every worker to work no more than eight hours on Feb. 3. "This plan," he said, "was adopted at a meeting of representatives of the Textile Workers of America last November. Our fight is for the forty-eight-hour week as against the fifty-four-hour week, for which the State textile manufacturers are fighting. The order will be nation-wide; however, the part of New York State that will be principally affected will be the region around Utica and Cohoes, where there are large knit goods and silk and cotton plants."

The Committee on Demobilization and the Committee on Unemployment had planned yesterday morning to hold a joint meeting at 4 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon in the offices of the commission in the Hall of Records, to consider problems in connection with the unemployment of discharged soldiers who come from other cities, but are remaining in New York, but Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Secretary of the commission, announced last night that the meeting will probably be postponed until later in the week.

Co-operation between the United States Employment Service and the Salvation Army, is solving some of the difficulties incident upon unemployment of soldiers in New York, it was announced yesterday. The Salvation Army has already provided hundreds of soldiers with jobs, has supplied many of them with civilian clothing, and has furnished funds to the impecunious ones so that they may pay the fare to their home towns. "The greatest difficulty," said an officer of the Employment Service, "is to take care of the men who are not residents of New York. They are being discharged here, but seem loth to return home. The bright lights of Broadway seem to attract them, they soon find themselves without money enough to travel, and then they apply for jobs here, when they should have left the city long ago."

EXTENDS TO NEW ENGLAND.

120,000 Workers There Join Movement for Eight-Hour Day.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 27.—The movement of the United Textile Workers of America for an eight-hour day, beginning next Monday, was extended today to approximately one-half the mill industry in New England. The mills in the industrial centres that have joined in the demand employ more than 120,000 workers, and the movement is spreading. Each of the several organizations to which the proposition has ben submitted has accepted it. These include branches of the American Federation of Labor, the United Textile Workers of America, the International Loomfixers' Association, the International Wool Sorters' Union, and the Local Joint Textile Councils.

In some instances the mill owners have made no answer to the demands of the workers, but wherever there has been a reply it has been a refusal. W. Frank Shove, President of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, announced a few days ago that representatives of that organization, of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, and of the Silk Association of America were agreed that the demand should be rejected, and it was stated today that this announcement covered the present position of the organizations which represent the manufarturers in New England.

The situation has ben complicated by the fact that many mills are working only thirty or forty hours a week, owing, it is said, to the uncertainty of market conditions in raw materials and the lack of orders. In some of these cases the workers have decided not to press their demands at present, while in others they have decided that after working the equivalent of the new hours they will walk out and return the following week.

The reasons assigned by the manufacturers for not agreeing to the demands for shorter hours are given by William E. Sigley of Pawtucket, R. I. He says the time is inopportune because the standard cannot be made to apply to all sections of the country alike, and that it will result in the raising of prices to the consumer, thus making it impossible to compete with the foreign product.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

A west side deal which will lead to an early apartment operation was closed yesterday by Henry Claman, who purchased the four-story residence at 323 West Seventy-seventh Street, between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive, from Marie D. Bergh. It covers a plot 19 by 100.2 and was purchased last July. He now controls a plot frontage of thirty-eight feet. He is having plans prepared by Gronenberg & Leuchtag, architects, for erecting on the plot a six-story bachelor apartment house with studios, containing six small suites on each floor.

The Herman Arms Company was the broker in the sale.

Brown Resells on Northern Avenue.

The resale of 50 Northern Avenue, a five-story apartment house, by Frederick Brown, operator, to Joseph Schwartz for cash was closed yesterday. The structure occupies a plot 75 by 100 on the northwest corner of 179th Street, and was held at $125,000. M. I. Strunsky, negotiated the sale.

Buy Site for Big Fur Storage Building.

A. W. Miller & Co., sold for Julia S. Kirby, 237-243 West Twenty-seventh Street, four five-story tenements on a plot 83 by 65. This is the first sale of the property since 1851. The property was held at $110,000. The purchaser is M. Groh's Sons Inc., who operate the cold storage vaults at 238 and 250 West Twenty-eighth Street directly in the rear of the premises just sold. M. Groh's sons, Inc., purchased through the same brokers last month the adjoining property 245, 257, and 249 West Twenty-seventh Street from Wilbur C. Goodale being three four-story tenements on a plot 75 by 100. They had for years owned 251 West Twenty-seventh Street, giving them a total frontage of 173 feet in Twenty-seventh Street and 174 feet 6 inches in Twenty-eighth Street.

The buildings covering the Twenty-seventh Street frontage of 173 feet will be razed and there will be erected theron a twelve-story warehouse to be known as the Fur Merchants' Cold Storage Vaults and will be leased exclusively to the fur trade. Twenty-five per cent. of the space in the new building has already been contracted for by the large department stores of New York City.

Old Seventh Avenue Holding Sold.

Louis Schrag sold for the estate of John Smith the four-story building 237 Seventh Avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Streets, to a client for cash. There has been no transfer of this property since 1859.

Tenement Deals.

The Levitan Corporation purchased from J. P. Boyland and M. Beckman 208 and 210 East 122d Street, two five-story tenements, each on a lot 25 by 100. Henry Weil negotiated the sale.

The Grassi Realty Company sold to an investor 9 and 11 West Ninety-seventh Street, a six-story apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100, held at $125,000. A. R. Lesinsky negotiated the sale.

$135,000 Waterfront Deal in the East Bronx.

Eugene A. Walsh has sold for F. Milton Welch, as owner, the waterfront property on the west side of 135th Street and Locust Avenue, consisting of approximately twenty-eight lots, with bulkhead in size about 161 by 448 feet, to the James H. Young Stone Company, Inc. The property, which is occupied as a lumber yard, was held at $135,000, and has been owned by the sellers for twenty-five years.

The same broker recently sold to Robert Grant, dealer in iron and steel, the entire block running from 135th to 136th Streets, Walnut Avenue, to the Connecting Railroad and the northerly half of the block to the east, running from Walnut to Locust Avenue, a plot 101 by 350, with a one-story building thereon. The purchasers of the waterfront property just sold were the owners of the one-story building on a plot 101 by 350 feet mentioned above, where they formerly maintained their stone business.

Upper Manhattan Deal.

Amalie A. and Charles H. J. Dilg sold to an investing client of Charles S. Kohler, Inc., the five-story new-law house, on plot 50 by 112.6, at the southwest corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 180th Street. The property rents for $10,266 per annum. It was held at $80,000. The sellers bought the property through the same brokers in September, 1917, from the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, which took it under foreclosure for mortgages aggregating $80,000.

Brooklyn.

The Clinton Trading Corporation sold to Michael J. Irwin the dwelling 578 Hunterspoint Avenue, Long Island City, on a plot about 25 by 111. J. K. Lundy was the broker in the transaction.

Queens Borough Sales.

The City Real Estate Company sold to E. Kmeale a plot with improvements, 100 by 200, on the south side of Cherry Street west of Prospect Avenue, Douglaston.

The Windsor Park Realty Company sold to I. Kassell a plot 60 by 100 on the west side of Culton Avenue, north of Sea Girt Avenue, Far Rockaway.

Westchester County.

Fish & Marvin sold for the John T. Brook Company its new house on Willard Avenue at Pelham Manor to Newton M. Argabrite of Manhattan. The property was held at $12,000.

A Recent Buyer.

Bernard Cransman, President of the J. G. Leasing Company, is the buyer of the six-story elevator apartment on the southwest corner of 111th Street and Seventh Avenue, sold last Saturday for the Guggenheimer estate.

Realty Notes.

Plans were filed for erecting a four-story warehouse at 233 to 235 West Thirty-sixth Street, a plot 42 by 98.9, by W. W. Hussey, as owner. The architect, G. Keister, places the cost at $75,000.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased the store at 93 Worth Street to Elbert F. Wilmerding.

The Bronx Market.

Cahn & Pittman, operators, and Philip Wattenberg resold to Bella Feurst, for investment, the five-story new-law apartment 938 East 163d Street, on a plot 50 by 112. The sellers recently purchased this property from the Benenson Realty Company. Harry H. Cohen negotiated the sale.

Williamson & Bryan sold for John Haffen to the First Baptist Church 685 to 595 Courtlandt Avenue, between 150th and 151st Streets, a four-story building, on a plot 65 by 100, known as Melrose Turn Hall.

J. Clarence Davies sold 726 Coster Street, 350 feet south of Hunts Point Avenue, a two-story detached brick dwelling, on a lot 25 by 77, to Louis H. Stoller.

LEGAL NOTICES.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the second day of January, 1919, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, No. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 5th day of February, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows: "All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan, and bounded and described as follows:

"BEGINNING at a point in the northerly line of One Hundred and Twelfth Street, distant one hundred and one (101) feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the westerly line of Lexington Avenue with the said northerly line of One Hundred and Twelfth Street; running thence northerly parallel with Lexington Avenue one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches; thence westerly, parallel with One Hundred and Twelfth Street, twenty-four (24) feet ten and one-half (10½) inches; thence southerly parallel with Lexington Avenue and part of the distance through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches to the northerly line of One Hundred and Twelfth Street; thence easterly along the said last-mentioned line twenty-four (24) feet ten and one-half (10½) inches to the point or place of beginning. Being known as No. 125 East One Hundred and Twelfth Street."

LAWRENCE H. SANDERS, Referee.

The approximate amount of the mortgage debt, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is $22,250.62, with interest thereon from the 30th day of December, 1918, together with the costs and allowance amounting to $348.84, with interest from December 30, 1918, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $629.00 and interest.

Dated, New York, January 8, 1919.

TRUSTEE'S SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—Trustee's Sale.—S. S. "ARLINGTON."

Notice is hereby given that, by an order of the above-named Court, the undersigned Trustee, under the provisions of Sections 4283, 4284, and 4285 of the U. S. R. S., will sell at public auction on Wednesday, February 5, 1919, at 1 P. M. o'clock, the S. S. "Arlington," her tackle, apparel, furniture, etc., sale to take place on board said S. S. "Arlington" where she now lies, on the shores of Greenwood Lake, New York, where she can be seen and inspected.

Dated, January 25th, 1919.

EDWARD L. OWEN, Trustee.

Machine Shop For Sale

The property of the undersigned, who has been engaged in the manufacture of 155 Millimeter Common Steel Shell. Offers will be received for the entire property on which there is no mortgage or encumbrance.

This consists of a machine shop and about seven and one-half acres of land located on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, on Clyde Avenue, Buffalo, having a spur track on each side of the building. The land is fenced. The main building is single story, well lighted and in good condition, of stone construction, 80 feet x 300 feet, a stone addition thereto, 30 feet x 200 feet and a frame addition, 88 feet x 304 feet, together with other outbuildings, among which are a restaurant and time and employment office.

This is a modern plant with a low tax rate and cheap electric power. The equipment consists of electric motors and transformers, air compressors, boilers and heating system, high class tool room equipment, office fixtures and furnishings, belting, shafting and hangers, furnaces, lathes, boring mills, drill presses, grinders, pumping and conveyor systems, benches, special machinery, etc., all being in good operating condition.

The property is open to inspection and may be seen by applying at the premises. Any offer made must have the approval of the Ordnance Department before acceptance.

The commission announces for Feb. 26 at the New York Custom House an examination for mineral examiner, for men only. Vacancies in the General Land Office Service for duty in the field or in Washington, D. C., at entrance salaries ranging from $1,380 to $1,500 a year, with an allowance of $3.50 a day while away from designated field headquarters on official duty, will be filled from this examination. Certification for filling vacancies in positions with headquarters outside of Washington, D. C., will be made of the highest eligibles examined in the section of the country in which the appointee is to be employed, except that upon the request of the department certification will be made of the highest eligibles on the register for the entire country who have expressed willingness to accept appointment where the vacancy exists. The duties require thorough knowledge of geology, mineralogy, practical mining, and the land laws concerning mining claims on the public domain. Competitors will be examined in practical questions in geology, mineralogy, and mineral disposition, elementary mathematics and surveying, report on a subject connected with the general nature of the examination, and education, training, and experience. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Air pressure is relatively low along the northern border and high in other parts of the country, the greatest excess in pressure being over the Rocky Mountain region. Clear skies and mild temperatures continue throughout the country, although within the last twenty-four hours there were rains in Texas, Oklahoma, and Western Arkansas and snow flurries in Northern New England.

Every outlook is for fair weather and moderate to mild temperature over all parts of the country east of the Mississippi River Tuesday and Wednesday.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate west; Middle Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate southwest and west; South Atlantic Coast, gentle variable.

FORECAST—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Tuesday and probably Wednesday with mild temperatures.

Western New York—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday with mild temperature.

Northern New England—Partly cloudy Tuesday and Wednesday, not much change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	19	38	4 P. M.	14	47
6 A. M.	17	36	6 P. M.	12	46
9 A. M.	14	38	9 P. M.	14	41
12 M.	13	45	11 P. M.	15	37

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 42; for the corresponding date last year it was 14; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 35, at 8 P. M. it was 44. Maximum temperature 50 degrees at 4:15 P. M., minimum 35 degrees at 8 A. M. Humidity 52 per cent. at 8 A. M., 43 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.95 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.00 inches.

B. R. T. MAY BORROW $3,000,000 AT ONCE

SPECIAL MASTER TO DECIDE

Ex-Judge Lacombe Will Pass Upon the Issue of Certificates for the Balance of $12,859,356.96.

Judge Julius M. Mayer, in the United States District Court, yesterday afternoon, heard parties interested in the application of Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, and the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, for permission to raise $16,859,356.96 by the issue and sale of that amount of receiver's certificates. After a discussion which lasted most of the afternoon the court authorized the receiver to raise immediately by a temporary loan or loans $3,000,000, the amount to be raised by the issue of receiver's certificates, the time of issue and the character of the priority of the lien supporting the issue to be determined by the facts brought out at hearings before a Special Master to be appointed by the court. Judge Mayer announced that he would appoint as such Special Master ex-United States Judge E. Henry Lacombe.

A formidable array of lawyers was present. Paul D. Cravath represented the Noteholders' Committee and Elihu Bisbee the Stockholders' Committee. Cullen & Wingate represented the People's Trust Company of Brooklyn, the Kings County Elevated and the Brooklyn Union Elevated lines. Ex-Supreme Court Justice Francis M. Scott represented the Corn Exchange Bank, Corporation Counsel William P. Burr the city, William L. Ransom the Public Service Commission, George S. Franklin the War Finance Committee, Mr. Morgan the Franklin Trust Company, and Carl M. Owen the receiver.

Early in the hearing it developed that the receiver must have within the next few days $370,000 with which to pay interest on bonds of the Kings County and Brooklyn Union Elevated Railroad Companies and the interest on notes past due, held by various banks. Of this amount $530,000 is due on Saturday. Mr. Garrison said that he thought the interest should be paid, and he could pay it if authorized to realize on something like $6,000,000 of 4 per cent. refunding bonds of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company held in the company's treasury. The market price of these bonds is now around 50. Mr. Cravath said the Noteholders' Committee had considered the issue of receiver's certificates very carefully. The receiver said he would need about $3,000,000 to meet obligations maturing between now and April 1. Therefore Mr. Cravath suggested that the court authorize the receiver to make short-time loans for that amount, using as collateral the refunding bonds in the company's treasury. Mr. Cravath added that he was empowered to say for the bankers who had always financed the B. R. T. that they would provide the receiver with $3,000,000 secured by these bonds. The court so ordered.

Attorneys for the various banks holding overdue notes of the companies in the hands of the receiver asked that the court order the receiver to renew the notes and pay the accrued interest. That brought forth an immediate and emphatic objection from the receiver. Mr. Garrison said he had no objection to paying the interest, but he was not willing to renew the notes, for by so doing he would create a new liability against the receiver, and the receiver had liabilities enough to take care of. It was finally agreed that the receiver should pay the interest and the companies which issued the notes should renew them. The notes amount, all told, to $3,800,000.

The immediate needs of the company having been provided for, the attorney for the receiver asked that the court issue orders for settlement to be made on notice of the Malbone Street tunnel wreck claims; for the employing by the receiver of certain certified public accountants; for adjustment of certain bank loans; for carrying on of the company's welfare work; for appointing a special master, and for the exact forms of the raising of the $3,000,000. Judge Mayer said he would hear counsel on the issuing of these orders in his chambers on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. William Erbe, a lawyer and small stockholder, then said:

"When we learn from the receiver that he will need, ultimately, something like $17,000,000, I ask your honor to take judicial notice of the salaries that the receiver has been paying to officials formerly employed by the company. I hold in my hand a list showing salaries that are being paid to the amount of more than $400,000. Here is the head of the law department, for instance, who is drawing $25,000 a year. I think, in the interest of economy, these salaries should be reduced."

"It may as well be known first as last," said Judge Mayer, "that this court is not going to chop a thousand dollars from a salary here and three thousand from a salary there, after years have been spent in building up the various departments over which these men preside. Big and complex corporations are not successfully run that way. When the receiver finds that he had no need of this, that or the other man drawing the salaries you complain of, he will get rid of him."

PLAN TO HONOR ROOSEVELT.

Women Organize Memorial Committee and Elect Officers.

The Women's Roosevelt Memorial Committee, which will raise a fund for the erection of a memorial to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, was organized yesterday at the residence of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, 667 Fifth Avenue.

The question as to what manner of memorial would be most suitable as a permanent monument to the memory of the ex-President was discussed, and several plans were put forward, but no decision was arrived at. The question whether this organization should cooperate with other bodies planning to do honor to the name of Colonel Roosevelt or should act independently was also left to be settled later.

Mrs. William C. Demorest was elected President of the committee. The others elected to be officers of the committee were: Vice Presidents—Mrs. Henry Alexander, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. John H. Hammond and Mrs. Henry A. Wise-Wood; Secretary—Mrs. James Russell Parsons; Treasurer—Mrs. Walter Damrosch.

The following were elected honorary members: Chairman—Mrs. Leonard Wood; Vice Chairmen—Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. William Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Mrs. James T. Leavitt, Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr., Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. James Roosevelt, and Mrs. Elihu Root.

The following Board of Directors was elected:

Mrs. F. K. Pendleton.	Mrs. C. D. Dickey,
Mrs. Robert Bacon,	Mrs. H. Garland,
Mrs. W. Barbour,	Mrs. G. G. Griswold,
Mrs. C. A. Bryan,	Miss M. G. Hey,
Mrs. J. Buckley,	Mrs. A. B. Hepburn,
Mrs. J. A. Burden, Jr.	Mrs. R. Hitchcock,
Mrs. W. A. Butler,	Mrs. E. O. Holter,
Miss Mabel Choate,	Mrs. W. B. James,
Mrs. H. Marquand,	Mrs. H. F. Osborn,
Mrs. J. A. Murray,	Mrs. Payne Whitney,
Mrs. W. F. Morgan,	Mrs. W. R. Willcox,
Mrs. R. Winthrop,	Mrs. V. F. Simkhovitch,
Mrs. G. La Farge,	Mrs. C. Vanderbilt,
Miss E. F. Read,	Miss C. D. Spence.
Mrs. J. A. Iuly.

After the election of officers a number of those on the committee held an informal discussion at the residence of Mrs. Demorest, at 18 East Ninety-fourth Street.

LORRAINE NEARS PORT.

French Liner Carrying Troops May Not Dock Until Tomorrow.

According to a wireless message received from the Captain yesterday, the French liner Lorraine, with 429 American troops on board, will reach the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 4 P. M. today. The vessel may not arrive at her pier at the foot of West Fifteenth Street, North River, until tomorrow. Her passengers include the Headquarters troop, medical corps, and Battery F of the 339th Field Artillery.

On the arrival of the Lorraine it is expected that the ship's officers or the American Red Cross officials on board will be able to state definitely whether the Misses Cromwell boarded the vessel at Bordeaux on Sunday, Jan. 19, and afterward jumped overboard, as described in the cable dispatches and confirmed by the Commissaire of Police.

Other incoming ships are the Minnesota, seventeen days from Gibraltar, due at Sandy Hook at 11 A. M. today with eight casual officers; the West Galeta, with thirteen French soldiers, and the Galesburg, with one officer and twenty-four enlisted men.

Oregon troops returning from service overseas are to be welcomed by a Reception Committee headed by O. C. Leiter of Portland, who was appointed by the Governor of that State, and headquarters has been opened in the Hotel McAlpin. The committee will meet the units returning from overseas, and will look out for their comfort.

SAVED FROM BURNING SHIP.

St. Clair Wilson Left Two Companions in Philadelphia Hospital.

St. Clair Wilson, one of the three survivors of the 1,500-ton American schooner August H. Babcock, which was burned at sea on Jan. 19 outbound from Constable Hook, N. J., with case oil and gasoline for Las Palmas, arrived yesterday from Philadelphia, where he left his two shipmates in the hospital in a serious condition from the burns they received. Wilson said that out of the crew of ten seven had been lost, including Captain J. E. Rawding, who was killed ov an explosion of a barrel of gasoline when he was forward on deck. He saw the Captain's body fall into the sea.

Wilson said the fire started on Jan. 19 and the crew fought it without success for forty-eight hours. By the morning of the 21st only the two seamen and himself were alive on the schooner. Just as the masts toppled over and the survivors gave themselves up for lost the Chinese freighter Hwah Yih steamed up and took them off. The Babcock was built in 1904 by E. J. K. Stetson at Brewer, Me., and measured 183 feet long and 11 feet draught, and was owned by Crowell & Thurlow of Boston, Mass. The cargo was valued at $600,000.

SAW OFFICER WITH GIRL ON PALISADES

ABANDON MURDER THEORY

Telephone Message from Allentown May Lead to Identification of Body as That of Missing Woman.

After working all day tracing indications of murder, the Bergen County authorities last night said they were almost certain that the young woman who was found Sunday in a Palisade cleft, apparently the victim of an anaesthetic, was self-slain. The police announced a theory that the girl went to Camp Merritt expecting to meet a soldier, found he had departed overseas, and then decided to kill herself. Further light on the soldier theory was furnished last night by Prosecutor Huckin, who said he had received a telephone call in the afternoon "from a reliable source" informing him that the person telephoning had seen a girl with a tall man wearing the uniform of a United States Army officer walking near the cliff shortly before Christmas. The girl's body indicated that she had been dead more than a month.

"This man told me," said Mr. Huckin, "that the couple were strolling along the top of the Palisades within 100 yards of where the body was found. He had a good chance to look at the officer, because he had purposely passed close to the spot because it was unusual to see any strollers there at this time of year. My informant will be at my office tomorrow morning to try to identify the girl's clothing."

A chance that the girl may be identified today was provided by a telephone message from Allentown, Penn., which informed County Prosecutor Huckin that the description of the victim tallied closely with an Allentown young woman who had been missing. Mr. Huckin said relatives were expected this morning to view the body.

George White, a taxicab driver with a stand at the Englewood, N. J., station, told Police Sergeant McKay at the Coytesville station that six weeks ago he had been hailed by a man who stood in the middle of the Lemoine Road—just back of where the body was discovered—and who asked him to help carry a girl a short distance, saying she had been hit by an automobile. White assisted in lifting the girl into the man's car, which then was driven east on Lemoine Road. White was unable to identify the body or recall any of the clothing as worn by the girl.

County detectives found the missing right-hand glove of the girl and a second hatpin. The glove was found on the way from the cliff top to the cleft where the body lay, and, in the opinion of Dr. Ogden, was thrown away the better to fit the knots which held chloroform-soaked bandages about her face. Dr. Ogden said the peculiar manner of adjusting these suggested that the girl had some expert knowledge of bandaging.

Acting Captain Ayres, in charge of the Bureau of Missing Persons at Police Headquarters, was approached last night by a young woman about 20 years old, who asked for an accurate description of the girl and the clothing she wore. She said a relative has been missing for a month from her Manhattan home. The young woman refused to give her name, and was advised by Ayres to visit the Greenleaf Morgue.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., Jan. 27.—Members of the family of Helen Bartos, who disappeared from her home here three weeks ago, declared today that they believed it was her body which was found on the Palisades. The description of the dead girl's hair, in particular, they said, tallied with that of the missing young woman. Mora Dallapulla, whose name has been connected with Miss Bartos's disappearance and who is under arrest here on a misdemeanor charge, also asserted that the published description of the dead woman bore a striking resemblance to the appearance of Miss Bartos, who, when he last heard from her, two weeks ago, was in Virginville, W. Va. The authorities of the latter place have been asked to make inquiries.

LOST BRACELET IN COURT.

Pawnbroker Sues Waiter for Loan on Mrs. Reisinger's Gems.

The details concerning the loss and recovery of a $5,000 diamond bracelet owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Reisinger of 993 Fifth Avenue formed an interesting incident in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, where Charles Starr, an ex-waiter at the Hotel Plaza, was arraigned on the complaint of Sigmund Berger, a pawnbroker at 206 West Forty-second Street, who asserted that the prisoner by "trick and device" had induced him to loan $2,050 on the gems. Magistrate Sweetser held Starr in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury. The pawnbroker is prosecuting Starr because the bracelet has been replevined and is now in the custody of the Sheriff's office pending the formal legal proceedings for its recovery.

Berger testified that Starr entered his place on Jan. 7, displayed one-half of the bracelet, announced that it was the property of Mrs. Reisinger, and said he had been requested by the owner to pawn it. Berger insisted, he asserted, that Starr give him proof that he was acting for the owner.

"Then Starr used the telephone and spoke to somebody, and represented to me that he was talking with Mrs. Reisinger," the pawnbroker said. "I then gave him $1,000 for the half bracelet, but reminded him that the owner was a member of a wealthy family. Starr replied that the owner needed the money in a hurry."

It was several days later when Starr returned and pawned the other part of the bracelet for $1,050. Some days later a Deputy Sheriff appeared and took possession of the gems.

Walter Reisinger told last night of the circumstances of the loss of his wife's bracelet and how it had been traced through an advertisement.

"My wife and I went to the Plaza on New Year's Day, and in removing a glove the bracelet became unfastened and dropped," said he. "Although it was missed within two or three minutes, we could not find it. We advertised the next day and offered a reward, but apparently the gems proved more tempting than the money to the finder.

"It appears that the finder showed one-half of the bracelet to a woman. She showed him the advertisement, with the reward, but he afterward pawned it. Then the woman, who apparently had some grievance, wrote to the jewelers in Maiden Lane, mentioned in the advertisement, informed him of the finding of the gems and we applied to the Sheriff."

There are forty-four diamonds in the bracelet, set in platinum.

O'LEARY GOES TO TRIAL.

Day Devoted to Arguing Motion to Quash Indictment.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, former editor, and Adolph Stern, former business manager of "Bull, who are under indictment for violating the Espionage Law, went to trial yesterday before Judge Augustus N. Hand, in the Federal District Court. The American Truth Society, of which O'Leary was the head, is also named in the indictment. The indictment charges that the defendants conspired to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the country, and that their acts tended to create mutiny and insubordination in the services.

The whole day was taken up in the argument of a motion made by the defense to quash the indictment. Colonel T. R. Felder, Arthur and John J. O'Leary, brothers of the defendant, appeared as counsel for the defense. The Government is represented by H. Snowden Marshall and James W. Osborne, Jr. Judge Hand will render his decision on the motion to quash the indictment today. The trial will be resumed at 10:30 this morning.

HARBOR STRIKE HEARING.

Decision of War Labor Board Will Soon Be Made Public.

The subcommittee of the National War Labor Board yesterday concluded taking evidence in the controversy between the marine workers and boat owners in this port upon the demands of the men for an eight-hour day and a 25 per cent. increase in wages, and argument by counsel was heard by the entire board, sitting in the Board of Estimate room in City Hall. A decision upon wages and working conditions probably will not be announced for several days.

Speaking of the point made by the boat owners that city employes and postmen were receiving smaller wages than the sums set down by the experts in the hearing as minimum wages, Frank P. Walsh, counsel for the workers, remarked that the Post Office Department was "presided over by a reactionary politician from Texas." He asserted that Government employes in the classes mentioned by the boat owners did not receive a living wage. One of his remedies for this, he said, was the resignation of Postmaster General Burleson by request of the President. In this city $100 additional ought to be added to the budgets of the professors and experts to set a minimum wage, Mr. Walsh said, and the amount thus would be brought to between $1,600 and $1,900.

Theodore H. Burgess, counsel for the Railroad Administration, operating about one-fourth of the marine equipment affected, introduced tables to show that the granting of the demands of the men for overtime beyond eight hours and extra pay for Sunday and holiday work would increase wages from 100 to 300 per cent. Captains who receive now about $160 would receive $393, compared to pay of $211 in Philadelphia and other ports, and floatmen, who now receive about $90 a month, would get under the new scale about $227 a month. It would be possible for lighter Captains, he said, to make from $20 to $25 a day. Mr. Burgess said that the eight-hour day already had been recognized as a definite policy by the Railroad Administration, but added that it was impracticable on the marine equipment.

Test Theatre Ticket Ordinance.

A test case in behalf of the ticket speculators, who contend that the ordinance passed recently by the Board of Aldermen is invalid and who have been arrested because they refused to take out licences, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in the name of Timothy Cavanaugh, an employe of Tyson & Brother, 1 West Forty-second Street, who was arrested in the roundup of unlicensed agencies. Counsel for Cavanaugh sued out a writ of habeas corpus, alleging that he is not held under a legal commitment. The constitutionality of the ordinance will be determined in the suit.

WANTS ESTATE'S ACCOUNTS.

Surrogate Cohalan listened yesterday to testimony against Richard H. Lane, an administrator of the estate of Mrs. Antoinette L. Schermerhorn, in a proceeding to adjudge him in contempt for refusing to obey an order to file an accounting. The chief witness against Lane was Mrs. Victoria May McKenzie, 75 years old and in feeble health, widow of John McKenzie, foreman of the Tweed jury. Mrs. McKenzie is now suing Lane for $600,000 in the Supreme Court to recover money alleged to have been lost by her through the acts of Lane, whom she had named with her as administrator of the estate of Mrs. Schermerhorn, sister of Mrs. McKenzie and widow of the Rev. John W. Schermerhorn.

Mrs. McKenzie said that Lane boasted of the fact that because of his psychic power over persons he met he could bend them to his will. She said that his power of thought transference was such that when she wrote out a secret cipher message unknown to him he reproduced it. She alleged that it was represented to her that her sister's estate amounted to more than $1,000,000, and on Lane's statement that he needed money with which to trace the assets she advanced him $81,000 for that purpose. She testified that he took her on an auto trip through Manhattan and pointed out various parcels of realty which he said comprised part of the Schermerhorn estate, one of which was a church and another a brownstone house which he said Mrs. Schermerhorn had left to be converted into a home for clergymen.

Lane admitted before the Surrogate that he had not been able to find any realty holdings and not even any stocks or bonds belonging to the estate, although he engaged seventy-four detectives during the five years between 1912 and 1917 and spent $30,000. He said he found some coupons, but these were lost when he was arrested in a civil suit brought by Mrs. McKenzie. Because of Mrs. McKenzie's feeble health her examination was adjourned until today.

OWNERSHIP IDEA SHELVED

Burleson on Stand Disclaims Any Intention to Force Permanent Federal Control.

CABLES' STATUS IN DOUBT

Not Mentioned in Resolution—Conflicting Reports on Political Lineup on Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The return of the telegraph and telephone systems to their owners on Dec. 31, 1919, was voted for this afternoon in executive session by the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, which had been considering a resolution introduced by its Chairman, Judge Moon, proposing to extend the period of control which the Postmaster General now exercises.

Some Administration leaders were tonight professing to be jubilant over the fact that the action taken would permit the Postmaster General to have the wires under his control for practically a year. Others felt that the action taken represented a compromise between what the Postmaster General wanted and the desire of Republican members that control of the wires be turned back to the owners on May 31.

Republican leaders in the committee were as jubilant as the Democrats professed to be, and, according to them, the "Administration" was licked to a frazzle" by the vote taken. These Republican members asserted that the original bill called for indefinite control and authority to negotiate for Government ownership.

Ownership Idea Eliminated.

The latter idea was stricken from the amended bill and control was strictly limited to the period terminating Dec. 31. In the opinion of the Republicans, one of the most important features of the action taken is the fact that the "substitute" adopted would give the Government control and possession of the telegraph and telephone systems only until Dec. 31 next, and only as such control exists "by virtue of the joint resolution of Congress dated July 16, 1918."

Mr. Madden said tonight that the re-enactment of the final section of the original resolution authorizing the President to take over the wire systems during the war strengthened the States in their fight against the increased long-distance telephone rates recently ordered by Postmaster General Burleson. The original resolution of July 16, 1918, which was re-enacted today, with a time limit on Government control, reads:

"Provided, further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to amend, repeal, impair, or affect existing laws, or powers of the States in relation to taxation, or the lawful police regulations of the several States, except wherein such laws, powers, or regulations, may affect the transmission of Government communication or the issue of stocks and bonds by such system or systems."

Text of Substitute Adopted.

The substitute which the committee adopted reads:

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, as an auxiliary to the Postal System, the Government control and possession of the telephone and telegraph systems of the United States now existing by virtue of the joint resolutions of Congress dated July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President, be, and the same is hereby, continued until Dec. 31, 1919.

"Provided, That nothing contained herein shall be held to alter or repeal any of the language of the resolution of July 16, 1918, except that provision which provides that the Government control, supervision, and operation of the telegraph and telephone lines shall not extend beyond the proclamation of the President of the signing of the treaty of peace and the ratification thereof."

The Moon resolution, in place of which the committee today voted the substitute offered by Mr. Bell, read:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That as an auxiliary to the postal system the Government control and possession of the telephone and telegraph systems of the United States now existing by virtue of the joint resolution of Congress dated July 16, 1918, and the proclamation of the President be, and the same is hereby, continued until otherwise ordered by Congress.

The Postmaster General shall cause to be fixed the appraised value of all the telegraph lines, property, and effects of any or all of the telegraph companies, as provided in Section 3 of the Act of July 24, 1918, and report the result thereof to Congress for its consideration.

The Postmaster General is also directed to negotiate for the purchase

IMMIGRATION BAN WINS FIRST TEST

House Committee Favorably Reports Bill to Put On Four-Year Restriction.

BACKED BY UNION LABOR

Opponents of Measure to File Minority Report—Deportation Bill Advanced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Burnett bill to restrict general immigration for four years was ordered favorably reported to the House today by the Immigration Committee. This measure is strongly espoused by organized labor, but is not understood to have the approval of the State Department, which fears that it will interfere with treaties. Some of those opposing the bill, including Representativee Siegel of New York and Sabath of Illinois, were not at the meeting today and will present a minority report to the House.

Arguments advanced for the bill are that there will be a great flow of immigration from the war-stricken countries of Europe, including agitators such as have thrown sections of Europe into the throes of Bolshevism. Organized labor leaders insist that there are sufficient laborers in the United States, and contend that if immigration is not restricted wages cannot be maintained at a proper scale.

Representative Burnett said that he viewed the matter almost solely from the point of view of a man desirous of keeping out of the United States undesirables, sure to seek these shores and perhaps spread radical doctrines.

Mr. Burnett intends to ask the Rules Committee to report a rule for the prompt consideration of his bill. The present legislative jam not only in the House but in the Senate may prevent action on the bill in this session.

In effect, the bill would prohibit general immigration from Europe and Asia for a period of four years, but residents of Cuba, Canada, Newfoundland, and Mexico are excluded from the provisions of the measure.

The express exemption of Canada, Newfoundland and Mexico from the operations of the bill, was contained in an amendment which was adopted by the Committee today. This amendment did not extend the exemption to Cuba or give any other list of excepted countries. However, in one of the administrative amendments sent to the Committee by the Commissioner General of Immigration, there was an allusion to "Canada, Newfoundland, Mexico, and Cuba" as excepted countries. This conflict between the two amendments, one containing reference to Cuba, the other omitting it, will have to be adjusted when the bill comes before the House for amendment.

Provisions of the Bill.

The salient provisions of the bill are:

"That from and after the passage of the act, and until the expiration of four years next after its passage, the immigration of aliens to the United States be, and the same is hereby, prohibited, and during such time it shall not be lawful for any alien to come from any foreign port or place, or having come, to remain within the United States: Provided, that said section shall not apply to persons of the following status or occupations: Accredited Government officials, their families, attendants, servants, and employes, ministers or religious teachers, missionaries, teachers, students, authors, lawyers, and engineers, chemists, physicians, professional artists, and travelers for pleasure, business, or curiosity, or to their legal wives or their children under sixteen years of age who shall accompany them or subsequently apply for admission with the purpose of joining them.

"Provided further, that any alien admissible under this section, or any alien heretofore or hereafter legally admitted, or any citizen of the United States, may bring in or send for his father or grandfather over 55 years of age, his wife, his mother, his grandmother, his unmarried or widowed daughter, or his son not over 18 years of age, nephews and nieces, if orphans, not over 14 years of age, if otherwise admissible, and such relatives shall be permitted to enter. And provided further, that nothing in this section shall operate to exclude any aliens who shall prove to the satisfaction of the proper immigration officer or to the Secretary of Labor that they are seeking admission to the United States solely to avoid religious persecution in the country of their last permanent residence, whether such persecution be evidenced by overt acts or by laws or Government regulations that discriminate against the

USED ONLY MAIDEN NAME

Lived Alone in Apartment, Seemed Well to Do, and Drove Her Own Car in War Service.

HAD THREATENED SUICIDE

Daughter of G. H. Packwood, a Tampa Business Man — Had Secretly Married Major Fenton.

The mystery of the slender, auburn-haired woman whose body was found on Sunday by hunters' dogs lying in a cleft on the lip of the Palisades opposite 180th Street was unveiled last night when positive identification was announced and a tragedy of the war disclosed. She was Miss Axcele Packwood, 28 years old, daughter of George H. Packwood, a wealthy business man of Tampa, Fla. and, according to dispatches from that city, had secretely married a Major Fenton. The story of love, patriotic service, bereavement, despair, and suicide which ended among the bleak, wind-swept boulders atop the Jersey heights, pieced together from the statements of Thomas J. Huckins, Prosecutor of Bergen County, and Mrs. Bradford Ellsworth of 344 West Eighty-seventh Street, who made the identification, follows:

On an afternoon in mid-June last year Mrs. Ellsworth went to the headquarters of the American Red Cross Motor Corps to enlist as a driver of an ambulance. When she entered the headquarters she found there, among others who had come to offer their service to the country, a strikingly handsome young woman with great masses of brown hair, tinged with red—a thing that first drew her attention, and when Mrs. Ellsworth found that the woman was a stranger in the city she was attracted to her. Both passed the tests for admittance to the corps, had luncheon together, and an acquaintance began.

They saw comparatively little of each other, however, for the soft-spoken Southerner seemed possessed of but one ambition—to fit herself for Red Cross nursing overseas. Her quest for medical knowledge and her frequent wistful talks of the dangers to soldiers overseas had no particular significance to Mrs. Ellsworth at that time. Later, however, on last Monday evening in fact, she came to know the real meaning of the interest.

Each pursued her ways, hearing only occasionally of the other, until Monday night. Mrs. Ellsworth, in her apartment near Riverside Drive, was about to begin dinner when the telephone bell jingled. Over the wire came a man's voice, inquiring if Mrs. Ellsworth was listening.

"You know Mrs. ——," the man asked, and, as Mrs. Ellsworth heard the name only indistinctly—it was strange to her at that moment—she demanded sharply to know to whom the caller wished to speak.

"Wife of the Major."

"Mrs. ——," the man again mumbled, "you know, the Major, the wife of the Major—Miss Packwood of the Red Cross, as you know her. Have you seen her lately?"

Instantly came back to her the way the quiet Southern woman had spoken of dangers to soldiers, of her desire to go overseas as a Red Cross nurse—and Mrs. Ellsworth guessed the secret. Miss Packwood had married a Major in the army, and—for her letters from Tampa always came addressed Miss—she had concealed the fact from her parents.

"Don't you think Mrs. —— may be the girl on the Palisades?"—it was the voice of the mumbling caller breaking in on Mrs. Ellsworth—"have you gone over—"

The click of the operator breaking the connection cut short the man's talk, and Mrs. Ellsworth turned to the wondering family at the table, who had marked the startling changes of her face. Then came to Mrs. Ellsworth a recollection that a month ago the Red Cross had notified her that Miss Packwood had dropped out of sight and had urged all members of the corps to aid in finding her. A discussion followed, and Mrs. Ellsworth decided to go to Englewood the next morning.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Ellsworth entered the office of Mayor Stanley Clarke in Tenafly. The Mayor is the son of the late Dumont Clarke, once President of the American Exchange National Bank of this city, and he readily agreed to accompany her to Greenleaf's morgue in a side street of Englewood. The small knot of curious persons who were gazing through the windows as they or others had done since the body arrived, at a small bundle of clothing or at the oaken panels of the door leading to the morgue itself, parted lazily to let Mrs. Ellsworth pass through.

With faces pressed against the glass they saw the tall, heavily veiled woman in furs look fixedly at the clothes—the raccoon fur coat, the thick woolen golfing stockings, the weatherbeaten bag, then saw her press a handkerchief to her face, while Mr. Clarke hurriedly caught her arm. The cluster of watchers had seen that before, and they did not know that Mrs. Ellsworth had recognized the garments as belonging to the small, city-frightened Red Cross worker who had timidly sought advice away back last June. Nor could they know until later that, when the oaken panels had closed

Report Peasant Outbreak Throughout Rumania

VIENNA, Jan. 28. (Associated Press.)—A peasant revolution has broken out over the length and breadth of Rumania, according to dispatches from Budapest. A simultaneous rising occurred in all the villages at a fixed hour on Saturday, when well-armed homecoming soldiers, heading the insurgents, forced their way into the various towns, resulting in sanguinary encounters with the regular troops.

In Bucharest, the dispatches say, there was fighting all day long Sunday, the regulars employing machine-gun fire. Many were killed or wounded. Social revolutionists joined in the movement.

BRINGS STORY OF CROMWELL TRAGEDY

BROKE DOWN UNDER STRAIN

Asked for Sedative Before Ship Left, and Jumped Overboard When Decks Were Clear.

The mystery concerning the disappearance of the Cromwell sisters, Dorothea and Gladys, from the French liner Lorraine was cleared up beyond all doubt yesterday afternoon when the vessel arrived in port bringing notes written by the young women to their relatives here in which they declared their intention of "ending it all." There was also the testimony of a soldier sentry who was the only person who saw them jump overboard on the night of Sunday, Jan. 19, and that of persons standing on the lower deck when they struck the water.

The night was pitch dark, according to the ship's officers, and the Lorraine was steaming eighteen knots with a three-knot tide running, and by the time word had reached the Captain of the tragedy the ship was five miles from the spot and the narrowness of the channel made it impossible to stop or turn round without jeopardising the lives of the 2,400 persons on board. Besides the risk of losing the ship there was no possible chance that the two young women would have been afloat, as the Gironde is full of small whirlpools and expert swimmers who have fallen into it have rarely come out alive.

Dr. C. L. Purnell of the American Red Cross, who was a passenger on the Lorraine, said that while the ship was at Bordeaux on Saturday afternoon she went to the cabin of the Cromwell sisters at their request. She found them tired, nervous, and hysterical, and they wanted a powder or something that would allay the pains in their heads and send them to sleep.

Both Seemed Excited.

"When I saw them," Dr. Purnell continued, "I noticed that the young women were excited and one especially, whom I judged to be Dorothea because her sister was called Gladys, was tearing up bits of paper on which she had been writing and seemed to be suffering from strain. I gave them something that I considered would have a soothing effect, and on Sunday morning I asked Dr. Celia D. Mosher, also of the Red Cross, to go and see how the young women were getting along. She reported that Gladys appeared to be calmer and was sitting in their cabin, 103, on the second-class deck, as there was no room for them in the first cabin. Dorothea was in the reading room writing letters, the steward said, and tearing them up directly afterwards. I did not hear anything more about the Misses Cromwell that day.

"After dinner in the evening I went to the cabin to see how they were getting along and saw the three notes lying on the lower berth. Then I realized what had happened. This was shortly after the alarm had reached the commander that the two young women had jumped overboard.

"I do not think that there was any other cause for the double suicide than the sudden relaxation from the great strain they had been under during their service with the Red Cross near the battle lines. They had been at Verdun, and from the reports received at headquarters in Paris both sisters had done very good work. They had been bombed at night by enemy planes, and heard the continuous firing day and night of the big guns while they served in the hospitals and saw our fine young American soldiers die. They told me on that Saturday afternoon that they had had no sleep for two nights, and the journey to Bordeaux was the most tiring experience they had gone through in France."

Told of Their Intent.

Of the three notes found by Dr. Purnell, one was addressed to Major James C. Sherman of Chicago, the senior Red Cross officer on board. It stated the intention of the sisters to end their lives, and asked him to deliver the other two notes to their brother, Seymour L. Cromwell, and his wife. After receiving these notes last night Mr. Cromwell said:

"I have received a note from my sisters which leaves no doubt of their deaths. The contents show that both physically and mentally they had broken down."

BERLIN, Jan. 27. (via Copenhagen.)—Public opinion in Germany is very much irritated over what the newspapers describe as "unnatural French cruelty exerted in demands not justified by the terms of the armistice."

General von Winterfeldt's resignation from the Armistice Commission has been hailed with approval by many persons who do not realize the possible consequences. Until late this evening the Foreign Office had received no news as to whether von Winterfeldt had consented to withdraw his resignation as Chairman of the German commission. Erzberger begged him to remain, and the Government has also asked him to do so, it being asserted that his "tactful and energetic work" has been greatly valued.

The Neue Berliner Zeitung, a rather sensational new publication, calls attention to the fact that Erzberger himself did not resign as Chairman of the commission, from which, it says, one must conclude either that there is a wide difference of opinion between them regarding Marshal Foch's demands or that Erzberger loves his place better than "Germany's dignity."

The paper states unreservedly that what is really at the bottom is that Erzberger was not informed concerning Winterfeldt's intention, because they did not like each other. This version, however, is discredited not only by the fact that Erzberger himself urged Winterfeldt to remain, but also by the views of officials who certainly ought to know.

Doubtless such rumors are being spread by jealous ex-diplomats of the old régime, who, while themselves incompetent to take over the thankless job of German Armistice Commissioner, would not hesitate to intrigue against those serving their country in this unenviable capacity.

Wolff Backs Breckdorff Stand.

Theodor Wolff, in his weekly review, deplores that Germany shows too little backbone in the Spa negotiations.

"France knows but one policy today," he says, "namely, to aid those who ruthlessly take possession of German territory. With the triumphant flourishes of trumpets there constantly mingles the apprehension that vanquished Germany might be resurrected.

"French politicians are worried by two thoughts, that Wilson might stick to his fourteen points or that Germany might refuse to sign any peace transgressing beyond the fourteen points. We have been preaching for many weeks that Germany must only sign a peace complying with the fourteen points, and we heartily agree with Foreign Secretary Brockdorff-Rantzau, who in his admirable declaration of Jan. 2 said that Germany would not go a hair's breadth beyond Wilson's fourteen points.

"That part of the press which considers itself particularly 'national' has seemed busy in depreciating Brockdorff's declaration in foreign countries. The Kreuz-Zeitung said that it would not make the slightest impression on the Peace Conference if the Berliner Tageblatt, with the whole Deutsche Demokratische Partei, backed Brockdorff, for as long as the Berlin Government was unable to raise a single division for the defense of the eastern frontier, might was everything.

"Stresemann concludes in his organ: 'This much is certain. Germany has no power to compel her enemies to accept the fourteen points. We are helplessly delivered to France's lust for revenge.'

"Let us consider quitely what worse fate could befall Germany than a peace

Britain to Keep 1,000,000 Troops With the Colors; Men to Have Civilian Pay and Leave Privileges

LONDON, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—A special meeting of the Cabinet held today was attended by Winston Spencer Churchill, Sir Eric Geddes, Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, the new Labor Minister, and Generals Sir Henry Wilson and Sir William Robertson. Urgent questions regarding demobilization were discussed.

It is understood that the conferees reached the conclusion that there was no prospect for months to come of the voluntary enlistment of sufficient men for the army of occupation and the salvage of property in the war theatres, for properly garrisoning India, Gibraltar, and the crown colonies, to insure the safety of the United Kingdom and safeguard the results of the victory in Palestine, Mesopotamia, and Turkkey, and that hence it would be necessary to adopt some system of selection, and place the men retained as nearly as possible in the same position as they would be in civil life with regard to pay and other conditions.

It is considered that for the purposes above stated about one million men would be required, which means, roughly, that three out of every four men will be demobilized, and the fourth retained "to finish the job." And the idea is to release the men who have already rendered the most service to the country. Probably some stipulated date will be fixed and all the men who joined the service previous to that will be demobilized. The pay of the men retained will be largely increased and a new scheme of leaves introduced.

The men thus retained to bridge the gap until the reorganization of the new standing peace army will be considered as fulfilling functions as important as fighting, and employers of labor will be requested to keep open for them their pre-war posts, as was done during the war for the fighting men.

British Naval Program Halts Pending Peace Settlement

LONDON, Jan. 28.—England is waiting on the result of the Peace Conference to determine a number of questions concerning her navy. These, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from an authoritative source, include not only her present and prospective shipbuilding programmes, but also the disposition of her fleets.

When the armistice came, her yards were constructing new war vessels to their utmost capacity. They were in all stages of construction, and the decision as to whether any particular unit was to be completed has depended naturally on how much more work it would require. Work has not stopped, but there has been an extensive modification of plans, and in considering the future the Admiralty is keeping clearly in mind the possibility that what is accomplished at Paris may change the international situation completely.

In the same way nothing is yet decided as to the stations to be assigned to the units of the Grand Fleet. Admiral Beatty announced last week that the fleet was to be dispersed, but the organization of its squadrons cannot be definitely fixed until the statesmen have determined what work they have for the sailors to do.

DISTRUSTS GERMAN CHANGE

Tells Americans Not to Be Deceived by "Fawning Attitude" of Germans.

COBLENZ, Jan. 27.—General Gouraud, commander of the Fourth French Army, entertained the American war correspondents at luncheon in his headquarters here today. He took occasion to ask them to convey an expression of his admiration for the fighting qualities of the American soldiers, who in two battles fought under his command.

General Gouraud is known as the one-armed hero of France. He lost an arm in the present war, but recovered, resumed field command, and fought two of the war's most brilliant battles, that of July 15, when he checked the left of the German drive where it threatened Chalons, and again when with the American First Army the Germans were driven out of Champagne and the Argonne.

In both actions the American troops fought as part of the Fourth French Army, the 42d Division being at Chalons July 15 and the 2d and 36th Divisions participating in freeing Rheims.

Great soldier as he is, General Gouraud is as well an expert on internal affairs, a student of history, and an authority on world economics.

When he had finished his good words for the American soldier, the smile went from his face. The luncheon was nearing its end. Raising his glass, he drank a toast to America, England, and France and expressed the hope that they would ever stand side by side in friendship and cordiality.

Fear of Another War.

That brought the General to where he could say what I believe was a message he wanted to be conveyed to America. Speaking tensely, almost sharply, he said:

"In 1871 Bismarck said in the Reichstag that the war just finished was child's play compared with what the next one would be. He was right. The war we have passed through is but child's play compared to the next if it comes. Therefore, gentlemen, we

NORTH RUSSIANS DECLINE PARLEY

American and British on Dvina River Repulse Midnight Attack by Reds.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Morning Post's Archangel correspondent, Count Gaston Demerindol, says:

"I am in a position to send a summary of the declaration by the Northern Russian Government which will be handed to the allied representatives. It is as follows:

"'On receipt of the proposal of the Allies with regard to eventual discussion between the different Governments of Russia, including that of the Bolsheviki, the Archangel Government expresses its gratitude to the allied Governments, while considering the proposal unrealizable for the following reasons:

"'The delegates of political groups, setting aside the interests of parties and classes, are ready to unite in a common effort for the regeneration of Russia. At the same time no sane and honest Russian could take part in pourparlers with representatives of the Bolsheviki, who disclaim all ideas of patriotism, who have betrayed Russia and compromised her in this shameful betrayal, and who have by all their acts degraded the ideal of democracy from its real and noble significance. The presence of Bolsheviki at the discussions would make it appear that the form of government represented by them had obtained recognition, which would be contrary to the ideas of Russians all over Europe with regard to Bolshevism.

Couldn't Trust Reds' Guarantees.

"'From a practical point of view, the short notice given of the proposed gathering makes it impossible for various reasons for representatives to be appointed and for them to proceed to the spot indicated. An armistice with the Bolsheviki is also out of the question, because it is impossible to get any guarantee from them, as they recognize neither military for international laws. Such an armistice would only increase the power of the Bolsheviki and prolong the sufferings of other Russians.

"'We hope the generous proposal of the allied Governments will lead to

ABROGATED BY ARMISTICE?

BRITISH COLONIES' CLAIMS

Australia, South Africa, and Even India Demand Share in Conquered Dependencies.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Wireless and Cable Dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The discussion going on among the plenipotentiaries of the five great powers constituting the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference over the disposition of the former German colonies has reached a stage where the views of all concerned are fairly well defined.

Predictions that this feature of the work of the conference would be troublesome are being confirmed. It is admitted by some of those officially informed as to the character and scope of current conversations that all is not smooth sailing, although the spirit of amity pervading the conference furnishes encouragement of a harmonious, if not entirely satisfactory, outcome to everybody concerned.

The delegates of Japan and the British self-governing dominions take positions rather in opposition, with Great Britain occupying what may be called a middle ground. The United States is seeking to bring about an arrangement that had not been contemplated by the other nationalities interested, and its views have given rise to much discussion.

Our Theory of Internationalization.

Briefly, our plenipotentiaries, with President Wilson advancing and supporting the argument, contend that the German colonies should be "internationalized"—that is, placed under the control of the League of Nations, which would provide means for their Government. The President's idea is that in the case of each German colony thus taken over by the League of Nations some sovereign authority should administer the affairs of the colony under a mandate of the league. In the course of time arrangements for more direct control of these former German possessions could be made—perhaps through the application of the principle of self-determination—but for the present, in the American view, they should not be given outright to any Government.

What appears to be the greatest obstacle to the realization of the President's policy is the secret arrangement (there is doubt as to whether it is properly designated as a treaty) made between Great Britain and Japan after the seizure of the German South Sea islands, but before America entered the war. Under this arrangement Japan was to receive the Marshall and Caroline Islands, and the claim of Great Britain in behalf of Australia and New Zealand to the German islands lying south of the equator was recognized.

Japan, Australia, and New Zealand are all insistent upon adhering to the letter of that convention, made under the stress of war conditions—Japan particulary so.

Inferentially by suggestion, actually by conviction, the American plenipotentiaries hold that such arrangements are contrary to the spirit of justice of the allied nations, exemplified in their adhesion to the principles accepted by them for their Governments in carrying on the war and in the settlements following the war.

The allied nations, our plenipotentiaries urge, are bound by the fourteen points laid down by President Wilson, and these principles and the general declarations of the allied statesmen while the conflict was in progress are inconsistent with the proposed division of territory which the Supreme Council is now considering.

Beyond these aspects of the matter, however, our plenipotentiaries, as I learned today, contend that the armistice of Nov. 11 abrogated the secret treaty between Great Britain and Japan for the disposition of Germany's island colonies. This is a new and most interesting question brought before the Council, and the interest is heightened by the claim that Japan never adhered to the terms of the armistice and therefore is not bound by them. But it has furnished food for thought for the other great powers.

The main dependence of the United States on the justice of its argument that the adhesion of the allied Governments to the fourteen points abrogates all secret arrangements concerning the division of territory is found in Point No. 1, which, read in connection with the President's preparatory sentence, repudiates secret diplomacy. The prefatory sentence and Point No. 1 read as follows:

The program of the world's peace, therefore, is our program, and that program, the only possible program, as we see it, is this:

I. Open covenants of peace, openly arrived at, after which there shall be no private international understandings of any kind, but diplomacy shall proceed always frankly and in the public view.

Propose Pool of Conquests.

This is clear enough; but the contention of our delegation that the armistice also abrogated secret agreements has not been sufficiently explained to those not in the close circle that gathers around the council table at the Qual d'Orsay to justify any attempt at this time to set forth the details of the American view. It may be said, however, that the American position is that the agreement for the cessation of hostilities threw the disposition of all property and territory surrendered by Germany, except such as clearly belonged to the allied nations, into a general allied pool for future disposition by all the allied Governments.

There is a confusion of statement as to Great Britain's attitude concerning adhesion to the secret arrangement with Japan; but my best information is that the British plenipotentiaries have been impressed with the arguments advanced by President Wilson and certainly have not taken a position that admits of no compromise. It seems to be true that some British representatives are strongly inclined to accept the American view that the German island shall not be given over directly to Japanese ownership—secret treaty or no secret treaty. Their attitude is influenced, it is understood, by certain considerations growing out of the war.

Some Feeling Against Japan.

For one thing, there has been some feeling in Great Britain over the failure of Japan to take a larger part in the great conflict. This feeling is said to be shared by the French, for France is credited with having put before the Tokio Government more than once the request of the Allies that Japanese troops be sent to the western front and has been as many times refused. How much weight is to be given to reports of this sort I am unable to determine. I can say only that they are mentioned in reasonable quarters and appear to reflect the feeling of at least a part of the British and, perhaps, the French contingent.

It is fair to state, however, that in Washington during the period when it was known that the Allies were badly in need of men, and the matter of Japan's participation was being discussed, one opinion expressed was that on account of lack of transport and length of time, as well as because of the other difficulties of getting Japanese troops to the western front, the proposal to send them there was not feasible.

But, whatever the facts were, there is an undercurrent of sentiment against giving Japan permanent possession of former German territory as a reward for participation in the war. This sentiment has relation to the opposition shown to permitting Japan to serve in the Peace Conference as one of the great powers which dominate its proceedings, and whose veto over the aspirations of all the other allied Governments is absolute.

Wilson's Friendship with Hughes.

The excellent relationship which President Wilson has established with Premier Lloyd George, Arthur J. Balfour, and some of the British colonial Prime Ministers may have an important bearing on the outcome of the present complicated situation centring around the disposition of the German colonies. One of the most insistent among the British representatives that there shall be actual annexation of these colonies to the British possessions is Premier Hughes of Australia, a frank-spoken men who does not hesitate to express his opinions, sometimes to the embarrassment of the powers that be in London. He is strongly in opposition to the President's suggestion of the internationalization of the German dependencies, but in spite of that he and the President have struck up what appears to be a warm friendship. Their ability to discuss their differences without restraint, which goes to show how friendly they are, is illustrated by a story told of the way the President capped Hughes's argument that Australia should have outright ownership of New Guinea.

A look at the map will show that this island, which lies near the northern coast of Australia, is partly Dutch and partly British, with the remaining portion owned by Germany until the war began. Australia asks for the German portion, and in arguing to that end Hughes told Wilson that the Commonwealth wanted direct possession of all contiguous territory.

"That reminds me," the President said in effect, (I am not attempting to quote him literally, but merely to employ this method better to illustrate the point of the story,) "of a man in one of our Western States who kept buying land adjoining his property and extending his holdings until his neighbors began to express astonishment over what they regarded as his extravagance. When he was asked why he continued to purchase land when he had more than he could attend to he replied that he did not want anybody to own any land contiguous to his."

Hughes laughed over the story, in which he saw the point that, however Australia might extend her territories for the purpose of protection, there would still be territory contiguous to hers that required equal protection. Of course this point may not be entirely well taken, for New Guinea is an island and very near the Australian continent. On the other hand, the President believes that it is in accordance with the principles for which the war was fought that German territory shall not be given outright to any allied nation.

He is arguing that if his plan of internationalizing the German colonies is adopted, no nation whose territory is near any of these colonies need have fear, as the former German possessions will be under the trusteeship of the League of Nations, which will see that the interests of the adjacent countries are protected in every way.

The President is not opposed to having Australia undertake the administration of New Guinea and other nearby German dependencies. All he asks is they shall not be delivered outright to any particular nation or self-governing Commonwealth to hold permanently.

So with Japan insisting that under the terms of her secret agreement with Britain she is entitled to actual ownership of the Marshall and Caroline groups and, other German territories lying north of the Equator, and Australia and New Zealand demanding the German colonies in their neighborhood, there is a community of interests opposed to Wilson's view which places him in a somewhat difficult position.

South African Aspirations.

The situation is still further complicated by the aspirations of the Union of South Africa. This combination of British and former Boer Governments wants to annex outright the adjacent territory of German Southwest Africa. In fact, the South African Commonwealth desires the actual possession of all African territory formerly belonging to Germany. It is argued by representatives of the Union that these possessions were wrested from German control by British African troops and therefore the Union is entitled to special consideration. In addition, the British Afrikanders contend that to leave the adjoining German territory under any other Government than that of the South African federation would mean uncertainty as to the future, which would cause continual dissatisfaction.

It is possible that South Africa might consent to a compromise under which it would gain the ownership of German Southwest Africa and leave the other African territory that was once Germany's under the League of Nations, with the Union of South Africa as administrator. But the situation has not developed to a point where this may be said positively, although the understanding yesterday was that a compromise of that sort might be reached.

An opportunity for placating the South Africans is afforded by the continuance of the arrangement under which the Commonwealth has received preferential customs treatment in the German African colonies. It was suggested today that if this arrangement were renewed—it amounts to a 3 per cent. rebate in duties—the Commonwealth might consent to forego its claims to ownership of the former German colonies other than Southwest Africa, provided further that the Commonwealth should be the league's administrator of Germany's African dependencies.

India's African Claims.

It will probably strike Americans as odd that India has put in a claim for consideration as administrator of part of German Africa. India has been recognized by the Peace Conference as a self-governing colony with separate representation, and has begun to assert herself in that capacity. If President Wilson's policy of internationalization of the former German colonies is applied to Africa, the interests of India demand that she receive administrative control of German East Africa.

At today's sessions of the Supreme Council China made an appeal that the peace settlement should provide the relinquishment of Kiau-Chau, which was taken by Japan from the Germans at the beginning of the great war. An unconfirmed report has it that Japan has suggested that she get two Siberian ports, which naturally gives rise to the suspicion that Japan is anxious to expand into Russian territory. A stumbling block to any Japanese aspirations in this direction is found in the adoption of Wilson's fourteen points by the Allied Governments.

Council Expedites League Work.

The discussion of the League of Nations, with particular reference to agreeing on the details of the plan for its organization, was begun today by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, with President Wilson appearing as the principal representative of the United States. The announcement in tonight's official communiqué that the discussion of this important subject has been begun means that the Supreme Council is making progress in its efforts to expedite the making of peace.

It is the contention of the United States that the program for the League must be agreed upon first and the peace arranged in accordance with the principles of that program. The conference has adopted the American proposal to this effect, and it is now apparent that the Supreme Council is living up to the spirit as well as the letter of the assurances obtained by Wilson.

Suggesting America as Trustee.

Jan. 27.—The administration of the German colonies is not the subject of such strong pressure on the American delegation to the Peace Conference as the matter of having our Government take charge of Constantinople and its water approache. Nevertheless, it is evident that a situation may be produced where some big nations may insist that it is the bounden duty of the United States to assume the directing trusteeship over those of them that are not transferred to the sovereignty of some other nation.

The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference is hearing representatives of the British self-governing dependencies, and it is apparent that these have pronounced views as to what should be done with certain former possessions of the Berlin Government. Representatives of the Union of South Africa are anxious that German Southwest Africa be given over to the control of their colony. These representatives are indifferent to the disposition of the other African territory formerly held by the Germans, provided it is not returned to them.

This brings up the proposal that Belgium might be placated by obtaining an extension of her Congo territory at Germany's expense, if there are certain divisions of territory and the granting of certain rights in Europe which Belgium desires, but will not receive.

Germany's position in the South Seas presents an even more delicate task for the five great powers. Australia and New Zealand are particularly insistent that their trade routes and political and territorial security shall be protected, and they look to the powers to make no transfer of sovereignty over the former German South Seas colonies that will in any way menace these two important dependencies of Great Britain. They are particularly anxious that the Marshall and Caroline Islands shall not go to Japan, or, perhaps, to any other great power. As for the rest of the German islands in that part of the world, Australia and New Zealand feel they may trust the powers to take measures which will not menace the self-governing colonies of Great Britain in the antipodes.

Of course, the concern of these British colonial Governments applies to Japan; and it is realized that the Supreme Council, in which Japan is represented, must make its settlements with the greatest tact and consideration for all the interests involved, including those of the United States, whose position in the Pacific gives it a direct responsibility as well as a stake in these settlements.

The fact that the Peace Conference has taken up the matter of territorial adjustments is one of the most favorable indications that the conference is making progress. It is problematical when it will conclude its work, but the desire to make a more rapid advance is apparent, and there is a growing hope that it will not be in continuous session until Summer. President Wilson's forecast in his annual address delivered before Congress on Dec. 2, that the treaty would be signed in April, seems now to be not so far out of the way. For a time, after the President's arrival in France, however, progress toward the conclusion of peace was so slow that few here were willing to hazard the belief that the conference could get through before June at the earliest. Much of the desire to finish as quickly as possible is due to the developments since the interallied exchanges began in Paris. Realization has come to all those statesmen most interested that the peoples of the world are uneasy—that restlessness pervades many nations, and that the sooner the uncertainties are removed and the foundation is laid for a return to normal conditions through a formal declaration of peace, the better it will be for all Governments and peoples.

REPORTS AN AGREEMENT NEAR ON COLONIES

London Standard Has a Version of Alleged Terms of the Settlement.

LONDON, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—The Standard in an editorial today says that although the Peace Conference has not fully settled the question of the disposition of Germany's colonies it is understood that agreements have been reached on the main points.

These agreements include the giving of German Southwest Africa to the Union of South Africa and German East Africa to Great Britain as mandatory of the League of Nations, some portions being annexed to the Belgian Congo. The Kameruns will be chiefly French, Togoland French and British, and the Pacific Islands either will be divided between Japan, Australia, and New Zealand or administered by Great Britain for the League of Nations.

In referring to the discussions in the conference of the future status of Germany's colonies the Paris correspondent of The Mail writes:

"President Wilson appears to have put forward a general scheme which may be termed the internationalization of Germany's late possessions. This plan is not exactly defined, but in principle it would make it mandatory for the various powers to administer the colonies subject to the control of the League of Nations.

"British delegates do not object to such procedure respecting the colonies in Africa, although other nations, notably the French and Portuguese, do not acquiesce, and the Union of South Africa definitely claims German Southwest Africa. As regards the Pacific, Australia claims New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago; New Zealand claims Samoa, and Japan desires the Marshalls and Carolines. Japan also suggests an equatorial delimitation between British and Japanese influence in the Pacific."

The correspondent refers to the Anglo-Japanese "secret" treaty of 1916, which assigned the Marshalls and Carolines to Japan, and adds:

"Such possession would be very distasteful to the United States, and American political opinion is that if President Wilson agrees to this move his power will be seriously impaired. It is suggested that from this comes his earnest demand for the internationalization of all Pacific colonies. It is quite clear, however, that the whole voice of the British Empire at the Peace Congress supports the claims of Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa and also agrees to the retention by Japan of the Marshalls and Carolines, with equatorial delimitation of influence.

"It was the current opinion tonight that President Wilson would see the justice of Great Britain's claims. He requested evidences of Australian interest in New Guinea, and these were quickly forthcoming in a telegram recording resolutions by a large number of public bodies in Australia opposing any other solution of the colonial problem. Australia declares she has lost more men in the war than the United States and has had no recompense in the shape of war contracts and that the nonpossession of the whole of New Guinea would arouse great bitterness."

DOMINIONS HEARD AT COUNCIL SESSION

China and Japan Also Present Their Claims to Former German Colonies.

LEAGUE ALSO CONSIDERED

Belgium Gets Two Members on Reparation Committee, as Do Greece, Serbia, and Rumania.

PARIS, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—Germany's colonies occupied virtually the entire attention of two extended executive sessions of the Supreme Council of the great powers today, and the disposition of this small empire, scattered over the African mainland, in Asia, and throughout the Pacific, is presenting a territorial question of the first magnitude.

The hearings given today covered the entire range of these German colonies, as the delegates of Australia, New Zealand, and Japan presented their respective interests in the Pacific groups of islands, Japan and China their interest in Kiao-Chau and the German concessions at many treaty ports, and the French Minister of Colonies, M. Simon, took up the African colonies, embracing Togoland, Kamerun, and German East and Southwest Africa.

General John Christian Smuts, the South African leader, and General Louis Botha, the South African Premier, have already been heard on the question of German East Africa, and now it only remains to obtain the point of view of the Belgians, who are about to present their ideas of their interests in the colonies adjacent to the Belgian Congo. It appears to be the generally accepted opinion among those having interests in the matter that Germany's colonies should not be returned to her.

This in turn has developed another crucial question, namely, whether German sovereignty over these colonies should pass to the powers who may receive them, or whether they should be intrusted to a league of nations, which would exercise international control, while giving a mandate to such powers as should administer particular colonies.

This larger question, affecting the general administration of the colonies, was considered by the council today, as well as the particular interests involved, and the discussion will be continued tomorrow morning.

German East Africa is the most important territorial possession involved, as it has upward of 7,000,000 inhabitants. Besides being adjacent to the British South African Commonwealth, it is a necessary link connecting the British in the south and the north, thus completing the British territorial chain between Cairo and Cape Colony.

German Southwest Africa is considered less important, although the harbor in Walfish Bay has some advantages.

Belgian interests are believed to be related to Southwest Africa, while the French interests are toward Kamerun and Togoland, which adjoin French Dahomey and the French Congo.

China's interest in the colonies is in getting back Kiao-Chau after it passes from Germany to Japan, and also in the termination of German concessions at Tien-Tsin, Shanghai, and other points. Japan's interests are both in Kiao-Chau and the Pacific islands. The islands are being considered in two main groups—first, New Guinea, the Bismarck and Samoa groups, to which Australia and New Zealand are presenting their claims; and, second, the Marshall, Caroline, and Marianne groups, lying east of the Philippines and south of Japan.

Foe's Chief Indemnity Asset.

Financial considerations have entered largely into the discussion of the internationalization of the German colonies, which have been generally regarded as the chief asset of Germany in settling war claims. While Japan has made it clear that she is willing to return the actual territory included in the Kiao-Chau concession to China, she desires to retain the German railways, mines, and other valuable concessions in Shantung Province to reimburse her for war expenses.

Australia has advanced a similar reason for claiming New Guinea, and New Zealand for demanding Samoa. Japan's claims to the Marshall and Caroline groups are supported on the same grounds, and a similar reason is offered for the actual transfer of the German African colonies to members of the Entente.

China objects to having the concessions which Germany forced from her transferred to Japan in settlement of the war claims of an ally, while it is asserted that President Wilson opposes actual annexations and insists upon the internationalization of all the Pacific and African German colonies. But under an internationalization plan the Entente Powers apparently are unable to see how their claims against Germany would be met, and objection has been raised that if actual transfer of the colonies is not made to certain powers in settlement of war claims the chief asset of Germany would be eliminated, as the nation to whose guardianship the colonies were intrusted by the League of Nations could not consider them as its property.

Our Interest in Pacific Islands.

The Pacific Island phase of the colonial claims now before the council is particularly interesting to the American representatives, because of the American interests in the Pacific, notably through American possession of Hawaii and the Philippines. There has been no official announcement of what Japan proposes the Powers should give her for her part in the war, but there have been reports here that Japan was willing to turn Kiao-Chau back to China, but wished to retain the German rights to the development of the hinterland. There has been no indication of how far she would press her claims to the Pacific Islands.

Belgium, Greece, Poland, Serbia, and Rumania will have two members each on the Peace Conference Commission to deal with the question of reparation. This was announced today by representatives of the smaller powers. The members of the great powers in this commission have already been named.

Without attracting much attention, a change has been made in the name of the important committee of the Peace Conference which is to deal with the subject of damages suffered through the war and compensation for them. Instead of being the Committee on Indemnities, as originally planned, the committee will now be known as the Committee on Reparation.

The change, it is understood, was brought about by the American delegates who were animated by the idea of keeping the whole scheme of repairing the devastation resulting from the war within the spirit of President Wilson's declaration on the subject. According to the present understanding, the word "reparation" means simply the replacement as far as possible as they were before the war of all things destroyed by the German armies. Where it is impossible to give full payment for losses, the powers will exact indemnities.

As originally contemplated, the committee would have been justified in taking into its calculations in assessing damages against the Central Powers, not only the cost of reparation, but the entire expense incurred by the Entente Powers and America in raising armies, bringing them to the battlefield and maintaining them, which would have made a total far beyond the ability of the defeated nations to meet.

The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of the United States, the British Empire, France, and Italy and the representatives of Japan held two meetings today, the first from 11 A. M. until 12:30 and the second from 4 to 6:30 P. M.

An exchange of views took place on the German colonies in the Far East and the Pacific and on those in Africa.

The representatives of the Dominions were present at these two sessions, the representatives of China at that in the morning, and the Marquis Salvago (Italy) at that in the afternoon. In the morning the delegates of Australia, New Zealand, China, and Japan were heard.

In the afternoon Henri Simon, French Minister of the Colonies, explained the views of his department on colonial questions.

In addition, the fundamental principles of the League of Nations and their application were considered.

The next meeting will take place tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

Wilson Confers with Gompers.

Before today's session of the council and between the morning and afternoon gatherings President Wilson had several engagements, among them one with Samuel Gompers and another with M. Delacroix, the Belgian Premier. The conference with the American labor leader was expected to develop consideration of some of the provision which American labor interests were anxious to have written into the peace settlement. The talk with the Belgian Premier was understood to concern generally Belgium's interests before the conference, including the questions of reparation and colonial claims.

The question of disarmament has already been discussed in its initial phases, and the related problem of revising international maritime practices will go hand in hand with it. Thus the freedom of the seas and all questions which bear upon it are being approached with consideration for their relationship with one another.

The detailed settlement of these issues will probably go ultimately to commissions for investigation and recommendations. Such recommendations would come before the League of Nations itself if, as many of the statesmen assembled in Paris expect, the Peace Conference should develop into the league.

The American delegation, it appears, has decided to keep the question of labor to the fore as far as possible in the conferences here. President Wilson and Colonel E. M. House have arranged for a meeting of American labor men to be held tomorrow to formulate the program to be pushed.

President Wilson received a delegation from the Council of the Federation of English Protestants of France at the Murat Mansion this morning. The President listened to statements by the Rev. Wilfred Monod of the French Protestant Church and by Cornelius Dewitt, President of the Protestant Committee for the Aid of Devastated Regions.

TARDIEU GAVE PLEDGE OF FREEDOM OF NEWS

Assured Correspondents That France Would Exercise No Cable Censorship.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Captain André Tardieu, French High Commissioner to the United States and delegate to the Peace Conference, in his speech on Monday at a luncheon to members of the foreign press repeated the pledge given by the French Government that no censorship of foreign cables would be exercised by France and the promise that every reasonable facility would be given to foreign newspapers during the conference. On the first point Captain Tardieu said:

"After rapidity of transmission, your second need is freedom. This liberty which you have from the French point of view is total, absolute and unreserved. What you write will be transmitted just as you write it.

"The French press, as you know, is still under censorship and the Government has the right to suppress any information liable to threaten the safety of the country outside as well as inside. This government, on the other hand, will not limit the liberty of its judgments and articles are not to be censored even when, as sometimes happens, they are not particularly complimentary to the ministers and our Administration.

"This liberal and limited censorship, my dear colleagues, does not apply to you. You are our guests, and it is only fair that you should be the best treated of all. In saying so I am sure I am not hurting the feelings of my French colleagues."

As regards the publicity of the Peace Conference proceedings, M. Tardieu said the principle adopted means the admission of the press to the general meetings where decisions will be taken and the grounds for them stated.

"What will be strictly private," he continued, "are the preparatory conversations which, it stands to reason, must guarantee to the debaters the right to start sometimes from a disagreement in order to reach an agreement. As the official note said, that is necessary, for there are not only Allies in the world, but there are also the enemies of yesterday who are and remain such as long as the peace is not signed. To inform them by publicity of the very birth of our decisions would, as you recognize, be useless and even unsafe."

Captain Tardieu announced that Foreign Minister Pichon would receive the journalists on Sundays and that he would receive them on Thursdays. He added:

"When our communiqué does not appear clear enough to you—which I hear is possible—you will come for further explanations, which we will give with perfect frankness. In short, we shall give you what you ask except what might threaten or delay the success of the sacred work which we are serving."

A "Sudden" Loss!

Policy delivered January 23rd—Proof of Loss received January 24th—Loss paid in full January 25th.

At 10 A. M. on January 23rd, we delivered our Bankers-Brokers Blanket Bond in the sum of $50,000 to Alexandre & Burnet, Stock and Bond Brokers, 7 Wall Street, New York. About noon on that day the firm sustained a loss in the sum of $10,140.97, by one of its messengers being robbed of $10,000 (par) of Southern Pacific convertible 5 per cent. Bonds due 1934, Nos. N-40351 to N-40360 inclusive, while going up in an elevator to make delivery.

If this firm had waited a few hours longer before applying for its insurance it would have been out $10,000.

We received proof of the loss on January 24th, and on January 25th the loss was paid to the firm.

There is a moral to this!

A suitable reward will be paid for the recovery of the above numbered bonds.

COLONIAL QUESTION AGITATES BRITISH

EYES TURNED TO PACIFIC

Report That German Southwest Africa May Go to South Africa Pleases.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The report that South Africa is likely to receive control of German Southwest Africa has been received by the British press with unmistakable gratification, and there is a great deal of sympathy with the Australian views concerning the fate of Germany's Pacific colonies.

Reluctance to say anything that might tend to render the relations between the United States and England difficult is very evident, but the question is being watched closely as being the first in which national interests come into conflict with the idea behind the League of Nations. Consequently comment follows the attitude which each newspaper has assumed to that idea.

The imperialist Globe, for example, advocates its usual what-we-have-we-will-hold policy, while The Westminster Gazette, alarmed at the rumor concerning a secret treaty between England and Japan over the Marshall and Caroline Islands, says:

"The only difficulty is as to the future of some of the Pacific islands where there is a certain clash of interests between Australia and Japan. As the difficulty seems to concern a few islands only useful from the strategic point of view, the permanent establishment of the League of Nations would probably end any controversy. America would apparently prefer the British home Government to take them over and administer them under the league. We particularly hope that the arrangements entered into before the conference between different powers will one and all be considered as void and that these questions will all be treated by the conference on general principles."

The Evening Standard, insisting on what it terms the "logic of facts," fears the success of the league may be endangered by "moral pedantry" which may cause the conference to try "to deal with human difficulties as if human nature had somehow ceased to be human." Then it says:

"We have only to look at the Pacific question to see how impossible it is to expect nations, great or small, to accept a ruling rejected by national feeling simply on the ground that certain far-away adjudicators consider such decision to be in the general interests of the human race.

"We know, for example, how Australia feels about New Guinea and other former Pacific possessions of Germany. Australia went to war not only for the sake of the empire at large, but to secure her own threatened safety. She certainly will not be satisfied with any solution which does not make her own backyard her very own.

"Japan went to war to remove the threat of German domination represented by Kiao-Chau. The views of her people cannot be safely ignored if we are to have Japan's great and growing power enlisted on the side of peace and stability."

So it urges a settlement not in accordance with an impossible ideal but on a basis of give and take.

A "COVENANT OF HUMANITY."

London Daily News Hails the Triumph of the Peace League Idea.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Daily News, in an editorial welcoming the Peace Conference's approval of the League of Nations, says:

"To find any covenant at all comparable with it, we must go back to the Declaration of Independence. That declaration was only the expression in new and larger terms of the ideas of liberty which the English people had given to the world, and we may legitimately claim that the inspiration that comes from America today issued from the same fountain. The bread we cast upon the waters in the 17th century comes back to us after many days.

"It was fitting that the proposal of this new covenant of humanity should be made by the President of the United States. A century ago a great British statesman spoke of the new world being brought in to redress the balance of the old. The prophecy is fulfilled today in a measure beyond anything of which Canning could have dreamed, for he lived in the days when the doctrine of American isolation from the affairs of Europe seemed an irrevocable law. But the law has been broken, and it can never be restored. It is fortunate that it cannot be restored. It is fortunate that henceforth the new world must be in partnership with the old, for it is only by that happy necessity that we are able to look forward with assurance to the abolition of the institution of war and the organization of the world on the basis of peace."

OUR DELEGATES FOR POLAND.

Gen. Kernan and Prof. Lord Are Expected to Start Next Week.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The American members of the commission created by the Peace Conference to visit Poland were named today. They are Major Gen. Francis J. Kernan, for the army, and Professor Robert H. Lord of Harvard University, the American Peace Commission's expert on Russia and Poland. It is expected that the commission will start for Poland next week.

The second French member named on the Interallied Commission to visit Poland, according to Le Temps, is General Nielsen, former Chief of the French Military Mission to Russia. Joseph Noulens, the French Ambassador to Russia, was named yesterday as the other member of the commission.

REACTIONARIES BOLD IN PRAISING KAISER

VORWAERTS REPLIES HOTLY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 27, (via Copenhagen.)—Only the reactionary papers mention the ex-Kaiser's birthday, foremost of these is the Reichsbote, which deplores the fact that of all the conservative parties only the Deutschnationale Volkspartei had the courage to suggest in its election program that even Germany's new democratic constitution ought to provide a monarchical head rising above party strife and corresponding to what is termed the historical peculiarity of the German people.

"It is said, indeed," adds the Reichsbote, "that even this surely very moderate suggestion was suppressed in nearly all the conservative papers."

To this Vorwärts replies that the fact only proves that the monarchical idea has become "damned unpopular."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung frankly professes its undying belief in Kaiserism today, but makes it quite plain that William II., "who fled the country and whose personality may not have been to everybody's taste," need not be the incorporation of its ideal of Kaiserism."

Traditions of a "Secret Kaiser."

"For centuries," says the Tageszeitung, "the German people dreamed of a secret Kaiser arising some day to unite all the German tribes. Now we live in a Socialist republic, but the old German colors, black, white and red, are still dear to us. We again dream of that secret Kaiser and while by no means tying ourself to the person of the present Kaiser we still hope for the fulfillment of this dream.

"We meet the present sham government and sham power with our belief in Kaiserism and empire, and wait for the day when the German nation will be restored to it. Deep sorrow fills our hearts. The Hohenzollerns' great achievements have collapsed seemingly so quickly, but we shall never forget what they did in five centuries of government, and what Frederick the Great and old Kaiser Wilhelm did for Prussia and Germany."

"We shall not pollute our own nest, though we never had such loud acclamations for William II. as some new fledged Republicans, but in these troublous days when his life is threatened we must stick. We must do everything to save him from ignominious treatment through extradition by an implacable enemy.

"But, independent of this sentiment, we preserve the monarchical ideal beyond these terrible Kaiserless times. We shall not cause the Government any difficulties, our responsibility toward the German people being too great, but nobody can render loathsome to us the monarchical ideal; nobody shall interfere with our attachment to the dynasty."

The Lokal-Anzeiger pictures the ex-kaiser, on the threshold of old age, with a rich, resplendent life and four years of the most terrible war behind him, "during which his tortured soul tumbled from the proudest hopes to the bitterest disappointment and every triumph was drowned in a flood of slander.

Fears a Judicial Murder.

"A dark, joyless future is before him," the paper continues. "The hatred of the whole world is now threatening him with punishment, trying to prove its jurisdiction by expert opinion inspired by the accusers themselves for the purpose of making a judicial murder appear a deed of justice. It is not impossible that the victorious Allies, who after Germany's total collapse may commit any injustice, will on their most hated enemy's sixtieth birthday cut the thread which hangs this sword of Damocles.

"To us Germans it ought to be a holy commandment of human decency to remember this man with love and veneration and assure him, that no verdict, even if unanimously agreed to by the areopagus of the whole world league, can dim the splendor of his thirty years' reign, with all its rich blessings to the German people.

"In the profundity of our own sorrow we have no other consolation for him except that there are still millions of German hearts knowing that the terrible accusations against him are only intended to hide the guilt of his accusers themselves and justify the punishment of the German people."

COBLENZ PAPERS MOURN FOR KAISER

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Jan. 28.—In this citadel of conservatism, this nursery of Pan Germanism, where the German pats the American on the back and hates the American in his heart, many a tear was shed yesterday over the birthday of Wilhelm II., for they love him here on the Rhine.

There never was a time when a majority of the Germans hereabouts wanted Wilhelm off the throne and now there are few who don't want him back.

When the Americans first came here, one heard little of Wilhelm. But, as time went on, and the Germans found the Americans a pretty easy-going lot, one heard on this side and that about how the Kaiser had made Germany and so on. Yesterday, when his birthday came, one heard from all sides expressions of sympathy, and here and there more than a whisper of allegiance.

The newspapers of this city all speak tenderly of Wilhelm today. The Coblenz Volks Zeitung in its leading editorial calls attention to the fact that generally when a sovereign has been deposed the departed Prince is regarded as a good riddance and the people frequently took the precaution to cut off his head.

"In this German revolution," the newspaper says, "the abdicating sovereigns are either living among their people, who treat them as the foremost citizens, or they have left many sympathizers behind."

After referring to last year's celebrations of the Kaiser's birthday, the journal says:

"He is spending his sixtieth birthday in a foreign country. He is an exile. Some there will be, however, who will think of him today with loyalty and veneration as in former days, especially when they consider the sad situation occupied by Germany at the present time.

It is not likely that the hope which is still secretly cherished by many persons that he will return to the throne will be realized. On the other hand, we trust that the misfortunes which seem to await him in the future will not overtake him; may his declining years be spent in pleasanter surroundings than at present seem likely.

The Coblenz Zeitung has a long editorial, the tone of which is shown by this:

"It has been said that justice and truth are the exponents of revolution. Then let the revolution admit that the Kaiser was in no sense of the word responsible for this war."

Further on it says:

"We always thought, as we still do, that the thirty-year administration of the Kaiser with its expansion by sea and its extension toward the east had only one object in view—that was the preservation of peace in Europe and in the world."

This journal then turns its wrath loose on the present Government.

"The Social Democratic Party was always demanding that a break with Russia be made. That party regarded the outbreak of the war as an event which could not be avoided, just as the Kaiser, who had exerted every possible effort to find some way out, was obliged to do.

"In case criticism should be made of the former Government on the ground that it was unable to bring pace, the answer must be made that every day that passes has demonstrated that the present Government is still less capable of doing so, despite the fact that it made unconditional surrender.

"The head of the present Government has subjected us to an armistice which is constantly becoming more unfavorable to us.

"Our industrial activities, which were on the highest level under Wilhelm II., have now sunk under the present Government to the lowest depths.

"As to the abilities of the ruler who is celebrating in a neighboring country his sixtieth anniversary today, there may be differences of opinion. But as to his intentions, the persons who have especially taken as a motto for the revolution justice and truth should have no doubt.

The most casual student of politics must realize that the Emperor who was the successor of the man who founded the empire and ruled successfully for thirty years would not risk everything for mere motives of personal ambition. To us, at least, the thought of the Kaiser amounts to something more than a historical remembrance.

One can easily surmise that this writer would have said more did he feel free to express his entire opinion in the presence of the American Army of Occupation, but the tone of these editorials, which reflect the general opinion here, show that at least one part of Germany has not yet donned sackcloth and ashes for the crimes committed at the order of Wilhelm."

JUNKERS VOICE FEALTY ON KAISER'S BIRTHDAY

Message Says They Still "Reverence the Monarchist Idea"—Chapel Service at Amerongen.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 28.—The German People's Party, which is composed largely of the Pan-German element and junkers, has sent the following telegram, according to a dispatch from Berlin, to former Emperor William on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday:

"We gratefully appreciate the work which your Majesty has done for the German Empire and the German people during more than thirty years. We heartily wish your Majesty peace for the rest of your life, and beg to assure you that millions of Germans who will live with us under new conditions and a new basis of State and of life, reverence the monarchist idea and will repel every unworthy estrangement from the high ideal of German Kaiserdom and Prussian Kingship."

AMERONGEN, Holland, Jan. 27.—Religious services were held in the castle chapel here today in honor of the birthday of William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor. With this exception, the former Emperor and Empress passed the day as usual.

The services in the chapel were conducted by Dr. L. Berg, formerly a pastor at Aix-la-Chapelle, and now a resident of Holland, who preached a simple sermon.

Never before, even in peace times, did the former Emperor receive so many floral tributes on his birthday. Two rooms of his apartment were filled with flowers. The tributes comprised for the most part small bouquets from well wishers.

It is by a simple mechanical expedient that Herr Hohenzollern is able to indulge in his favorite recreation of wood-sawing despite the fact that he is to all intents and purposes one-armed. The Associated Press correspondent today visited the shed in the castle grounds here where he saws wood daily. The logs are placed for him on a carpenter's trestle and the ex-ruler presses on the log with his knee while he saws with his healthy arm, in which he has developed extraordinary strength.

MONTENEGRIN KING PUTS HOPE IN ALLIES

CHARGES REIGN OF TERROR

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview with the King of Montenegro which Herbert Vivian, a well-known journalist, obtained in Paris. Nicholas began the interview by holding up a telegram and saying:

"This may interest you. It is from Queen Alexandra, informing me that the Dowager Empress of Russia and her daughters are safe in the Crimea."

King Nicholas proceeded:

"From my own country I have received little news, as the Serbian army of occupation has established a cordon, and neither persons nor letters are allowed to pass. The only reports are smuggled out by my friends at the risk of their lives.

"It appears that a veritable reign of terror exists. Men, women, and children are executed without trial. Bombs are thrown into the houses of my supporters. Money is lavished like water to wean my children away from their allegiance.

Denounces Meck Parliament.

"No doubt you have heard of my deposition and the annexation of my country by Serbia. Well, that was voted by a mock parliament that they called a Grand Skupshtina—a name that does not exist in our constitution. If not elected by anybody, it is just chosen by bands of brigands who are working on behalf of Serbia.

"At present it can summon no regular Parliament, for most of our soldiers have been prevented from returning from their prison camps in Hungary. But when they do return I am confident of the result. They do not wish to give up their laws or independence, which they have maintained during six denturies against every invader. Confederation with other Southern Slavs, by all means, but as free men, not as subjects of another State.

"Mr. Paschitch, the Serbian statesman, has been intriguing for eleven years to annex Montenegro, but he is no nearer his goal, for I refuse to believe that the Allies will depart from the principles of self-determination for which they fought, or that they will allow one of the smallest nations to be sacrificed to the ambitions of a neighbor.

Charges Serbian Ingratitude.

"What I complain of is ingratitude. I have fought three wars for the same Serbia. I saved her from one disaster and enabled her to retake Belgrade. I took bread out of my children's mouths to supply her wants. Remember that I was the first to come to her rescue after the Austrian ultimatum, though no treaty bound me to do so, and though no one knew whether the great powers would intervene.

"And what is my reward? This tratricidal invasion of the liberties of my people.

"We await justice from the Peace Congress, and we rely upon the promises of the powers. We count upon proper access to the sea, for we depend upon our imports for our existence.

"We must have Scutari. We have taken it three times with our swords, and each time it has been snatched away from us in order to flatter the susceptibilities of Austria, which has now ceased to exist. Scutari is ours ethnologically, historically, and geographically.

"In addition, we ought to possess the Bocche di Cattaro, which is the first natural avenue to my country. Bosnia and Herzegovina are also traditionally Montenegrin."

AMERICANS ARRESTED IN FELIX DIAZ PLOT

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—Several Americans have been arrested in a new Felix Diaz plot discovered here on Saturday.

The police entered a meeting of the plotters when a plan to blow up all passenger trains was being discussed. The actual dynamiting was to be done by Americans.

Howard Jones, well-known in Mexico, where he had a commission business, is said to have been discovered to be the paymaster of Felix Diaz, and $30,000 sent to Diaz sympathizers from the United States is said to have passed through his hands. Another American, H. G. Smith, is charged with being a messenger of Diaz agents in Mexico City.

Several other Americans are said to be implicated. The police refuse to give their names, as they have not been arrested. The plot was scheduled to break on Feb. 1.

Foreign Minister Hymans Discusses His Country's Problems with Wilson.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Paul Hymans, Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and one of the delegates to the Peace Conference, was received by President Wilson this afternoon in place of the Belgian Prime Minister, who had been suddenly called to Brussels. They talked of the League of Nations, about the President going to Brussels, and concerning the present desire and need of Belgium to borrow more money from America.

M. Hymans, as head of the Belgian delegation, is now looked upon as leader of the interests of the small nations against too much domination by the great powers by virtue of his being the first to make a protest at the plenary conference Saturday against the small representation of the lesser powers on the important committees.

Belgium, like all the nations, subscribes to the principles of the League of Nations, but her statesmen frankly state that there are things which they would not wish to exchange for a league.

In the main Belgium's heart is set on four things. In the final adjustment of international affairs she wants to find herself a fully sovereign State, so strongly established that it will not be necessary to have her neutrality guaranteed by other States as before the war. She wants a revision of the treaty of 1839, giving her greater rights at the mouth of the Scheldt River, the only outlet for Antwerp, and now entirely under Holland's jurisdiction, and also restoring the portion of Limberg Province given to Holland by that treaty. Lastly, Belgium's most ambitious desire territorially is for the whole Duchy of Luxemburg. There seems little inclination on the part of France and the other powers to allow her to have the duchy.

Entirely aside from what may not come to her from the Peace Conference, Belgium much desires for her immediate need more financial assistance from America in the shape of loans by the United States Government. Because of her difficulty in getting all she wants and needs from Washington, she is also negotiating for loans from private banking institutions in New York, but none of these transactions are yet completed.

ALLIES DEFEAT REDS IN NORTH RUSSIA

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 27, (Associated Press.)—Bolshevist forces failed in an attempt last midnight to drive American and British troops from their positions at Tulgas on the Dvina River, southeast of Archangel. Earlier the enemy had bombarded the positions with artillery.

On the right bank of the river the American troops met a small enemy patrol and drove it back. On the left bank the Allies encountered 150 Bolsheviki in a wood early this morning and dispersed them, taking 14 prisoners. The Allies suffered no casualties.

The prisoners said that a general attack had been planned, but a majority of the Bolsheviki lost themselves in the woods. Allied scouts found a considerable number of the enemy on the Upper Tulgas River, from which the allied outposts withdrew. The artillery then shelled the evacuated position. The artillery duel continues.

On the line of the River Vaga, in the Shenkursk region, the Bolsheviki have followed the retiring Americans to five miles south of Shegovarsk, where American patrols are now in touch with the enemy.

According to refugees who are fleeing along the snow-covered roads from Shenkursk to safety in the American lines, the Bolsheviki have burned Shenkursk and massacred many of the inhabitants. The American intelligence officers are trying to confirm the reports, but it is announced, they must be taken with reserve until confirmation is obtained.

The Bolsheviki were shelling Taresvo, forty miles east of Shenkursk, today, and apparently were preparing for another infantry attack in this region. Artillery activity continues along the Vologda railway.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Further successes for the Bolsheviki in the north, south, and east are reported in a Russian Government wireless message received here today. Referring to operations on the northern front up to Jan. 24, the message reports the capture of a number of villages and a few prisoners and says that before the Bolsheviki attacked Shenkursk "the whites fled."

On the southern front, about sixty versts north of Tzaritzan, the message says, "our detachments occupied Davidovka, forcing the enemy back to Malyavumovka." It continues:

"We captured more than 600 prisoners, four guns, twenty machine guns, thousands of shells, and a train containing valuable material.

"On the eastern front our troops took Uralsk (southeast of Orenburg.) The highway between Uralsk and Orenburg is entirely in our possession. Twenty-five versts northeast of Orenburg we have occupied Skmarskaya."

WILL HOLD RHINE, GOURAUD DECLARES

have got to see to it, that Germany does not start that next war.

"I am not one of those who believe that Germany has put on sackcloth and ashes. I am not one of those who believe that a people trained for a century in certain beliefs and tenets and desires has in the twinkling of an eye changed completely because the Kaiser has gone to Holland.

"There is much in that thought for Americans, because the Germans are trying to make you on the Rhine believe that they are now good, although perhaps once bad.

"Now, gentlemen, I know it is altogether natural for American soldiers to be impressed with the beauties of the Rhine. It is altogether natural for them to be impressed with one of the garden-spots of the world. But they must not forget that out of these beautiful valleys and down from these beautiful hills came the bands of brigands who tried to ruin civilization.

"I ask, have those hearts along the Rhine altogether changed? I ask you not to believe it simply because the Germans say so.

"Now, it is an open secret that on Nov. 14 the Allies were to have launched an attack on Lorraine which would have brought disaster to the German Army. Germany knew that, and so she surrendered.

Doubts German Repentance.

"Did they in their hearts surrender? Their army has been received not as a conquered army. I ask which one of you has heard the Germans express any real repentance for waging history's most brutal war.

"Did they say they have a republic? It is true Wilhelm is in Holland and not in Berlin, but remember that all the old department heads are in office. Compare the difference when France changed governments, when every official from high to low went. It is not so in Germany. Frankly, I am suspicious.

"Now when peace is signed you are going home across the sea. The English are going home, too. But France stays where she is.

"Marshal Foch has told you that France is the barrier protecting civilization, and so France and civilization must be protected.

"You gentlemen have seen the character of the Germans along the Rhine. You know there is no democracy in their hearts. You know that their fawning attitude is as false as it can be. And so I say to you, France wants no such people in her republic.

"We don't want to annex Germany up to the Rhine, but we do intend to see that the German military machine stays behind the river. That is what Marshal Foch meant, I believe. If we don't have that protection, France must maintain always an enormous army to guard civilization.

"With our great loss of life in the war that would be a terrible burden for France. We must have a natural barrier or else it would be madness to demobilize our army.

"I hope that Americans will see it in the same way. I hope that the soft words of the Germans will not convince the Americans that the leopard has changed his spots. So far I am unconvinced that the Germans of today are not the Germans of yesterday, the foes of the ideals of America, the ideals of France, the ideals of civilization, the foes of all that is desired in the hearts of mankind."

which would eliminate from her Alsace-Lorraine, the Saar district, the left bank of the Rhine, Posen, parts of Upper Silesia, Thorn and Danzig, and would submit her population to decades of slavery. What can possibly happen? What could the Entente do if the German delegates refuse to sign such a peace, but declare that they are prepared to submit only to a peace following the lines of Wilson's fourteen points, insisting on the right of self-determination and all the other principles contained in Wilson's doctrine?

"They might continue to blockade us and might cut off our food supplies and raw materials, which would not do any good if the proceeds were only to serve to pay fantastic indemnities.

"Let them continue the occupation of the districts now in their control. Let them occupy even as much more of Germany as they like. This occupation is, after all, not as bad as permanent separation from our provinces. We can wait, if France and Italy, for instance, are able to defer their demobilization indefinitely.

"We, indeed, prefer the consequences of a continuation of the blockade, but would they not be outweighed by a destructive peace? What awaits the Entente countries if their financial relations fail to be regulated and if their armies are compelled to remain mobilized indefinitely can be easily imagined."

GERMAN AUSTRIA'S RIGHTS.

Seitz Asserts That They Include That of Uniting with Germany.

BERNE, Jan. 28.—German Austria, under the terms of President Wilson's fourteen points, has a right to self-determination and a right to join Germany, according to Karl Seitz, President of the German Austrian National Assembly, in a statement made today to The Associated Press. He said that it was impossible to form a federation of the Danube from discordant elements of Hungarians, Poles, Czechs, Slavs, and Germans.

"A misunderstanding regarding the present status of German Austria is apparent in the outside world," Herr Seitz said. "The belief is general that it is merely the shrunken remains of the old monarchy minus the States which have established their own Governments. German Austria today is no more the shrunken remains of the old State than Czechoslovakia or Hungary. It is simply an entity desiring to exercise the right of self-determination and to join Germany in self-protection."

"German Austria is a democratic national State which stands upon the basis repeatedly taken by the Entente statesmen that peace, to be durable, must bring a practical and workable rearrangement of national territorial relations in Europe. We interpret President Wilson's statement regarding the right of self-determination in the sense that we can join our mother country, Germany, because only in that way can our national and economic conditions of existence be assured and future wars avoided."

DEMOBILIZING GERMAN ARMY.

Whole Western Force Withdrawn—Radek's Arrest Ordered.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A German wireless message received here says:

"By Jan. 18 the whole of Germany's Western Army had been transported to demobilization centres, and also about 500,000 of the total of 900,000 of the Eastern Army.

"An order has been issued for the arrest of Karl Radek, the Bolshevist agitator, who is alleged to be still in hiding in Berlin.

"The former Chancellor, Dr. Georg Michaelis, has resigned the Presidency of Pomerania as a protest against the Stettin soldiers' and workers' group forcibly halfmasting flags in memory of Dr. Liebknecht.

"Philipp Scheidemann, Socialist leader, who was elected both in Berlin and Cassel, has decided to represent Cassel. Thus his Berlin seat falls to Minister of the Interior Ernst.

"The coal scarcity has become so serious that the cutting off of the electric power supplied to the various industries throughout Greater Berlin is contemplated, except in the case of the food and public services."

all good Russian patriots' banding together in a united effort, disregarding personal and class interests, to fight against Bolshevism for the liberation of Russia and the happiness of the Russian people and all who reside in Russia."

Telegraphing on Saturday, Count Demerindol said:

"The Governor General has rightly forbidden the publication textually of President Wilson's proposal for a conference with the Bolsheviki, for fear of the effect it would have upon the Russian population. Russian military elements are absolutely opposed to the proposal and see in it the abandonment by Wilson of Russia to the Bolsheviki. They are already talking of rejoining the Siberian Army in the event of the Allies' leaving Archangel.

"The position of the Bolsheviki is very much strengthened by the invitation, which encourages them in the belief that the Allies are yielding to them.

"The general opinion among Russians is that such a proposal as Wilson's will only tend to discourage the Russians and force them into the arms of Germany. The invitation came when the Bolsheviki were beginning to see complete defeat staring them in the face. The successes of Admiral Kolchak anad General Denikine had hit them very hard.

"As to the allied troops, President Wilson's proposal is bound to fill them with the hope of making an early departure from Russia. The allied military authorities are for the most part much surprised and dissatisfied, inasmuch as the proposal creates a temporary condition of inactivity and indecision."

Reds Want Allies to Quit Russia.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Further light on the Bolshevist attitude toward the invitation of the allied and associated powers for a conference with the Russian factions at Princes' Islands is given by an article in the Bolshevist official newspaper, Izvestia, of Jan. 26. The correspondent of Le Journal at Berne telegraphs a quotation from this article carried by the Russian wireless service, the quotation showing that the outgiving is much more moderate in tone than was the recent note on the subject sent by M. Tchitcherin, the Russian Foreign Minister, to M. Vorovsky, the Bolshevist emissary at Stockholm.

The Izvestia article, which was signed by M. Neklor, lays stress on the indirect character of the invitation, noting that it bore neither address nor signature. The writer declares the Allies must choose between the rôle of adversaries of the new Russia and that of arbitrators. If they desire to prove their fitness to act as arbitrators, he insists, they must completely evacuate Russia. Then their initiative, he adds, may be taken seriously.

LENINE ORDERS REDS TO RECAPTURE NARVA

Wants Town Looted and People Slain—Kovno and Libau Reported Taken.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 28.—A dispatch from Reval reports that Lenine is in a small town near Narva, Esthonia, and has ordered the latter town retaken inside of eight days.

It is then to be plundered and the citizens put to death.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The State Department was today advised that Kovno and Libau, in Lithuania, have fallen into possession of the Bolsheviki. This, with the possession of Riga, which the Bolsheviki captured recently gives them control virtually of all of the Baltic provinces up to the German and Polish borders.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Bolshevist forces marching on Libau, on the Baltic coast of Courland, have been halted by German volunteer forces, which, though greatly outnumbered, forced the Soviet army back across the Windau river by a bold counter-offensive, according to a special dispatch to the Zeitung am Mittag. It is said the Bolsheviki suffered heavy losses.

In the course of their terrorization of Esthonia, the Bolsheviki are reported to have killed 600 people in Dorpat and Wesenberg. The German commissioner in Lithuania, who arrived here today, states that Kovno is not occupied by the Bolsheviki, who are still twenty-five miles east of that city. The line is being defended by German volunteers, and the Bolsheviki are said to be awaiting instructions from Moscow before resuming their advance. It is said the capture of Kovno would open the road to the German frontier.

Says Red Army in Esthonia Is Weak.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Daily Mail correspondent at Helsingfors telegraphs under date of Saturday:

"I have just paid a visit via Reval to the Esthonian front, which is seventy-eight miles from Petrograd. My chief impression is that the Bolshevist Army no longer exists in this region as a serious military force. There are armed bands of Chinese, certain battalions of Lettish and Esthonian communists, and some of Lenine's and Trotsky's former crack troops, but you do not see any troops capable of a purely military action.

"This explains why the Esthonian Army, of only 10,000 men, with hardly any artillery, threw back several Bolshevist divisions almost at the gates of Petrograd.

"General Larca, Chief of the Esthonian General Staff, formerly a Colonel at Russian Headquarters, told me that never had the situation been more favorable than today for the almost bloodless capture of Petrograd. Military authority no longer exists among the Bolshevist troops. Their general morale is exceedingly low. They fight only when they have machine guns behind them.

"Every day many officers desert. They all confirm the belief that the Red troops intended for the defense of Petrograd are seeking to give themselves up. Above all, the Bolshevist leaders are terrified at the possibility of Entente troops and British warships appearing off Cronstadt."

A CORRECTION

There seems to be an impression in some quarters that the CHILDS restaurants are controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

This is purely a myth, being without foundation in fact, although there is no reflection on the latter company.

In justice to all concerned it should be known that CHILDS is NOT a Standard Oil subsidiary, nor in any way affiliated with that company.

CHILDS is more than a trade name; it is the name of the men who organized the Childs Company and formulate its policies and direct its operations to this day.

It is the CHILDS policy to provide pure, wholesome, tasty foods, prepared in the best manner, in model sanitary kitchens, and served in scrupulously clean dining rooms by courteous employees to a discriminating public.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

One of the best things to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and you can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out dust, dirt and dandruff.

ASK $1,250,000,000 TO KEEP UP WHEAT

KEEP PLEDGE TO FARMER

Measure Is Designed Also to Save the Treasury from Loss, Framer Says.

FULL POWER FOR PRESIDENT

Provision Continuing His Authority Under Food Control Act Objected To by Gore.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Administration bill appropriating $1,250,000,000 to enable the Government to carry out its guarantee to the farmer of a price of $2.20 a bushel for the 1919 wheat crop was transmitted to the Chairmen of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees today by the Food Administration.

The measure, which was drawn by officials of the Food Administration and the Department of Agriculture, was described by some Senators as an omnibus measure, which would permit the President to continue food administration in operation, and to exercise all the powers conferred upon him by the Food Control act.

Senator Gore, Chairman of the Senate Committee, announced that he would not introduce the measure in the Senate.

"It is broader than I think is necessary," he said. "I may take it as a basis for another bill which I may introduce."

Representative Lever, Chairman of the House Committee, said he had received a copy of the bill, but declined to state what course he would take with respect to it.

Bill's Essential Provisions.

The essential provisions of the measure follow:

"That, for the purpose of carrying out the guarantees to wheat producers, the sum of $1,250,000,000 is hereby appropriated.

"That the President is authorized to maintain and carry out the guarantees and to use so much of the funds appropriated as may be necessary; to enter into agreements; to creat any agency or agencies; to accept the services of any person without compensation to operate with such agency or agencies; to utilize any department or agency of the Government; to authorize such agencies to use the funds appropriated, and to borrow additional sums; to authorize such agencies to buy wheat of the 1918 and 1919 crops, and wheat products of the same crop, and other foodstuff and feeds from producers or others at the guaranteed prices or such prices as may be necessary, for cash or credit, and to sell or export such wheat, wheat products, and by-products at a profit or at a loss; to authorize such agency or agencies to lease or buy storage facilities or contract for the construction of storage facilities or both; to requisition storage space and to prescribe the terms to be paid therefor; to make payment for storage and other usual expenses in carrying of wheat and wheat products in elevators or elsewhere, whether the wheat is owned or held by the agency or agencies or not; to authorise such agency or agencies to increase the price the agency or agencies will pay for wheat or wheat products in order to cover storage on the farm or elsewhere; to require preferential railroad service to any agency or agencies appointed by him on American railroads or steamships so long as the same are under the control of the Government of the United States; to control the trading on any Exchanges or to prohibit the trading at any Exchange at such time or times as may be deemed desirable or proper; to meet marketing conditions and competitive prices of foreign grown wheat; to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be deemed necessary to protect the Government of the United States from paying the guaranteed prices aforesaid for any wheat other than that covered by the President's proclamations; to sell wheat and its wheat products and by-products for cash or on credit to dealers in the United States and its possessions and in other countries of the world and to engage in foreign shipment; to control dealers, millers, and elevators by license or other like power and prescribe trade margins; to control the export and import of wheat, wheat products, other foodstuffs and feed, and further to exercise any of the powers delegated to the President by the Food and Fuel act."

A fine of $5,000 and one year in jail is the penalty prescribed for any one who makes a false statement to any officer or agent or employe of the United States connected with the Food Administration or knowingly violates the act.

Seeks to Save Treasury From Loss.

In transmitting the measure to the committee Chairmen, William A. Glasgow, Jr., chief counsel for the Food Administration, wrote that the legislation was requested in order to "maintain the guarantees in their integrity to the farmer and to save the Treasury of the United States from loss if that be possible."

Thus far there has been no estimate as to what the cost to the Government of maintaining the 1919 prices would be. Officials have said that it depended largely upon European needs, the amount of stock in Argentina, Australia, and Canada, and whether or not Russia would have available supplies for export.

The Department of Agriculture has estimated that the total import wheat requirements for Europe, including Germany and Austria, would likely exceed 728,000,000 bushels this year. The surplus stock from Canada, Argentina, and Australia was estimated at 496,000,000 bushels. From the 1918 crop the United States probably will have a surplus of 277,000,000 bushels for export and carryover.

"If the total surpluses of other countries are exhausted and Russia is not relied upon for anything this year," said the statement, "the United States will be called upon to export 233,000,000 bushels, and would have a carry-over into next year of 44,000,000 bushels. This carry-over, however, is likely to be reduced by increased consumption in the United States and Europe following several years of short rations. The 1919 wheat crop in the United States is expected to give an exportable surplus of 250,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels. In both 1919 and 1920 the question of price and the ability of European countries to finance purchases are the decisive factors."

The department also has estimated that European needs for other grains will be so great that the United States will be able to supply only the required amount of oats, failing short on rye, barley, and corn.

VOTE TO RETURN WIRE SYSTEMS

of any or all telephone lines, together with their property and effects, subject to the approval of Congress.

That the Postmaster General shall report to Congress within a reasonable period some plan of organisation which will combine all the advantages and authority of the Government with such plan of operation as the experience of the best operation in our industrial world has shown to be advantageous.

Confusion as to the Vote.

Confusion existed late tonight as to the exact political complexion of the vote in committee, Judge Moon, Chairman of the committee, having declared that ten Democrats voted for fixing the date for the return of the roads at Dec. 31, while Republican members of the committee insisted that a majority of those voting for that date were Republicans.

According to a statement made by Chairman Moon after the committee had acted, the vote was 10 to 8 in favor of fixing the date at Dec. 31, 1919. Representative Madden of Illinois, one of the Republican members of the committee, stated tonight that the vote was 11 to 7 in favor of fixing the date at Dec. 31. The line-up of the committee as given out by Chairman Moon had 10 Democrats voting for that date, and 7 Republicans and 1 Democrat voting against it. The line-up as given out by Mr. Madden has 7 Republicans and 4 Democrats voting for fixing the date at Dec. 31, and 7 Democrats voting against it.

The only Democrat recorded as voting against the measure in Chairman Moon's lineup is Representative Holland of Virginia. According to Mr. Madden's statement of the lineup, Mr. Holland voted in the affirmative to end Government control on Dec. 31. In view of this discrepancy, Mr. Holland was himself asked by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent how he voted.

"I voted in the affirmative on the main proposition to fix the time as Dec. 31, 1919," said Mr. Holland.

The lineup as given by Chairman Moon was:

Burleson Quotes Vail.

In testimony this morning before the committee, Postmaster General Burleson said that extension to January, 1920, might not be long enough and quoted Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and now the Postmaster General's personal adviser in wire matters, as saying that two years would be the shortest period that should elapse before the return of the wire systems. Republican members of the House committee have been insistent that the wires be handed back to private ownership inside of four to six months.

In his argument for extension of the control period, Mr. Burleson told the committee that representatives of the telephone company had assured him that if the systems were turned back without guarantees of legislation a "period of deterioration and confusion" would follow. Asked by Representative Madden of Illinois if he would consent to a return of the properties in three months, he said:

"If I were willing to ride a hobby to force Government ownership by placing the systems in worse confusion, I would say turn them back."

"I regard this as a question of the greatest importance to the public," he said at another time. "Manufacturers and others are greatly concerned as to the character of the service. In order to develop their businesses, they must have proper service. If I wished to insure Government ownership, I'd say turn the wires back at once. But I think the interests of the business men should be looked after.

"There will be a serious period of transition from war to peace. The telephone companies have not kept pace with other industrial affairs. Their employes wish higher wages. Under present conditions the Government can determine rates better than any other agency."

Politics cropped out several times during the hearing, which was, like others held by the committee, quite noisy, often several members talking at the same time. Postmaster General Burleson said he did not wish to appear in the light of trying to take the wire problem out of the hands of the next Congress, which will be Republican. At another time he stated that the moral increase of from 6 to 7 per cent. in telephones had been held up for two years because equipment manufacture was uncertain.

The Matter of Partisanship.

"If you want the responsibility of flying in the face of these gentlemen whose money is tied up, you can do so," he told the committee. "But, I appeal, this is no time for partisanship—"

"Nobody's mentioned partisanship except you," shot back Representative Madden, and Representative Steenerson snapped out:

"You're the only one who's said anything about that."

"Oh, nothing was said, but anybody can see there's partisanship," put in Chairman Moon, while Mr. Burleson said mildly:

"If I do mention it, I hope it's in the right spirit."

"I believe," said the Postmaster General, "there should be a definite date fixed for the return of the wire property. So far as the length of time is concerned, there is great diversity of opinion, some wishing one year, others five. Mr. Vail, whom I regard as the best wireman in the country, says it should not be less than two years. It is for the committee to decide."

The control of forty-eight States Mr. Burleson characterized as "complex, contradictory, and overlapping," and he said this condition was impossible." Replying to the suggestion that he wished to further his ideas of Government control, he declared:

"I uniformly stated that it's not my purpose to conduct the experiments so as to force Government ownership. If the experiments create public sentiment either way I cannot help it."

"You admit the experiment will eliminate competition and aid concentration?" put in Mr. Black.

"I think competition should be eliminated; the period for competition has passed, and every intelligent man admits it," replied the Postmaster General.

When Representative Steenerson of Minnesota asked about the origin of the wire control law, Mr. Burleson said:

"I know what you want; you want to know whether I instigated the resolution. Well, I did not."

No Previous Information.

Mr. Steenerson suggested that Mr. Burleson might know the reasons actuating the resolutions, as he was a Cabinet member, but the witness said he "was not a mind-reader and had no power of omniscience," and that the first he knew about the resolution was when Representative Aswell of Louisiana introduced it.

"Will the same reasons as existed during the war continue now that the war is over?" asked Mr. Steenerson.

"Oh, it's not contended that this extension should be granted for war purposes," was the answer.

Mr. Steenarson asked why the Government wished to create a "monopoly," and Mr. Burleson said:

"I have always believed all means of communication should be under the Post Office Department. These wire agencies are just as much communication as writing a letter."

"Don't you recognize the difference? Letters are secret, and the wire communications are not," was a suggestion by Mr. Steenerson.

The Postmaster General said he had asked that a law be enacted making it a penalty to reveal wire communications.

A reference was made to politics in the Post Office Department, and Mr. Burleson said:

"I have made an earnest effort, no matter how much my sincerity has been questioned, to take the Post Office out of politics."

Mr. Burleson declared some companies had told him that the "period of reckoning" was coming.

"They had reached the period of stress when they could not stand it much longer," he said. "Many believed if they were handed back they would be bankrupt."

Some member of the committee asked if it would be necessary to raise rates, and the Postmaster General replied very measuredly:

"My duty is to see that the service is adequate, and if it is necessary to raise rates, however much I might regret, I would not hesitate to do so."

Status of the Cables.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—The resolution to end Government control of telephone and telegraph properties Dec. 31, 1919, favorably reported today by the House Post Office Committee made no mention of cable properties, and that phase of the situation was not discussed at the meeting of the committee. Members later expressed varying opinions as to the effect of the legislation on Federal control of those properties, which was assumed by Presidential proclamation last November under the authority given in the original war control resolution passed by Congress last July 16.

Chairman Moon said the new legislation would not affect the original law in so far as it applied to cable properties, control of which would have to be relinquished with the issuing of a proclamation by the President announcing the signing of the treaty of peace and its ratification. Other members expressed a different view, based upon the fact that the cable properties are controlled by the telegraph companies. They thought control of the cables would be automatically extended. There were still other committeemen who believed the question would have to be settled in the courts.

Various dates for termination of control of the telephone and telegraph companies were suggested after the committee had concluded its hearings on the original Administration measure by examining Postmaster General Burleson. The first proposal was for restoration of the properties to private management next May 30, and this and another to extend the time to Dec. 31, 1920, were voted down.

BRITISH CONTROL RETAINED.

Order Rejecting Supervision at Home Stations Produced at Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Statements by the Mackay Companies that the British Government had objected to American supervision of its cable stations were supplemented before the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads today when the British orders were exhibited at a hearing on the Moon wire control resolution.

Representative Madden of Illinois put into the record a letter written by George G. Ward, Vice President of the Commercial Cable Company, to Postmaster Burleson, which asked what course should be pursued, in view of the British orders. In reply, the Postmaster General tonight made public a copy of a letter he had written to Mr. Ward, telling the cable official that, while the American Government was exercising supervision over the American part of the cables, Great Britain exercised her rights to control the cable stations, &c., on her shores. The Post Office Department takes the ground that there is no conflict; that each Government exercises control.

"New York, Jan. 25, 1919.

"The Hon. Albert S. Burleson, Postmaster General, Washington, D. C.:

"Sirs—We have received from the War Department of the British Government the following order:

"1. Government messages handed to either company should be sent over the route of that company unless this course is likely to give rise to delay, in which case the Post Office should be advised.

"2. There is to be no interference with existing censorship arrangements at any of the companies' stations in the United Kingdom.

"3. His Majesty's Government do not agree to either company allowing control of its stations, staff, or working in the United Kingdom, by the other company or by any person acting directly or indirectly on behalf of the other company, or on behalf of the United States Government.

"You will notice that the British Government forbids our placing the Commercial Cable Company or its cables under the control of its competitor, the Western Union Telegraph Company.

"In view of this will you kindly inform me as to what position you take in regard to the matter.

"Yours very truly,

"GEORGE G. WARD,
"Vice President."

Following is Postmaster General Burleson's reply:

"Jan. 28, 1919.

"To George G. Ward, Vice President Commercial Cable Company, 253 Broadway, New York, N. Y.:

"Sir—Your letter of the 25th instant quoting order issued to your company by the War Department of the British Government received. In reply to your inquiry with respect thereto it seems only necessary to state that the British Government is exercising control over the property of and persons connected with the Commercial Cable Company located in the British possessions. And under the joint resolution of Congress this Government, through the Postmaster General, is controlling the operation of the cable properties within its jurisdiction.

"You have been relieved by me of all duties affecting the operation of cables of your company, so far as the jurisdiction of this Government is concerned over the cables of the Commercial Company. I have no instructions to issue to you in regard to any requirements that the British Government may require of you as an officer of the Commercial Company as a corporation, and relating to the property of the company, or the conduct of its officials, or agents located or operating in the British possessions, and with respect to which that Government has assumed control.

"Respectfully yours,

"A. S. BURLESON,
"Postmaster General."

ENJOINS TELEPHONE INCREASE

Michigan Court Issues Temporary Injunction—Indiana Case Argued.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 28.—An injunction restraining telephone companies of Michigan, including the Bell System, from putting into effect the long distance rates recently announced by Postmaster General Burleson, was issued by Judge Howard Wiest in Circuit Court here this forenoon. The Bell company also was ordered to discontinue increased local rates established in Detroit.

Judge Wiest in announcing his decision held that the action of Congress in authorizing the Postmaster General to take over the telephone lines did not give the Federal Government the right to interfere with lawful rate regulations of the State.

"The right and power of the State to regulate rates of public utilities," he said, "is beyond question and is exercised, not by sufferance of Congress, but under power vested in the State."

The power of a State to regulate its domestic concerns, he added, is essential to the preservation of local government.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 28.—Jurisdiction of the United States District Court here to act in determining whether the increased long distance telephone rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson should be put into effect was questioned today when the hearing on the temporary restraining order granted against the new rates on application of the Indiana Public Service Commission began. L. Ert Slack, United States District Attorney for Indiana, representing Postmaster General Burleson, filed a motion asking the dissolution of the temporary order and dismissal of the suit, alleging the court was without jurisdiction. Arguments on the motion began immediately.

Representatives of Ohio, Minnesota, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kansas and Missouri were in court with the lawyers representing Indiana. Before court convened they agreed that if any entered an appearance as "a friend of the court," it would be James E. Markham, Assistant Attorney General of Minnesota.

The following letter from Clarence H. Mackay to Union N. Bethell, Postmaster General Burleson's representative, setting forth Mr. Mackay's protest against any increase in telephone rates by Mr. Burleson, was made public yesterday:

"Postal Telegraph-Cable Company,
"Jan. 25, 1919.

"Union N. Bethell, Esq., Chairman Operating Board, U. S. Telegraph and Telephone Administration, 195 Broadway, New York.

"Dear Mr. Bethell: Referring to your letter of the 23d inst., in the matter of the recent order of the Postmaster General respecting increases in telephone toll rates, and which were to go into effect on the 31st instant, my understanding of our conversation of last week, at which Mr. Bruch was present, was that we were to look into the matter at once, and that Mr. Bruch was to ascertain and inform me of the effect the adoption of the new rates would have upon us, and on my return I was to communicate with you.

"During my absence from town the last few days this whole telephone rate increase has reached such a situation that one does not seem to know how to act. I would, however, say this, that the Postal Company is prepared to put these new telephone rates into effect under protest, but we would first inquire as to what the Postal Company is expected to do in regard to these new telephone rates. In States where the Public Service Commission objects to them, or where the laws of the State prohibit any change except on approval of the Public Service Commission of the State.

"So many of the States have already objected and some have applied for injunctions, and others threaten to do so, that it is impossible for us to know just where to put these new rates into effect and where not. For instance, the Public Service Commission of Michigan threatens the imposition of penalties if the order of Postmaster General Burleson is obeyed by the telephone companies in that State. We do not think we can reasonably be called upon to make changes in States where we would be liable to prosecution and penalties if it should turn out that the changes were made in violation of the laws of that particular State.

"We see no occasion for raising long distance telephone rates, and whatever we do will be done under protest because we have a grave doubt as to the legality of such an increase in telephone rates by the Postmaster General now, whatever might have been his justification while the war was actively going on. And while it undoubtedly would be of great advantage to the Bell Company to raise long distance telephone rates, particularly in the South and on the Pacific Coast, where we are in competition in giving that service at lower rates, allow me to say that I do not think the public will approve of it, and that I believe it is against public policy.

"I am, very truly yours,
"CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
"President."

TURKISH CABINET RESIGNS.

Objected to Restoring Property Stolen from Occupied Territory.

SALONIKI, Jan. 20.—According to a semi-official statement issued here, the Turkish Cabinet, headed by Tewfik Pasha, has resigned as a result of allied demands that Turkey restore property carried away during the war from occupied territories, and cease carrying out drastic measures against Greeks and Armenians.

It is said that the Sultan will participate in the work of reconstructing the Cabinet.

$20,000 Executive Seeks Opportunity.

I want to reach the head of a large business who needs a man accustomed to large problems and responsibilities, to assume all or part of the management of his business.

I have been an executive for twenty years (although I am only 40), and for five years have been the active head of a business doing a volume of several millions.

I have qualities, backed by experience, which would be invaluable to any business large enough to require them.

Am seeking a real opportunity, and prefer a profit-sharing arrangement, but would consider a salary commensurate with large responsibilities.

My career is open to thorough investigation. Communications confidential.

200,000 NOW OUT IN BRITISH STRIKES

STORM LIGHTED BUILDINGS

Shipworkers on the Clyde and in London Hold Out for Terms.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—It is estimated that nearly 200,000 men and women are idle in the United Kingdom and Ireland because of strikes in various trades, creating one of the most serious situations industrially that the country has had to face in many years. Half of the strikers are in Belfast, where the movement continues to spread.

Belfast by night is now in virtually total darkness, the hospitals being the only places where lights can be shown without danger of attacks by strikers. Everywhere else the display of a light has caused either the stoning or the storming of the premises.

In cases were such drastic action was not taken the people were forced by threats to screen their lights. Even in private houses it is not considered safe to use more than one candle, and the supply of candles is rapidly diminishing.

One large Belfast store which generates its own electricity and was brilliantly illuminated was stoned by a mob last night. The plate glass show windows were smashed and women's clothing exhibited there was carried away. In another district a saloon was broken open and liquor was taken by members of a mob.

Police engaged in dispersing the rioters were fired upon but at last succeeded in restoring order.

Picketing Forces Men Out.

Fortunately the night was snowy and wet by turns, otherwise, it is considered, there might have been more trouble. This morning men in various smaller industrial plants who had remained at work went out for safety's sake, the picketing having become more extensive. One of the morning newspapers was forced to suspend publication.

The shipyard workers are opposed to the strike, and are endeavoring to arrange a meeting for Wednesday.

The Belfast correspondent of The Mail writes:

"The strike is the most serious ever experienced in this city of strikes. Belfast is like a dead city, its entire social life is paralyzed, theatres and saloons are closed, tramcars are not running, bakeries and laundries are closing, and there were no afternoon papers on Monday.

"Telegraphic and telephonic communication with outside districts is seriously handicapped. After sunset Belfast becomes a city of candles. Restaurants are closed, and evening services cannot be held by the churches. Railway stations are lighted with naphtha lamps.

"The main cause of the trouble lies in the fact that the workers in the electric and gas plants have joined the shipyard workers in demanding a forty-hour week. Things are in such a state of chaos that a change must come soon. Gravediggers joined the strike on Monday."

Big Clashes Still Unsettled.

There is no change in the situation on the Clyde, where 20,000 shipyard workers are out, or in London, where 15,000 ship repairers are striking and have refused an offer to refer the question of wages to a committee.

To these must be added 24,000 Fifeshire miners, 6,000 South Wales miners, 5,000 Edinburgh shipwrights, 4,000 Manchester dockers, 4,000 South Wales shipyard men, and a number of Glasgow municipal workers.

Except in London, where the question at stake is one of wages, all these strikes are due to a demand for a shorter workday, with the same privileges and wages as have prevailed when a longer workday has been in operation.

Alexander Thompson, editor of the Socialist Labor newspaper Clarion, in reviewing present industrial unrest for The Mail, writes:

"The new Labor Minister, Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, whose sincere sympathy with labor's desire for improved conditions of life has very favorably impressed leaders of the trades unions, confesses his utter helplessness in dealing with the grave problems assailing him on his entrance to office.

"None of the present strikes has been authorised by the executives of the unions involved and all are contrary to official advice. Therefore, it is obviously impossible for Sir Robert to interfere. It is his policy, as Labor Minister, to support trades union executives, as any other action would only weaken their authority and strengthen the hands of those who have disobeyed instructions."

FRENCH JAIL STRIKE LEADER

Government Action Stirs Protest of Workers and Socialist Deputies.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—After the "minute strike" on the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean Railway on Saturday, Leon Midol, Secretary of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Union, was arrested, the railroad still being operated by the military authorities. He will be court-martialed. An account of the incident in the Matin, which shows two black spaces where it was censored, says that other arrests are imminent.

The news aroused the headquarters of the National Railroadmen's Union, and a delegation called at the office of Premier Clemenceau yesterday, but the Premier was absent.

Minister Claveille received a delegation of Socialist Deputies yesterday, his department having authority over railroads. A vigorous protest was made, according to L'Humanité, the delegation warning M. Claveille that the methods he had adopted in the matter were not without danger.

PASSAGE OF TAX BILL NEXT WEEK EXPECTED

Simmons Says House Will Get Conference Report Saturday and Start Debate Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Simmons of the Finance Committee said tonight that a report on the War Revenue bill probably would be made to the House Saturday by Representative Kitchin and debate on the measure started on Monday. It is expected that the bill will be passed by both houses of Congress by the latter part of next week. According to present plans, the bill may not be sent by courier to President Wilson, especially if it is determined by the time of passage that the President will return to this country on or about Feb. 20.

The conferees refused to discuss the details of the general agreement today, and it was said that they had pledged themselves to secrecy pending the printing of the bill. Copies of the proposed legislation probably will not be available before Saturday.

The war and excess taxes title has been rewritten and will appear in the form of a compromise providing for the system proposed in the Senate amendments with a slightly higher rate on large corporation incomes, according to the report current today. It also is reported that the Senate inheritance tax provisions have been substituted for the estate tax proposed by the House. If so, the proposed legislation should raise taxes somewhat in excess of the $6,000,000,000 asked by the Treasury Department.

It is understood that the Secretary of the Treasury, Carter Glass, has been made familiar with the important phases of the bill and will be able to prepare for the collection of the corporation and personal income taxes. The Treasury Department, it is understood, will make its preliminary plans on the theory that the bill as reported will be adopted by Congress and signed by the President.

Senator Simmons said that only a few minor details had yet to be cleared up and that the conference committee might be able to complete its work tomorrow. It will require at least two days more, however, to get the bill in form for the printers.

PALISADE VICTIM BRIDE OF SOLDIER

and the long white sheet had been rolled back, Mrs. Ellsworth, agitated to the point of breakdown, had made the identification complete.

Once the identification was settled, Prosecutor Huckin questioned Mrs. Ellsworth, and ascertained that the only address she could supply for the dead woman dated back months ago. Once, said Mrs. Ellsworth, she had visited Miss Packwood in a two-room apartment at 25 East Forty-eighth Street, at Madison Avenue. Mr. Huckin immediately hurried to this city, and, after communicating with Police Headquarters, went with detectives to the address. He found that Miss Packwood had given up the apartment on Nov. 1, but from questioning neighbors and the Superintendent he learned that she had announced her intention to return to her home in Florida, packing up her belongings and dispatching them somewhere as evidence of that intention.

Somewhere, he declined last night to disclose just where, the Prosecutor obtained positive proof of Miss Packwood's marriage to an army officer, and inquiry last night at the Forty-eighth Street apartment house produced strong support of it. According to Hugh Cameron, the superintendent, Miss Packwood came to the house about two years ago—some time in October, 1916, he thought. She took a small suite on the third floor, paying $90 a month on lease. In October, 1918, she renewed her lease, but as the month drew to a close began to talk of breaking her contract. When Cameron sought a reason, she said that she was "worried" because she had not received a letter from France "in ever so long." Several days after Cameron met her in the hall as, in her grayish Red Cross uniform, she was passing out to enter the two-passenger roadster which she owned. She was sobbing, and the observant old Scotsman saw a telegram protruding from one of her pockets.

Wept for Dead Husband.

The Superintendent asked what was the matter and tried to engage her in conversation, but she stepped to one side and sobbing "my darling—killed over there—France, my husband!"—went out, entered the automobile and drove off—but not before she had laid her arms on the wheel, buried her face upon them and cried for "a wee bit," as Cameron said.

Several days went by before the Superintendent saw her again. Then she came down to her apartment—pale, drawn, but strangely collected she was, said Cameron, and told him she was leaving—"going away." Again she got into her roadster and this time she drove away beyond the ken of everybody who had known her until the Palisade rock cleft yielded its secret.

Discussing the woman's death last night, Prosecutor Huckins said he had been unable to account in any way for the movements of Miss Packwood from the date she gave up her apartment, Nov. 1. He said, however, that a woman acquaintance, whose name he refused to divulge, had told him of receiving a telephone message from Miss Packwood on Dec. 15. This message, said the Prosecutor, was to the effect that Miss Packwood had lost her husband in the war, "all I cared for," and intended to kill herself.

"I have been thinking of suicide," she said, according to the Prosecutor's information, "and when I do I shall kill myself in a thoroughly scientific manner and in such a way that my identity will be completely lost. I do not wish to bring trouble upon my parents."

That Miss Packwood went about self-destruction with great system and with remarkable composure was plainly evident, said Mr. Huckins. When the body was found it was discovered that every tag had been cut from her garments, the marks in the shoes had been erased, and even the faint white, trade markings of her stockings, apparently new ones, had been blotted out. As the county physicians pointed out, the same care and determination was carried through in the application of the bandages about the head which, soaked with either ether or chloroform, caused death. The doctors declared that exceptional skill had been displayed in putting on the surgeon's gauze in such a way as to prevent it from slipping.

The three-ounce bottle which held the anaesthetic, he said, was applied to the right nostril and, to prevent air counteracting the effect of the drug, the girl had closed the left nasal passage with a hairpin. Then she had carefully placed a newspaper, brought along for the purpose, on the ground, lain down, pulled her skirts above her head to reinforce her heavy fur coat and awaited the coming of death.

All question as to the death being self-inflicted was settled, following the identification, when County Physician William E. Ogden, aided by two other surgeons, performed an autopsy. When his task was finished Dr. Ogden gave an official verdict of suicide, and said that neither he nor either of his colleagues had been able to find any evidence of violence.

"The autopsy showed," he said, "that the woman's death was caused by asphyxiation, due to inhaling fumes of chloroform or ether. The autopsy disclosed that she had suffered no violence. There were no wounds nor bruises of any kind upon the body, and there was no evidence of a fracture of the skull or of any organic trouble whatever."

Dr. Ogden added that the viscera had been sent to Bellevue Hospital for chemical analysis, although he regarded this as merely a precautionary examination, as there was small doubt that no poison, other than the anaesthetic, had entered her system. The result of the examination at Bellevue will not be known for a week or ten days, it was said there last night.

Had Secretly Married.

Special to The New York Times.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 28.—Miss Azeele Packwood was secretly married to a Major Fenton, who died in France in November. She is the daughter of George Horatio Packwood, one of the pioneer citizens of this region and a wealthy retired real estate operator. She was 28 years of age and had been living in New York studying music for the last nine years, visiting her home here only at intervals.

She visited here in October, but said nothing of her marriage, though she told intimate friends she was engaged to Major Fenton, then in France, and that she hoped to get across with the Red Cross. The first word of her marriage came in a letter a few days ago to her father from Captain Adelaide Baylis, Red Cross motor car headquarters, 34 Park Avenue, New York. Mr. Packwood had written to Red Cross headquarters early in the month, having had no word from his daughter since late in November, about a month after she had returned to New York. Captain Baylis also told of Major Fenton's death, and the bereaved father ascribes his daughter's act to grief, as Captain Baylis wrote that it was rumored she had made threats that she would take her own life.

WADSWORTH LAUDS VALOR OF OLD 7TH

ENTIRE DIVISION GALLANT

Criticises Supply Service, Saying No American-Built Tanks Ever Reached the Front.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Wadsworth, who recently returned from France, today warmly praised the gallantry of New York troops who late in September helped to break the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin. The Senator visited the ground fought over by the 27th Division.

Senator Wadsworth told how the 107th Infantry—the old 7th New York Regiment—was cut off from its supporting forces for two days and a half.

"The action began on Sept. 29 and lasted three days," said Senator Wadsworth. "It was directed against that part of the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin. The American losses were very severe. The 27th and 30th American Divisions were used.

"St. Quentin and Cambrai, Senators will remember, were situated close to or upon the famous Hindenburg line. Midway between the towns the canal runs under a hill through a tunnel approximately three miles long. The Hindenburg line was based upon that canal most of the distance between the towns. From the tunnel the Germans had pierced long passageways, built in the form of stairways, at least five feet wide. It was a vast maze of underground trenches.

"Frankly, I do not see how men could have gone through such a position and come out alive. The achievement to me is astounding. I think it would be to any other civilian—to see that maze of trenches and underground passages, acres and acres of barbed wire, and the canal itself emerging from the tunnel on the north, going toward a tunnel on the south which had to be crossed.

"Remember also that the men were subjected to a fearful enfilading fire from their left flank as they pushed their way into this position. A British division assisted on the right, and the famous division, the 46th Highlanders. They crossed the open canal, and the Americans crossed on top of a strongly fortified hill, over the canal and all the positions in front of the canal.

"Their objectives were almost three miles away from their starting point, but they reached them on the first day. Then ensued a terrific hand-to-hand contest to hold what they had taken."

Describing how the 107th had gone ahead so fast that it outstripped other troops, Senator Wadsworth said:

Supplies Dropped by Airmen.

"The men were reached by airplanes which dropped cartridges and chocolate to them. At the end of two and a half days support reached them, and the action was complete. General Haig and General Rawlinson, the British Field Army commander, showered compliments on the 27th and 30th Divisions. They had achieved what I honestly believe to be one of the greatest feats of this war on a comparatively small scale, which was to attack, on a two division front, about three miles, and stagger and shatter the strongest German offensive position in France. It resulted in the crumbling of that whole portion of the German line."

In urging the territorialisation of the American Army in future as a means of raising morale and increasing the corps spirit, Senator Wadsworth quoted Major Gen. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division, and said:

"Major Gen. O'Ryan states that, in his judgment, had not his infantry and machine gun units possessed that locality pride in addition to their American pride and patriotism, that sympathetic touch of elbow, that teamwork that comes from long acquaintance of men in the ranks who come from the same town or the same street in a great city, they could not have performed the task assigned to them.

"He counts it, as I think a very large number of military men count it, a vast military asset; and it is a fact that cannot be contradicted that the violation of that principle, and the consequent treatment of soldiers as mere automatons who can be put into any division, any regiment, any company anywhere, is a violation of the humanities, and injured the efficiency of the soldier."

Discussing reported shortage from which the American Army suffered, Senator Wadsworth said artillery, ammunition, airplanes, trucks, and forage for horses were insufficient. He said that in some cases the shortages appeared to him to have resulted from a makeshift system in the United States.

He declared his visit had made him doubly proud of the way the expeditionary force was handled abroad, and had given him a new respect and admiration for the American soldier.

Criticises Supply Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. (Associated Press.) — Senator Wadsworth, in his speech today on the achievements of the American Army in France, said that possibly some of the equipment and supply shortages were unavoidable, but that others unquestionably were due to inefficiency and confusion in the War Department.

Referring to the supplying of ordnance, airplanes, and tanks by the Allies, he added:

"No American-built tanks reached the battlefront. The French supplied us with what tanks they could spare. With the exception of two or three divisions at the very end of the war, all the machine guns, light and heavy, were obtained from the French.

"One cannot exaggerate the embarrassments and difficulties to which these shortages gave rise. Nor do I believe that the supplying of all this equipment did not strain the resources of the Allies."

A permanent military policy for America, Senator Wadsworth said, should not be formulated until General Pershing and others prominent in building up the expeditionary force could return.

"I am glad that General Pershing and his people had a free hand in France," he continued. "I am glad that they were many, many miles away from Washington and comparatively free from its prejudices, jealousies, and out-of-date traditions."

The order issued the day the armistice was signed stopping all promotions in the army, Senator Wadsworth said, had had "a most profound effect" upon the military forces, and he added that, while every recommendation for promotion could not be carried out, he thought it was a mistake to stop all the promotion machinery.

Chairman Chamberlain of the Military Committee interrupted to say that, after hearing the explanation of Secretary Baker yesterday, his view relative to the order had been changed, and he was inclined to agree with the department that it was necessary to stop promotions. Senator Weeks, another member of the committee, said he agreed with the Oregon Senator, but still thought the men who had rendered brave services abroad should be rewarded.

As Senator Wadsworth closed with a description of the destruction wrought by the Germans in Northern France and Belgium, Senator Chamberlain asked:

"Does the Senator think that Germany is so whipped as to make unnecessary the maintenance of troops there as a protection against a recurrence of the crime?"

"My opinion is," was the reply, "that Germany, in a military sense, is prostrated."

PROPOSES COMMISSION FOR EMPIRE'S DEBTS

Australia's Acting Premier Also Wants Local Industries Fostered by American Capital.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 28.—W. A. Watt, the Acting Premier, addressing the conference of twenty-four Federal and State Ministers today, referred to the indebtedness the empire had incurred through the war, and proposed the formation of a British Empire War Debts Commission to take over full control of the war debts of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa, and other parts of the empire.

Such a combination, Mr. Watt believed, would be powerful beyond anything hitherto attempted in the financial world, and would result in the saving of millions of dollars to the empire. He suggested that each of the Dominions and dependencies should be represented on the commission on a debt or population basis.

Mr. Watt said that the commission should be created and prepared to take over the control of the various debts by December, 1919, and that all interest should be paid by the commission after that date.

He announced that in order to better absorb her returning fighters Australia was planning to extend industry along new as well as existing lines, and would look to America and other countries for capital and encourage investments in Australia.

"All of us," said Mr. Watt, "desire to have our soldiers return as rapidly as possible, but without co-ordination between the different State Governments and the Federal Governments difficulties are likely to arise regarding the settlement of our men and their employment. The Federal Government has decided to invite all the State Governments to study a progam of public works and finances.

"The main repatriation pressure probably will come twelve months after peace has been signed. We hope to effect an agreement to provide, if and when necessary, a wider system of public works throughout Australia."

Senator Miller, Minister for Repatriation, explained that 70,000 soldiers already had returned, that 30,000 were on the way, and 167,000 had not yet embarked. He estimated that 10 per cent. would settle on the land. Each settler would require about $7,500 to start with, which would involve a national expenditure of about $150,000,000.

TWO NURSES WIN CITATIONS

Served with "Gipsy Division" and Attended Wounded Under Fire.

A story of unfailing devotion to duty came to light in the citations of two nurses who were attached to the surgical team sent to the famous First American Division last April, and for some reason, as yet unexplained, were sent to the front zone and followed the "Gypsy Division" through Amiens, Cantigny, Soissons, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

Following are the official recommendations for citation and decorations:

Miss Bertha Cornwall of the Army Nurse Reserve Corps on duty with Field Hospital Co. No. 12, remained on duty in the operating room on Oct. 8, 1918, when the hospital was being shelled, which shelling lasted twelve hours. Miss Cornwall refused to leave her post of duty, although the operating room was several times showered with fragments of bursting shells. By this courageous conduct she assisted at considerable risk of her own life in saving the lives of a number of wounded soldiers and by the example she set, the hospital was enabled to function steadily under shell fire.

Miss Ida M. Ferguson of the Army Nurse Reserve Corps on duty at Field Hospital No. 12, displayed great courage at Choppy, France, on Oct. 8, 1918, when the hospital was shelled for an entire day. Miss Ferguson remained constantly at her post of duty in the operating room, which was repeatedly showered with fragment of bursting shells. By this bravery, risking her own life, she aided in saving the lives of several wounded men.

well announcing their death, which for some reason never reached him. It was supposed to have left the Lorraine on Sunday night, and should have been relayed from Bordeaux via Paris.

According to Edward Pemberton of the 339th Field Artillery, who was stationed as a sentry in the bow of the Lorraine on Sunday night, he saw two young women walking along the deck toward him about 7 o'clock. It was so dark he could not see what they wore except what appeared to be big cloaks which blew out in the wind.

The young women were talking to each other and stopped when they reached the bow on the port side. He continued his walk to and fro a little farther aft and did not take any further notice of them. Suddenly Pemberton saw one of them place her foot on the rail and then scramble over it and jump into the water. The other followed almost immediately. Neither of them screamed or made any noise, and the splash when they struck the water was drowned by the noise of the tide rushing along the ship's sides in the shallow river.

For a moment the sentry was dazed and then he ran and called the corporal of the guard. By the time the report reached Captain Brevet it was nearly twenty minutes after the Cromwell sisters had carried ou their threat.

Could Not Attempt Rescue.

Captain Brevet said that by that time the Lorraine was five miles below Christopher, and it was then too late to take any steps to rescue the young women, and he continued his course. The Captain said he had been told by Major Sherman that the latter had detailed two Red Cross workers to watch the Cromwell sisters when they boarded the vessel at Bordeaux on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, who was a passenger on the Lorraine, said she was ill on arriving at Bordeaux and was allowed to board the Lorraine at noon on Saturday, while the Cromwell sisters could not get on board until 3 in the afternoon.

"I did not see them myself," said Mrs. Atherton, "because I was ill, but my roommate went to their cabin with Dr. Furnell just before dinner, and said that both young women appeared to be suffering mentally. She saw them again on Sunday, and told me that Dorothea Cromwell was writing notes in her cabin and tearing them up in a nervous manner the whole time my roommate was with them. Afterward she saw the young woman doing the same thing in the reading room, and the cabin steward said that she did nothing else."

Mrs. Edward Shearson, a member of the Committee for Relief of Fatherless Children of France, who was a passenger on the Lorrafne, said, "It is my belief that all American women should come home as soon as possible. Conditions are such that they can be released and all, especially young women, should be brought back. Their work is finished. They are tired and nervous."

Several second-class passengers walking on the lower deck said they had heard the young women go overboard but only one man besides the sentry knew anything about it. He was a Y. M. C. A. worker and said that he heard a faint cry on the port side and on looking over the rail he saw the bodies of two women whirled by in the seething tideway, and that was all he knew until the report of the double suicide had been spread through the ship.

Mr. Cromwell, the brother, received a wireless message yesterday from the Lorraine before she arrived at Pier 57, North River, foot of West Sixteenth Street, that his sisters were not on board, and he sent Miss Ruth Morgan, a friend of theirs, and James G. Manchester, a lawyer, with power of attorney, to represent him and claim their effects.

CHINA'S MISSION BLAMES JAPAN

TSING TAO CAUSES DISPUTE

Chinese Peace Delegation Reported to be a Unit on Essentials for the Conference.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Commenting tonight upon a statement in Paris yesterday by Baron Makino, Japan's senior peace delegate, regarding the attitude of Japan in the Peace Conference, and toward the return of Taing-tao to China, the unofficial mission here of the Canton Chinese Government asserted that Baron Makino must know that China's problems would be quickly solved if the Japanese ceased their activities in China.

The mission also said that it was disappointing that the Baron failed to indicate the nature of the notes exchanged by Japan and China in 1915, under the terms of which it was now proposed to restore Taing-tao. The statement concluded with the declaration that the Chinese peace delegation represented a united China and that the delegates were in complete agreement regarding essentials to be submitted to the conference. Two members of the delegation, it was said, were former members of the Canton mission.

"No notes were exchanged between China and Japan in May, 1915, respecting Taing-tao," said the statement "although notes forming part of the Chinese-Japanese treaties of 1915 were so exchanged regarding the leased territory of Kiao-Chau, in which the great fortress city of Taing-tao is situated. Assuming Baron Makino's statement to refer to Kiao-Chau, it is not a little disappointing that he failed to indicate the nature of the terms of the notes exchanged between China and Japan in May, 1915."

The notes formed part of a set of treaties which Japan compelled China to sign under a threat of war contained in an ultimatum delivered on May 7, 1915. The notes contained, in Chinese opinion, an illusive undertaking on the part of Japan to restore Kiao-Chau to China, subject to the following conditions:

"1.—The opening of the whole of Kiao-Chau as a commercial port.

"2.—The establishment of a Japanese settlement in the locality to be designated by the Japanese Government.

"3.—The establishment, if desired, by the powers, of an international settlement.

"4.—Arrangements to be made, before the return of the said territory is effected, between the Japanese and Chinese Governments, with respect o the disposal of German public establishments and properties and with regard to the other conditions and procedures."

It will be noted that these conditions, besides limiting Chinese jurisdiction as a result of opening the whole of Kiao-Chau as a commercial port and the establishment of an international settlement therein, provide for the establishment of a Japanese settlement in a locality to be designated by the Japanese Government. Inasmuch as the only developed and valuable portion of Kiao-Chau is the city of Taing-tao, on which the Germans spent vast sums, it is easy to see that a sense of enlightened selfishness will dictate the selection of Taing-tao as the locality to be designated by the Japanese Government. And in this event people who remember the lofty statement of Marquis Okuma, affirming the utter unselfishness of Japan in declaring war against Germany, will watch Japan swallowing the oyster of Kiao-Chau and handing the shell to China.

PROPOSES COMMISSION FOR EMPIRE'S DEBTS

MELBOURNE, Jan. 28.—W. A. Watt, the Acting Premier, addressing the conference of twenty-four Federal and State Ministers today, referred to the indebtedness the empire had incurred through the war, and proposed the formation of a British Empire War Debts Commission to take over full control of the war debts of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa, and other parts of the empire.

Such a combination, Mr. Watt believed, would be powerful beyond anything hitherto attempted in the financial world, and would result in the saving of millions of dollars to the empire. He suggested that each of the Dominions and dependencies should be represented on the commission on a debt or population basis.

12 GO FREE FROM SING SING.

OSSINING, Jan. 28.—Of twelve Sing Sing prisoners turned free today with their sentences commuted, Robert Moore, whose accounts showed shortage estimated at from $600,000 to $900,000 when his employers had him arrested in Manhattan, is the most notorious. The older prison attaches say that the aggregation of criminals released at today's session of the Parole Board was the largest turnout they ever remember. Of the sentences commuted by former Governor Whitman, subject to review by the Parole Board, George Hodson of Buffalo, one-time head of the Mutual Welfare League, was the only one detained. Erie County authorities, who sent Hodson to prison fourteen years ago for a twenty-year sentence on a manslaughter charge, are said to have objected to his release.

Philip Tolliver White, former business man of Brooklyn, was released. Others who walked free on parole are James F. Clinnin, implicated in payroll robberies with White in Brooklyn; William J. F. O'Neill of 1,562 St. Lawrence Avenue, Bronx, convicted in Manhattan of war charities swindles; George and Robert McVetty, brothers and notorious taxicab bandits of Manhattan; Patrick Murphy, convicted of manslaughter in Manhattan; Burtis W. Van Hennik, embezzler of White Plains; John Carulli, Sing Sing's youngest prisoner, who attacked a girl in Brooklyn a year ago, when only 16, and Isaac Epstein, sent up from Kings County for burning a store to try to collect insurance.

Rocco Galetti of Manhattan, who has served fourteen years for robbery; Thomas Murphy, sentenced for burglary in Kings, and Nathan Jolles, who committed assault in Manhattan, squared their debt with the State and were also freed.

Joseph Elihu Root Kunzman, Brooklyn lawyer, who embezzled $200,000 from widows and children while Secretary of a surety company in Manhattan, had his application passed upon by the board; but he is not slated to go free for a few days.

ADOPT FOOD RELIEF BILL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Final legislative action was taken today by Congress on the Administration bill appropriating the $100,000,000 requested by President Wilson for European famine relief. The conferees' report was adopted by both Senate and House without debate and the measure now goes to the President for approval.

There was no debate in either House. Senator Townsend of Michigan, one of the chief opponents, announced that, in view of the overwhelming majority by which the Senate had passed the measure, he thought further opposition would be foolish.

Use of the money is authorized for the relief of people in Europe and the Near East, outside Germany, German-Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, at the discretion of President Wilson, and provision is made for including Armenians, Syrians, Greek, and other Christian and Jewish populations of Asia Minor, now or formerly subject to Turkey, among those to receive the relief. One of the amendments adopted requires that wheat used for relief shall be bought as far as practicable in America.

SHOWS STEVENSON WAS ARMY EMPLOYE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. — Senator Overman of North Carolina, Chairman of the subcommittee which has been investigating activities of German propagandists in the United States, replied in the Senate today to Secretary Baker, who said yesterday that Archibald E. Stevenson, a recent witness before the committee, had never been connected with or employed by the Military Intelligence Department.

Senator Overman's statement was as follows:

"I assume the Secretary of War, in his statement, published in the press this morning, did not intend to criticise the Senate Committee on the judiciary charged with the investigation of German propaganda. Whether he approves of the method adopted by the committee or not is a matter of no concern to the committee. But when he undertakes to repudiate and escape responsibility for a witness called by that committee at the instance of one of the branches of the War Department, his statement cannot be permitted to go unchallenged.

"The facts are these: Secretary Baker declares that 'Mr. Stevenson has never been an officer or an employe of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department.'

"This committee never heard of Mr. Stevenson until his name was called to the attention of the committee in a communication from the office of Military Intelligence, War Department, New York City, dated Dec. 17, 1918, addressed to the Director of Military Intelligence, Washington, D. C., which communication, with a notation to rush, was delivered by the office of the Director of Military Intelligence, Washington, D. C., to this committee, and the portion thereof relating to Mr. Sevenson, reads as follows:

Dec. 17, 1918.

Subject—Senate inquiry.

1.—It is respectfully suggested that the following witnesses be called to testify before the Senate Inquiry:

Archibald Ewing Stevenson of the propaganda section, who has studied German propaganda in the United States for over a year, and concentrated on the subject, and is probably more familiar with the various interlocking groups of German and radical propagandists in the United States at this time than any one else.

JOHN B. TREVOR,
Captain U. S. A.

"It is evident that the Secretary of War did not familiarize himself with the employes of his department or the work which was being done by the Bureau of Military Intelligence."

AND JESUS SAID

"IF ye shall ask anything of the Father in my name, He will give it you." For nineteen centuries this glorious promise has been a source of comfort and of strength to countless millions of the opprest, the sick, the suffering, the troubled, and the grievously burdened. These burning words have been a pillar of fire by night and a pillar of cloud by day to the heavily laden and the sore distrest and to those multitudes who have passed through the Valley of the Shadow of affliction or death. And now in this latter day—nay, at this very hour—millions of women and children in and near those lands, those hills and rivers made holy by the sacred memories of our Lord, are claiming this promise and are crying out to Him in an agony of spirit and body beseeching Him that He will save them from starvation, from death, and from horrors worse than death.

Four million Armenians, Syrians, and other war-sufferers in Western Asia are practically without food, clothing, or shelter, the vast majority helpless women and children. More than a million and a half have been deported. Nearly a million have been brutally murdered and massacred. Four hundred thousand children are orphaned. It can be said that there are practically no more children left under the age of five, all having perished from exposure and disease. For every hundred births there are from two to three hundred deaths. The newly born children die almost immediately, their mothers having nothing to give them but tears. Deaths from dysentery, typhus, tuberculosis, and famine are increasing from day to day with appalling rapidity. The homeless—a pitiful stream of women and children—wander aimlessly through the streets of their wrecked villages. If you stop a child toward evening and ask him where he is going he will tell you, "I am searching for a place to sleep."

All winter long they have slept in nooks and corners, in alleys and by the roadsides, with no blankets, no covering whatever, their clothing the merest rags. The women clasp their wan-faced children to their breasts and on their faces is written the pitiful story of their utter despair.

The scenes in these lands of grief and suffering are beyond the power of imagination to conceive or of words to describe. Throughout the length and breadth of these countries there is no food save bread, the dry crusts of bread that they receive at the hands of charity. No meats, no soups, no vegetables, no sugar, less than a pound of bread daily, and even this poor morsel has often to be shared with others. "A poor old woman faint with hunger said to me to-day," writes one of the devoted workers, "'Sahib, the bread won't go down. I soak it in water, but it sticks in my throat.'"

"Wheresoever I go," a missionary reports, "I see men or women fallen on the street dead or dying, and little emaciated children stretching out their wasted hands 'for just one shahie for bread,' tears running down their cheeks, and still more awful are the little ones sitting propt against a wall, listless and torpid, indifferent even to food, waiting quietly for death."

"Just now," says another worker, "I have been interrupted in my writing. A Jewess has come to tell me of a woman who staggered to her door begging late last evening. She was allowed to spend the night in a corner of the house and this morning she was dead. 'Won't you please send some one to bury her,' implored my caller."

Such pleas are frequent now. There are more dead than buried in Armenia. Men and women once in good circumstances and self-respecting, now hungry, helpless, friendless, crawl away, like animals, out of sight, die unseen, and lie unburied.

There is no joy of victory in these distraught lands; but only the cries of an agonized people to whom peace has brought neither benediction nor blessing; neither rest nor respite; lands where the war has left an awful human wreckage in its wake; a great Kingdom of Grief filled with the cries of mothers and orphans, a distrest people prostrate with desolation, numbed with suffering, having no partnership in the great joy of a liberated world.

No sons, no fathers, no brothers are returning victorious to their homes in Armenia or Syria, for their villages and their cities have been razed and ruined and lie in dust and ashes, and the men by the thousands and hundreds of thousands have been pitilessly murdered or babarously deported.

Deported? Yes, but what a euphemism for the most heartless and relentless cruelty. Deportation means the loss of home, business property, and every personal possession. It means being driven into desert places, forced to march at the point of the bayonet until strength is exhausted; it means being refused shelter, food, drink; it means being subjected to outrage and calculated cruelty.

Many such scenes of terrible and tragic suffering are in the very lands where Jesus walked with his disciples; where He had compassion on the needy multitudes, and fed them and healed them and comforted them. Many of these awful sights are even in the very shadow of the Mount of Olives, where Christ said: "Suffer the little children and forbid them not to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Millions of "the least of these my brethren" are hungry and naked and sick and in terrible prisons without walls. In them and through them the King of Pity and of Love is calling to you to minister to them just as you would do if you saw Him lying at your feet.

You, to whom the Christmas just past has meant a time of reunion, a time of feasting and happiness; you, whose homes are warm and whose children are well fed, think now of these your brothers and sisters who are perishing. The cries of these children must reach your ears. The prayers of these mothers must touch your hearts. These homeless and starving millions are dependent on charity—your charity—for Turkish charity provides for no one—it begins and ends at home.

It is America's God-given privilege to feed the hungry from her great bounty and from her unlimited stores. It is her blessed duty to lift the head of fallen Armenia and put the cup of cold water to her lips and the morsel of bread in her hands, and so prove herself indeed the protector and liberator of the opprest and subject races.

We have presented the needs of the Armenians twice before to our LITERARY DIGEST readers, and they have responded largely, liberally, most generously. But now the period of rehabilitation in the Near East is at hand. Vastly larger sums will be required to restore the refugees to their homes than were required merely to sustain life in their desert exile. The American Committee for Relief in the Near East, under the able leadership of Cleveland H. Dodge, is appealing for a minimum of thirty million dollars "with which," say the committee, "we can, humanly speaking, save every life."

We feel this cause to be so worthy, this need to be so desperately urgent, that even tho we made a liberal contribution less than a year ago, we are now subscribing five thousand dollars to this new drive. We are doing this after having convinced ourselves by a careful investigation extending over a number of days that these funds will be wisely administered, that this work is in most capable hands, and that every dollar given will go for relief without the deduction of one cent for organization expenses. Send your own contribution quickly, and so bring new life and a new hope to some weary, broken body in the Near East.

Now is our opportunity to show these lands made luminous by the footprints of Christ and the Apostles what our Christianity of the West means to-day. Now is the time when these places of sacred history should receive a new sanctification by the service of God's children in the twentieth century. With a Christlike healing of the sick and feeding the hungry, we will make a royal highway for our Lord into the grateful hearts of these people, along which the King of Glory may come with his message of love and light.

Send your check at once to Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer, Room 190, No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City

The above appeal is printed in this newspaper with the confident hope that the sympathetic hearts of its more than one million readers will respond with thousands of checks made payable to Mr. Dodge.

SENATE TO TAKE UP PROHIBITION TODAY

EXPECT A BITTER DEBATE

Prohibitionists, Assured of Victory, Turn Attention to the Enforcement of the Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—All hope that the anti-prohibitionists would be able to delay beyond tomorrow action by the Senate upon the ratification of the Federal amendment vanished today when the Thompson-McNab resolution, providing for ratification, was advanced from the general orders calendar to the order of final adoption. The "wets" did everything in their power to delay a final vote, but announced when they were beaten that they were ready for immediate consideration.

By tomorrow night New York should be lined up with the States which already have voted to nationally ban liquor, though the debate in the upper house threatens to be more bitter than that which marked adoption of the ratification resolution in the Assembly last week.

With the adoption of the "bone dry" amendment assured, the prohibition forces have turned their attention to the question of bringing about its strict enforcement. The "drys" do not believe that Senator Walker of New York, who introduced a search and seizure bill last night, is sincere, and they announced that they would support the bill to show that they mean business.

The matter was discussed tonight at a conference at which Herbert W. Sisson, State Excise Commissioner; William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Robert C. Davey, its counsel, took part. It was decided to prepare a bill for introduction in the Legislature next week to provide means for the enforcement of the new law.

The bill will provide for the reorganization of the State Excise Department, so that it can be used for the enforcement of the law. The "drys" believe that more effective results can be obtained by using the machinery of the present depapritment than by establishing a new one. Mr. Anderson declared that the proposed enforcement law would be as sweeping and effective as it could be made.

Test votes today taken when the Democrats permitted the ratification resolution to be advanced to the order of final passage, indicate that the Prohibitionists will be just able to consummate their victory in the Senate. Advancement of the resolution was affected by a vote of 28 to 22. Senator Sage of Albany, Republican, opposed to ratification, voted with the Democratic minority.

Minority Leader Foley sought to have the final decision postponed by moving that the resolution be made a special order for a week from next Monday. In accordance with the demand of James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor, who asked for adjournment "in the name and behalf of ten hundred thousand of organized labor men and women."

Senator Foley declared that the State owes labor every courtesy and privilege, and attributed the success of the American fighting forces to the work of labor in the factories and mills of the country. Senators Boylan and Walker of New York backed him up in this and urged that labor's request for postponement be granted. The State and nation, he declared, owed a great debt to labor, and added:

"If you do not consider labor's demands you will see the time when labor will seize the reins of government."

In opposing Senator Foley's motion, Majority Leader Walters declared that anti-prohibitionists had received full opportunity of being heard against the measure and that there had been no undue haste.

"I am insistent," he said, "that it have its regular course and go through its regular order. I cannot consent to a further postponement."

Senator Walters then announced that the minority would be unhampered by any special rules as to the time, but that every member would be allowed an opportunity to have his full say when the resolution would come up for debate tomorrow.

The Foley motion to postpone was defeated by a vote of 28 to 21. The vote was along strictly party lines, with the exception that Senator Abeles, Democrat, of the Bronx, voted with the Republicans. Senators Sage and Lockwood, anti-ratification Republicans, expressed the opinion that nothing could be gained by the postponement, as the majority had the votes and they voted with their party colleagues. Senator Thompson, sponsor for the resolution in the upper house, moved the bill, and it was advanced by the 28 to 22 vote.

Governor Smith said he would not interfere in the fight between the two factions in the Legislature.

"I made my position clear in my annual message by declaring in favor of a referendum," said the Governor, "and I shall hold my peace until the Senate has acted, if the amendment is ratified. I shall then have something to say."

LIFTS BAN ON NEAR BEER.

President's Proclamation Signed, but Awaits Official Seal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Food Administration announced today that President Wilson signed a proclamation in Paris on Jan. 23 removing restrictions on the manufacture of so-called near beers. It was stated, however, that the proclamation could not become effective until the seal of the United States was attached thereto by the State Department, and the administration warned the public that no one could "safely act on this information until the proclamation has become effective."

No reference was made to the restrictions on the manufacture of beer or other intoxicating brewed beverages.

Under presidential proclamation the brewing of beer, near beer, and other malt beverages was stopped on Dec. 1, as a wartime conservation measure.

LIQUOR MEN MEET.

National Distillers' Committee Here for Conferences.

The first meeting of the Executive Committee of the Distillers' Association of America was held at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel yesterday. The committee was appointed at a meeting of the association held in Chicago on Jan. 14, and includes Samuel Wollner of Peoria, Ill., Chairman; Henry W. Naylon of Rochester, N. Y., Vice Chairman; George F. Disterle of Cincinnati, Secretary Treasurer; George Dempsey of Boston, Marion Taylor of Louisville, George T. Bens of St. Paul, and Julius Kessler of New York.

The committee came to New York to confer with the Executive Committee of the Association opposed to National Prohibition, which is made up largely of hotel men and real estate men, regarding prohibition. After yesterday's meeting Mr. Wollner said that when a definite plan of action had been decided on it would be announced.

Bill to Abolish Port Wardens.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Following out the recommendation made by Governor Smith in his message to the Legislature, Assemblyman Miller of New York introduced in the Assembly today a bill abolishing the office of Port Wardens. There are nine Port Wardens, each of whom receives a salary of $1,500 a year and $300 in fees, as well as a Secretary and Treasurer at $2,000 each.

Your Manufacturing, Market and Shipping Problems Answered in Baltimore

The Largest Coca-Cola Building in America.

January 1st, 1919, marked a new epoch in the city foremost in natural advantages and present opportunity in the United States. On that day, Baltimore's area was increased to ninety-five square miles, giving it a population of 750,000.

All raw materials—products in process of manufacture—manufactured goods—tools—plants and equipment are exempt from taxation.

The gateway to the South and 150 miles nearer Chicago and the Middle West than any other seaboard city, Baltimore is closer to the supply of domestic raw materials and markets than any other city on the Atlantic Coast.

By reason of this, the Interstate Commerce Commission has decreed a freight differential in favor of Baltimore over Philadelphia, New York and Boston to and from the West of from $10 to $30 per car—depending on the freight classification.

Baltimore is 1,369 miles nearer to the Panama Canal than San Francisco. It is nearest to Cuba, and the East Coast ports of South America of all the large Atlantic ports of the United States.

Baltimore's proximity to South America — its nearness to the Panama Canal—and its attractive freight differentials make it the pre-eminently desirable Atlantic Seaboard Port.

Baltimore is one of the seven cities of the world possessing a 35-foot channel at mean low water from ocean to piers—the channel is 600 feet wide — its tide variation is limited to 18 inches. Baltimore's harbor is land-locked and safe from storms or tidal waves.

Only once in the past ten years has ice interfered with navigation—normal climatic conditions permit the use of its water facilities three hundred and sixty-five days in a year.

Baltimore is free from port charges of every description.

Baltimore's harbor is skirted by three great trunk lines—the Baltimore & Ohio—the Western Maryland—and the Pennsylvania—linked by two belt lines—one municipally owned—affording connection with deep water transportation facilities and other great trunk lines extending north, south and west.

Coal is delivered at Sparrows Point, Baltimore, at 20c per gross ton less than at Bethlehem, Pa., or other cities similarly situated. Baltimore's coaling facilities are second to none.

Baltimore's magnificent system of Municipal Docks abutting deep water and rail facilities afford a union between water and rail that spells economy and rapidity of freight movement.

If you have a manufacturing—a market—or a shipping problem—you can solve it in BALTIMORE.

Locate your plant in BALTIMORE — build your warehouse in BALTIMORE—establish a branch in BALTIMORE.

The Municipality of Baltimore will welcome you—its financial interests will welcome you— its industries will welcome you.

Say the word and I will send an expert to your plant to consult about your specific requirements and how Baltimore's advantages will meet your needs.

In the meantime, write for your copy of that most interesting book, "Baltimore's Advantages"—a line will bring it.

James H. Preston, Mayor
Address Department 22, City Hall, Baltimore

Col. Albert M. Miller, U. S. A.

in command as Zone Supply and Port Storage Officer at Baltimore, says:

"There are two reasons why the port of Baltimore has been utilized by the Government.

"First, the promptness and low cost of railroad delivery of supplies from the host of manufacturers throughout the middle west.

"Second, by using privately owned terminal facilities and piers, it has been possible for the Government to receive, store and forward very large quantities of supplies at comparatively low cost in time and labor.

"There is a decided advantage here over that of the northern ports in both freight differentials and in the ease and speed with which supplies can be received and floated.

"The port of New York cannot begin to handle all the floatings that must go forward from the shores of this country in feeding and rehabilitating the nations across the seas, and in carrying on the large industrial trade which must be developed in South America—so it will be necessary to find another large port through which this business can flow—and there is no other port that has the railroad and natural harbor facilities combined as possessed by the city of Baltimore."

What Asa G. Candler

President The Coca-Cola Company says of Baltimore

"For more than a year the Coca-Cola Company was trying to determine in which of the great eastern cities to establish headquarters for its eastern department.

"Investigation convinced us that Baltimore was not only the commercial metropolis for southern trade, but that it afforded shipping opportunities both by water and rail for domestic and foreign traffic superior to any of the great cities in any section of the United States.

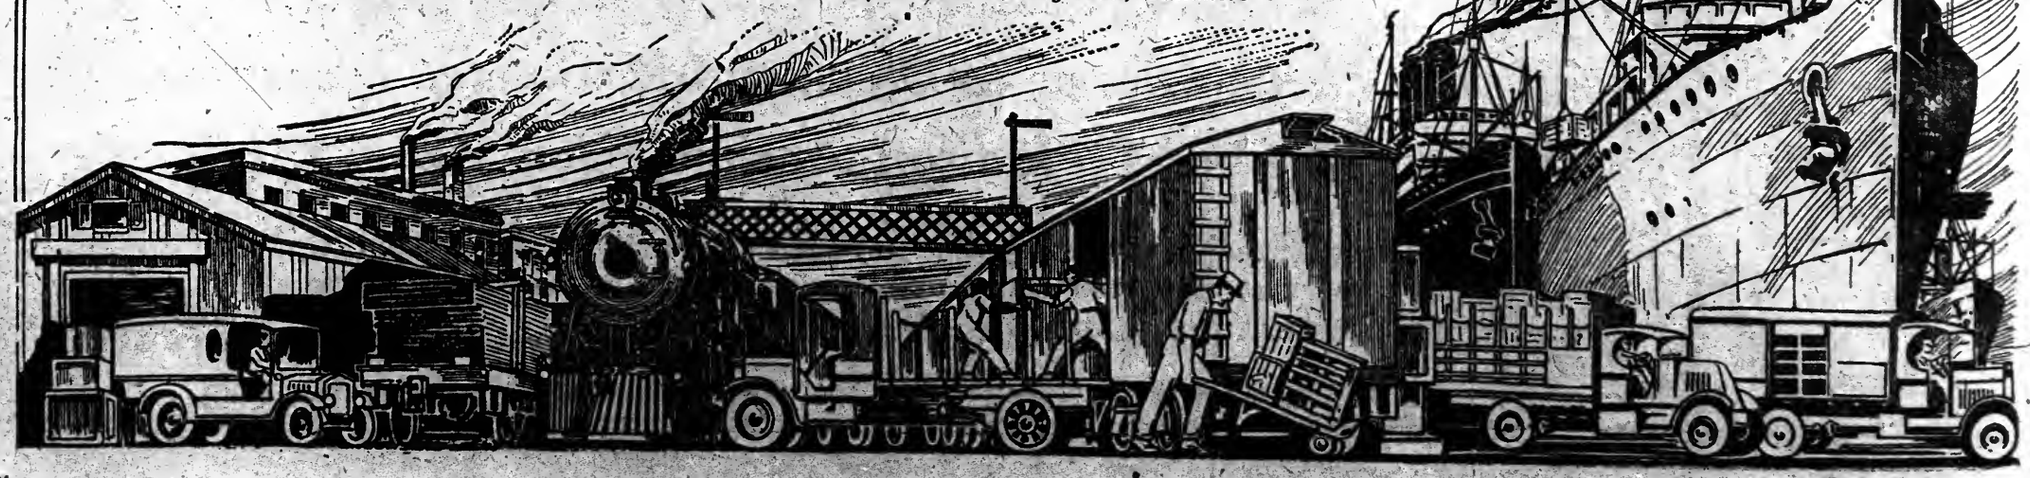
"We confidently believe that in our business operations we have not made a wiser investment nor a more judicious selection for the location of any of our plants than in this Baltimore building."

In a very recent letter Mr. Candler further says:

"The experience of the Coca-Cola Company in Baltimore has been absolutely satisfactory. During the two years that the war has continued we have found that shipping could be more easily and expeditiously done from Baltimore than from New York City, or the other large eastern places in which we have distributing depots.

"We congratulate ourselves that before the war we had so largely increased the capacity of our Baltimore building that the Government itself determined and did take and use a large portion of the space in the building for the same reasons that induced us to construct it.

"We expect always to believe as we did at the beginning, and as we do now, that the location of the property in Baltimore could not have been more wisely done."



1,063 MORE ARMY CASUALTIES ANNOUNCED

Reported Total Now Up to 222,858; 102 Dead and 15 Missing in Latest Lists

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The War Department gave out four army casualty lists today, which contained 1,063 names, bringing the total for the army up to 217,112. 6,000 TO LAND ON SATURDAY

Adriatic and Sibony Bringing Home New York and Other Troops.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Two big transports, the Adriatic and Sibony, are due at New York on Saturday, with about 6,000 men aboard.

The Adriatic brings Companies E, F, G and H of the 329th Infantry, and the 322d and 324th Machine Gun Battalions and Headquarters of the 165th Infantry Brigade, all of the 83d Division, (Ohio and West Virginia.) Other units of the 329th Infantry are returning on another vessel.

The Adriatic also is bringing home a New York casual company, eighty-nine officer casuals and about 400 sick, wounded and enlisted casuals, in all about 3,000 men.

The Sibony has aboard the 45th Regiment Coast Artillery complete; the complete 309th Ammunition Train, 84th Division, (Indiana and Kentucky,) and the Headquarters and Batteries C and D, 339th Field Artillery of the 88th Division, (Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and Dakotas,) bound for Camp Dodge. The ship also carries the headquarters detachment of the 37th Brigade Coast Artillery; a casual company for New York and six casual officers, making a total aboard of more than 3,000 men.

The Zacapa is due at New York Feb. 5 with a detachment of the 37th Brigade Coast Artillery, headquarters and seventy-three officer casuals and a few enlisted and civilian passengers.

The steamer Gerehi is due at Newport News Feb. 5 with a Pennsylvania casual company and a medical detachment, a total of 37; the Pasadena is due at New York on Feb. 7 with a small New York casual company and eight unattached officers, and the Bristol at New York Feb. 6, with one officer and 20 men as casuals for New York State.

The transport Celtic is due at New York on Feb. 2 with the 1st Gas Regiment complete, 66 officers and 1,632 men, most of whom will be demobilized at American University here. Detachments of the regiment will go to Camps Humphreys, Virginia; Lewis, Washington; Grant, Taylor, Dodge, and Meade. The ship carries also the 308th Sanitary Train complete, casual companies for New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio, Texas; 63 casual officers, and about 175 sick and wounded, making in all about 2,500 men aboard.

The battleship Vermont is due at Newport News with about 1,000 soldiers on Feb. 3, including the 488d Aero Squadron and training detachments from the 4th, 55th, and 57th Pioneer Infantry, all bound for Camp Meade; the 489th Aero Squadron, Fort Slocum, one casual company each for Virginia and Kansas, two casual companies each for New York and Maryland, and 16 casual officers and 25 navy personnel.

COMMENT ON PARIS CRIMES.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The declaration in today's newspapers that American soldiers had committed murders, burglaries, and other depredations in Paris aroused comment from several officers here who have just returned from overseas.

The camp commander, Brig. Gen. William J. Nicholson, who commanded one of the infantry brigades of the 79th Division throughout the American advance, made this statement:

"My observations in France made me proud of the conduct and bearing of the American soldiers. The military police I found to be universally efficient. In Paris I never witnessed the slightest disorder on their part. The Provost Guard was a fine, alert body of men. As to the statement that many of them were recruited from among the wounded, there were some who had been gassed, but they had fully recovered. None of the men was fit for this duty."

Lieutenant Frederick W. Cording of the 59th Coast Artillery, who did military police duty while in France, said the military policemen carried their adherence to duty and general efficiency to a point of antagonizing the soldiers.

K. of C. Plan Ball to Aid Soldiers.

The Knights of Columbus are completing arrangements for a big ball in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 24 to raise $50,000 for the dependents of sick and wounded soldiers, and to aid discharged soldiers in getting back again into civil life. The committee in charge of arrangements announced yesterday that a large number of tickets for the ball have already been sold.

Does Anemia Hold You Back?

A CHRONIC anemic is like an automobile running on half its cylinders. He or she manages to keep going after a fashion, but lacks the vital spark so necessary to keen enjoyment and business or social accomplishment. As anemia is blood poverty, it can be gradually overcome by a good blood tonic such as Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

Pepto-Mangan helps to make rich, red blood by increasing the number of the red cells and their capacity to carry oxygen—the breath of life—to every cell and tissue. With abundant oxygen reaching every part of the body, the whole system is charged with renewed health, force and energy. Pepto-Mangan is easy to digest and exceedingly pleasant to taste. Universally prescribed by the medical profession.

Pepto-Mangan is made only by

Why Armour Cannot Fix Meat Prices

IT is generally known that the livestock supply varies from day to day and that prices fluctuate in consequence. It is not so generally understood that the retail demand for fresh meat varies tremendously also, and that in consequence, the price obtained by Armour and Company fluctuates, too.

When fresh meat is finished at the plants it is shipped to Armour branch houses located in more than 400 centers of consumption. And, this meat is shipped unsold. The branch house manager receives with it a memorandum of what it cost to produce the meat. It is a simple matter then for him to determine what he must seek to get for it if he is to show a profit. And, he must sell it in the open market, in direct competition with other packers' branch houses, local abattoirs, and so forth. Also, he must face the uncertainties of weather, heavy receipts of fish and fowl and, often, unexpected and unusual circumstances.

Under the heading of "unusual circumstances" for instance, would come the recent epidemic of Spanish Influenza. Statistics gathered by Armour and Company show that while the epidemic was at its height fresh meat purchases the country over fell off no less than 25 per cent.

A sudden wave of intense heat; a severe blizzard which blocks roads and makes transportation difficult; heavy receipts of fish or game; local-killed meats coming on the markets in small communities—all or any of these factors have a marked effect on the demand for fresh meats.

Branch house managers must—because storage facilities demand it—dispose of their stock each week so far as possible. This often necessitates selling below cost.

Thus, if statistics be consulted, it will be found that the selling price of Armour and Company's fresh meats parallels the price of livestock and is constantly further affected by the conditions mentioned.

With these facts in view, fair-minded readers must comprehend that it is not possible for Armour and Company to fix the price of meats.

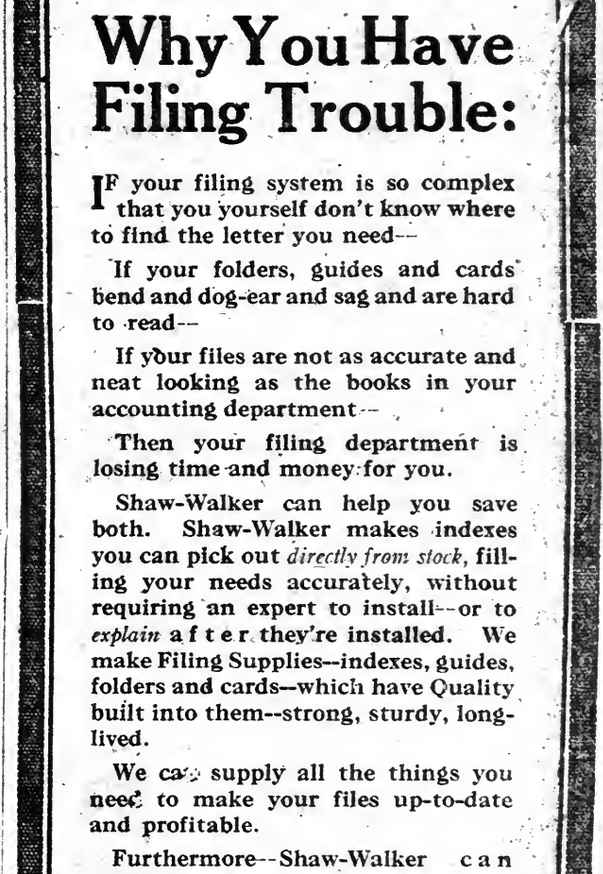
Shaw-Walker Letter-File Guide in manila or pressboard.



A SHAW-WALKER guide always glides along the guide rod easily, because the eyelet is oval and very large. This means less strain on the guide, hence longer life.

Why You Have Filing Trouble:

IF your filing system is so complex that you yourself don't know where to find the letter you need--

If your folders, guides and cards bend and dog-ear and sag and are hard to read--

If your files are not as accurate and neat looking as the books in your accounting department--

Then your filing department is losing time and money for you.

Shaw-Walker can help you save both. Shaw-Walker makes indexes you can pick out directly from stock, filling your needs accurately, without requiring an expert to install--or to explain after they're installed. We make Filing Supplies--indexes, guides, folders and cards--which have Quality built into them--strong, sturdy, long-lived.

We can supply all the things you need to make your files up-to-date and profitable.

Furthermore--Shaw-Walker can supply you with a file clerk who will keep your files supremely accurate and neat, a file clerk who knows filing from the ground up--the basic principles, the short cuts, all the fine points. Or, for slight expense, we will train one of your own file clerks to 100 per cent. filing efficiency.

HORSE SHOW BODY ELECTS VANDERBILT

GARDEN SHOW IN NOVEMBER

Brooklyn Exhibit on April 23 First of Year—Newport Event to be Held on Aug. 27.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt was re-elected President of the Association of American Horse Shows, which was held at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, at which thirty-four Horse Show associations were represented. The annual meeting was followed by a luncheon, and all the horsemen predicted that next season all the shows would resume their former importance.

Although many of the men active in the annual exhibitions entered the Government service, nevertheless there was little or no lack of interest in the development of the show thoroughbreds. Next season, with all the men out of service, it is expected that the interest in King Horse will be greater than before the war. The part which the horse played in the affairs in Europe has emphasized the importance of horse breeding, and the association plans to give even more attention to these annual exhibits than in the past.

President Vanderbilt announced that it had been erroneously reported that he would offer no more cups for Horse Show competition. He said that whenever he regarded the situation as opportune, he would be pleased to offer trophies, as he had done in the past.

It was decided that the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden would be held with all its former splendor about the second week in November. No less than twenty-six dates were awarded for Horse Shows throughout the East. The season will open with the annual Horse Show at Brooklyn on April 23. The Newport show will be held on Aug. 27 to 29.

Several changes were made in the rules governing the competitions, the most important of which was an amendment to Rule VI. governing the show of novices. The amendment provides that the rule will not apply to the National Horse Show at the Garden. The rule as it now stands is as follows:

A novice is a horse which has not won a first prize (at any of the shows given by members of this association) in the particular division of the show in which it is shown. Only such horses are eligible for this classification. Novices are such from the date of the closing of entries. In the case of novice pairs one of the horses of the pair must be a novice.

The change provides that at the National Horse Show horses which have won in four-in-hands, tandems, hunt pairs, and in other combination competition will be edgible to compete singly in novices classes.

The only change made in the officers was the election of Dr. Thomas G. Ashton to the office of Vice President to succeed William T. Hunter. J. Macy Willets was re-elected Secretary.

The only change in the Board of Directors was the election of Robert A. Fairbairn of Westfield N. J. The other Directors are Dr. Thomas G. Ashton, Wynnewood, Penn.; John McE. Bowman, G. Howard Davison, Alfred B. McClay, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, William Ziegler, Jr., all of New York; William Du Pont, Wilmington, Del.; Fred F. Field, Brockton, Mass.; A. Henry Higginson, South Lincoln, Mass.; William T. Hunter, Devon, Penn.; Prescott Lawrence, Newport, R. I.; Pierre Lorillard, Jr., Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; John R. Thompson, Chicago; Norman Van Voorhis, Rochester, and J. Macy Willets.

April 28 to May 1—New York Spring Horse Show at Durland's.
May 1 to 3—Philadelphia Horse Show.
May 15 to 31—Wynnewood Pony Show at Wynnewood, Penn.
May 29 to 31—Devon Horse Show, Devon, Penn.
June 6 and 7—Tuxedo Horse Show.

STEEL LEAGUE GETS BUSY.

Will Operate Again with Players from the Majors.

A refuge for disgruntled major league players during the coming season has bobbed up in the much discussed Steel League to which several players jumped last season. The Bethlehem Steel Works announced yesterday that they planned to organize the Steel organization again during the coming Summer and it is stated that they plan to have several major league stars in the lineups.

This announcement offers another problem for the major leagues who were chagrined last season when the industrial league took their players. It was stated that they offered large salaries and the players only took part in one or two games a week. It is expected that within a short time the club owners will hear from their players, as all of the contracts will have to be sent out before Feb. 1. As many of the clubs have made cuts in salaries, there is sure to be as many hold-outs among the players as in former seasons.

PLAN MATRIMONY TOURNEY.

Husbands and Wives Will Compete in Novel N. Y. Tennis Club Event.

Plans providing for a continuance of the Manhattan doubles, Bronx singles, and the women's New York State championship tennis tournaments were adopted last night at the annual meeting of the New York Tennis Club at the Republican Club. Arrangements were also made for the club's annual tournament. An innovation is proposed in the promotion of a husbands' and wives' doubles tournament, which will probably be conducted on the grounds of the old West Side Tennis Club, just south of Van Cortlandt Park. The date will be announced later.

A committee was appointed for the purpose of securing permanent grounds for the club and to finance the project. The officers elected were: President, Christopher V. Winne; Vice President, Dr. Wallace Krugler; Secretary, Stanley F. Butler; Treasurer, Lewis F. Bailey, and Captain, H. J. Stein. The Governors selected were Maskell E. Fox and Dr. George B. Stanwix.

Meredith Retires from Competition.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—James E. (Ted) Meredith, the University of Pennsylvania track star, last night announced his retirement from the cinder path. He said he had decided to devote his entire attention to business. Meredith recently returned to this country from France, where he served in the American Aviation Corps.

UNGER'S CUE SKILL PUZZLES LANGDON

Ferdinand A. Unger of Newark, N. J., present holder of the title, scored his second victory last night in the national Class A amateur 18.2 balk-line billiard championship tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. The champion's second victim was Jesse B. Langdon. The score was 150 to 50 in thirty innings. Unger made an average of 5 and had a high run of 39. Langdon's highest tally was 11.

This contest brought out the best display of form the title holder has shown. He started slowly, but as the game progressed Unger gave demonstrations of the ability he possesses when in proper stroke. In his twenty-third turn at the table, Unger gathered in a cluster of 29 points before missing. This eclipsed by 7 points, the previous high run record of the tournament, which was made during the elimination-round play by George Spear, metropolitan champion.

Throughout the early innings, the players kept close together in the scoring. At the fifteenth inning Unger was leading by a point, the score being 25 to 22. A run of 10 points in his next frame put Unger in front by 33 to 22. In the nineteenth inning the title holder's margin had increased to 27 points, and thereafter Unger played with a consistency which enabled him to finish his game with a rush.

In another game Charles J. Steinbugler again defeated Gus Gardner. Steinbugler has scored consistently over Gardner, while the latter has shown favorably against the other players in the tournament. Steinbugler won by a score of 150 to 116 after forty-six innings of interesting play. The victor had a high run of 10, with an average of 3 12-46. Gardner, in his tenth inning, scored the highest run of the game, a cluster of 29 points.

At the twenty-seventh inning the score favored Steinbugler by 97 to 93. Thereafter Steinbugler gradually drew away from his opponent.

This afternoon Steinbugler will oppose J. F. Blaisdell. In the evening two games will be played, between Blaisdell and Joseph Neustadt and Unger and S. Brussell.

TO MEET BROWN ON MAT.

Columbia Wrestlers Start Season on Saturday Night.

The Columbia wrestling team will begin its season on Saturday night when it meets the Brown matmen in a dual meet in the Columbia gymnasium. The match was not arranged until yesterday and aside from one with Yale later in February, it is the only one on the Columbia list so far.

Gus Peterson, coach of the Blue and White wrestlers, has had a squad of more than twenty candidates on the floor every day for more than a month, among them being Al Towers, the big freshman football tackle, and Charlie Shaw, the intercollegiate half-mile champion. Fargo, who played centre on the football team, has also practiced assiduously and will probably be selected for the unlimited heavyweight class.

COLUMBIA SWIMMERS BUSY.

Blue and White Announces Nine Meets in Home Tank.

Columbia will have just as extensive a swimming schedule this year as it had in the days before the war. According to the list of meets announced yesterday by Levering Tyson, graduate manager of athletics, there will be a series of nine contests for the Blue and White Varsity swimmers, and with the exception of Princeton each of the teams in the Intercollegiate Swimming Association appears on the list for home and home matches. It is understood that the uncertain financial condition of athletics at Princeton influenced the Tigers not to undertake a trip to New York to meet the Columbians.

The schedule is as follows:

March 1, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; March 8, Pennsylvania at New York; March 11, C. C. N. Y. at Columbia; March 14, Yale at New Haven; March 22, Intercollegiate individual championships at C. C. N. Y.

TROPHY FOR MISS GEHRIG.

Woman Fencer Wins All Her Bouts in Turn Verein Tournament.

Miss Adelaide Gehrig won the Women's Fencing Cup at the New York Turn Verein in the annual competition for the emblem last night. She defeated five rivals in convincing fashion. This success gives Miss Gehrig her second leg on the trophy. Second laurels fell to Miss Helen Zenker, who lost one bout, while Miss Alice Glinke, losing two bouts, finished third.

Those who participated in the tournament were Miss Adelaide Gehrig, Miss Helen Zenker, Miss Alice Glinke, Miss Elsie Mucke, Miss Sophie Luehrmann, and Miss Marie Jauerig.

The summaries:

Miss Gehrig defeated Miss Luehrmann 5—1, Miss Mucke 5—3, Miss Glinke 5—1, Miss Zenker 5—3, Miss Jauerig 5—0.

Miss Zenker defeated Miss Luehrmann 5—2, Miss Mucke 5—3, Miss Glinke 5—1, and Miss Jauerig 5—3.

Miss Glinke defeated Miss Luehrmann 5—3, Miss Mucke 5—2, and Miss Jauerig 5—1.

Miss Jauerig defeated Miss Mucke 5—3.

Henigan Leaves U. S. Service.

Jimmy Henigan, former New England district runner, who formerly held the senior national cross-country title, was yesterday mustered out of Uncle Sam's military service. The former hill and dale champion has left for Medford, Mass., where he will visit with his relatives for several weeks. Henigan expects to return to this city and take up his permanent residence in time for the more important indoor athletic meets of the season. He recently joined the Brooklyn A. A.

BOAT RACE WILL BE ROWED ON THAMES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 28.—The action of the Harvard Athletic Committee is taken as an indication that the Harvard-Yale four-mile boat race will be resumed at New London in June. The Yale athletic authorities a short time ago suggested to the Harvard authorities that a meeting be held to consider the holding of the annual regatta, and Francis L. Higginson and B. Harwood were appointed to confer with Yale within a short time.

The official appointment of Bill Haines as Crimson rowing coach means that Harvard will put rowing back on the same basis as before the war. If the regatta is held on the Thames, as in the past, it is likely that the expensive training preparations will be modified and that the crews will not spend as much time as in the past at the training quarters near the historic course.

Harvard has made overtures to Princeton to row here in May, but on account of the expense it is not believed that the Crimson crew will undertake the trip to Peace this year.

Harvard's baseball schedule has been tentatively arranged and the customary two out of three series will be played with both Yale and Princeton. Yale will play here on Class Day, June 17, and will play at New Haven during Yale's Class Day festivities. The dates being considered with Princeton are May 17 and 24. Brown will play a two-game series with Harvard, the Crimson going to Providence on Decoration Day and will play here on the following day.

Gremmel Wins from Van Tassel.

Fred Gremmel defeated H. Van Tassel last night in the Class A, three-cushion billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Thum's Academy by a score of 35 to 24. Gremmel had a high run of 4, while Van Tassel's best effort was 2. Bill Blumenthal took the second game from Frank Becker, by a score of 35 to 19. High runs were 4 and 2 for winner and loser, respectively.

Billiard Stars to Play Again.

Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran, persistent challengers for Willie Hoppe's 18.2 balkline billiard title, will commence a three-night match this afternoon at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The young stars are to play a match of 1,500 points in blocks of 300 points each afternoon and evening. The afternoon games will start at 2:15 o'clock and the evening games at 8:15 o'clock.

DEAL GETS TITLE TOURNEY.

New Jersey Association Completes Plans for Busy Golf Season.

Delegates of clubs belonging to the New Jersey State Golf Association decided on July 17, 18, and 19 as dates for their championship tournament to be held at Deal, at the annual meeting at the Princeton Club yesterday afternoon. John E. Kelley, representing Deal, stated that his club preferred a July to a June selection, explaining that it would be hard to complete improvements planned before the later date. This time, incidentally, is the same as that taken for the Westchester County Golf Association tournament, probably at Apawamis.

After having served two terms, Nathan Schroeder was elected for a third time, and he in turn decided to keep his whole Executive Committee, including E. P. Holden, Jr., Secretary Treasurer; Charles P. Eddy, John E. Kelley, Frederick C. Reynolds, Frederick H. Thomas, and William Watson. Schroeder also said that he intended to add at least two more to this list, as he believed the association should do more than hold a single tournament each year. He is in favor of a junior event, as well as sectional competitions for clubs in the northern and southern parts of New Jersey.

When Oswald Kirkby won the New Jersey title for the third time in 1916, the Englewood Country Club became permanent possessor of the championship cup. This was the second time the trophy had been won outright, as the Montclair Golf Club early in the history of the organization took the first cup. In 1917 a new championship bowl was purchased and this is in the custody of the Executive Committee.

MAY HOLD FIGHT IN EUROPE.

Opposition May Force Rickard to Hold Willard Bout Abroad.

That Tex Rickard, Western promoter, is willing to go to France or England, if necessary, to promote the proposed heavyweight championship bout for which Jess Willard has contracted, is indicated in a report received yesterday from Kansas City. The Western promoter, it is reported, intimated that if he found opposition in this country to the heavyweight title bout which he is planning, he would shift the scene of the encounter to Europe. Rickard is now on his way to Texas.

There is nothing in the contract signed by Willard and Rickard which provides that the proposed contest be held in this country. Willard contracted to box anybody any place some time before July 4, in a championship contest. It is likely, therefore, if he finds sentiment favorable to such a proceeding, Rickard will stage the bout in France or England.

Rickard is now on a tour of various States, it is reported, for the purpose of sounding sentiment toward the proposed contest.

YALE HAS LARGEST SQUAD.

More Than 250 Swimmers in Eli Aquatic Campaign.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 28.—Yale will take part in eleven swimming meets this season, seven by the Varsity and four by the freshman team, aside from the class meets which have been scheduled under the new Yale régime, which compels every student to take part in some form of athletic activity. This is responsible for the largest swimming squad in Yale history. More than 250 candidates are out for the various squads.

The Varsity schedule, which is announced today, calls for eight meets, all in the Carnegie Pool. The freshmen will have four meets, two at home and two out of town.

The Varsity schedule follows:

Vacuum Bar Non-Skid

NO tread yet made of rubber is a perfect non-skid, but the Vacuum Bar tread, combining the suction grip of the arrow-head vacuum chamber with the rugged, diagonally placed bars, comes nearest to it and makes chains needless on wet and slippery asphalt.

The toughness of the STERLING Tread compound usually keeps the vacuum chamber effective until the guaranteed 5,000 miles have been run—then shift to the front wheels for the almost inevitable excess mileage.

STERLING Super-Size Cord tires, in sizes up to 40x8, are extra large, extra heavy, extra tough tires and are as good looking as they are good. They are not lowest in price, but many hundreds of satisfied users find them lowest in cost-per-mile.

We are told that the cheerful, constant, courteous service given in our branches is pleasantly unusual.

SWANN DRAFTS BILL FOR MILK CONTROL

Will Ask Legislature for Commission to License Producers and Dealers.

ENFORCE MILK AGREEMENT

Governor's Commission Attends to Violations by Small Dealers.

District Attorney Swann has drafted a bill to be presented to the Legislature which would put both the producer and the distributer of milk under license from a commission appointed by the Governor and composed of five members whose salary would be $5,000 a year and expenses.

The bill provides that the commission, not more than a majority of whom shall be members of the same political organization, "shall also have power (a) to investigate upon its own initiative, or upon complaint in writing, any matter concerning the production, handling, transportation, delivery, and distribution of dairy products, (b) to issue, and from time to time, to revoke, cancel, and annul licenses, pursuant to the provisions of this act; (c) to fix reasonable maximum prices for dairy products, both to the distributer and consumer; (d) to prescribe the methods for measuring and testing dairy products, and to provide for the making and recording of such measurements and tests; (e) to regulate the methods of receiving, pasteurizing, bottling, transporting, delivering, and distributing dairy products; (f) by its agents, experts, examiners or officers to enter upon any premises occupied or used for the purpose of producing, receiving, pasteurizing, delivering and distributing dairy products; (g) to provide methods for securing the payment to producers for dairy products sold."

It is provided that thirty days after the first organization of the commission all persons, firms, and corporations engaged in the production, receiving, or distributing of dairy products must obtain a license from the commission. The producers must pay an annual tax of not more than $5 and the distributers an annual license fee of not less than $100 nor more than $300, the amount of the fee to be fixed by the commission with respect to the volume of business. In default of compliance with any order of the commission the offender is subject to a penalty of $100 a day during which such default continues.

The first annual convention of the New York State Woman's Land Army, Inc., opened yesterday morning in the Hotel Astor with a review of the activities of the organization during the year 1918. Organized in 1917, when the Bedford Training Camp for Young Women was opened, the organization has grown until last year forty-four units were sent out to handle crops in places where labor shortages were the worst. Mrs. Thomas F. Burgess, the President, in her review of the year, said that the fact that the girls were eagerly enlisting for the 1919 season shows they like farm work and are anxious to help out again.

The Milk Commission appointed by Governor Smith met yesterday for the first time since the settlement of the milk strike on Jan. 18, for the purpose of ascertaining if the producers and the distributers were living up to the agreement entered into at that time. At the close of the meeting Chairman Robert E. Dowling, in whose office at 165 Broadway the meeting was held, announced that the plan of settlement of the controversy seemed to be working out nicely. Some ten or twelve cases of violations of the agreement were brought to the attention of the commission, and four or five of these were settled yesterday. A further meeting will be held Friday to consider the others. Chairman Dowling said that the cases brought to the attention of the commission involved small dealers and where the persons came before the commission the points in dispute were readily settled.

TRY WOMAN FOR EXTORTION

Mrs. Betty Inch, an attractive young woman giving her age as 25, was placed on trial yesterday before Justice Bartow S. Weeks, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, on an indictment charging her with attempted extortion. The complainant was Eugene P. Herrman, President of the Herrman Motor Truck of 615 West Fifty-seventh Street, who lives at 675 Riverside Drive. Assistant District Attorney Owen Bohan told the jury that on June 12 of last year, while Mr. Herrman and his family were dining at home, Mrs. Herrman was called to the telephone by a maid. A voice asked Mrs. Herrman, according to Mr. Bohan, if she desired evidence which would aid her in obtaining a divorce. The speaker gave the name of Mary Hayes. Mr. Bohan told the jury, and at the request of Mrs. Herrman related an episode in which she and Mr. Herrman took part.

The next day, according to Mr. Bohan, Herrman notified the police and later received a telephone call at his office from a voice which seemed to be the same as the night before. Mr. Herrman suggested a meeting, and after much persuasion a Broadway hotel was agreed upon. Accompanied by detectives and carrying a roll of marked money, Mr. Herrman went to the hotel, where he was met in the lobby by a woman representing herself to be a friend of the mysterious Mary Hayes, and who, Mr. Bohan said, was the defendant, Mrs. Inch. Mr. Bohan said that detectives saw Mr. Herrman give her the marked money.

Testifying in her own behalf, Mrs. Inch denied that she had telephoned to either Mrs. Herrman or the complainant. She admitted meeting Herrman, and said she had expected to get money for Mary Hayes, since she herself had spent nearly $200 on her. Mrs. Inch said Mary Hayes had told her that last Easter week she, a girl named Peggy White, and Herrman had remained all night in the latter's apartment on Riverside Drive while Mrs. Herrman was away.

REDS PLACARD CITIES.

Threats Posted in Philadelphia and Other Places.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 28.—The anarchist bombers are out again with threats of destruction. These have been sent in circulars to every newspaper in the city and the circulars have been crammed in letter boxes of the general section.

In part they read:

"The senile fossils ruling the United States Senate. Smelling their destruction they have decided to check the storm by passing the deportation law affecting all foreign radicals.

"Deportation will not stop the storm from reaching these shores. The storm is within, and very soon will leap and crash and annihilate you in blood and fire."

The type used in printing the circular is the same that was used in printing circulars distributed with three bombs recently exploded in this city.

BROCKTON, Mass., Jan. 28.—Anarchistic literature such as has been circulated in other parts of the country made its appearance here today.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 28.—Buildings, telegraph poles and trolley cars here were found to be decorated this morning with printed stickers, signed "The American Anarchists." They contain statements denouncing the deportation law and declare: "Deport us. We will dynamite you." The local police are investigating.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 28.—Stickers signed "The American Anarchists" were placed on the local Postoffice last night and were also received by many citizens in today's mail.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 28.—Stickers and bills signed "The American Anarchists" were brought to police headquarters here today by members of the force who found them in the downtown section.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Romeo and Juliet."

Last night at the Lexington Theatre "Romeo and Juliet," opera in five acts by Charles Gounod, was sung in French by the Chicago company with the following cast:

Duke of Verona	Vittorio Arimondi
Capulet	Auguste Bouilliez
Juliet	Yvonne Gall
Tybalt	Octave Dua
Romeo	John O'Sullivan
Mercutio	Alfred Maguenat
Stephano	Irene Pavloska
Friar Lawrence	Marcel Journet
Gertrude	Louise Berat
Gregorio	Desire Defrere

Corps de Ballet.
Conductor—Marcel Charlier.

We do not know the date of the last performance in this city, but we do know that there are few operas which would so well serve as a club with which to assault, metaphorically, the younger generation "which comes knocking at the door." "Romeo and Juliet," despite its general mediocrity as original music when compared with its predecessor, "Faust," has enjoyed the distinction of having been sung in this city by some splendid casts. Think of Jean de Reszke as Romeo, Edouard de Reszke as Friar Lawrence, Plançon as Capulet, Emma Eames, Juliet, Ancona, Mercutio. Nellie Melba was also a lovely Juliet. Now, though criticism thrives on comparisons, it would be obviously unfair to summon from the past memories of these artists. The principals in those representations have no successors simply because bel canto is no longer considered of vital importance on the operatic stage.

We recall as if it were yesterday the year 1878 in Paris when the opera was sung with Victor Capoul as Romeo. Yet, as was the same with "Carmen," we did not hear "Romeo et Juliette" sung that season. We saw Galli Marie in Bizet's "Pearl Fishers," not as Carmen. But Capoul we did hear, above all, enjoyed his impassioned assumption of Gounod's lover—Shakespeare has little to do with the character beyond furnishing the name and certain situations, any more than "Faust" is the real Faust of Goethe's immortal poem. Opera is opera. Jules Barbier with Carré were clever libretto makers, but they did not succeed with "Romeo and Juliet." Throughout it is a case of two is company, three none. A prolonged duet is the thrice-sentimental work, and sometimes a monotonous one. There is the valse of Juliet, perennial pasture for young ambitious sopranos. There is Mercutio's "Queen Mab," and the two-voiced madrigal, and in Act II. the balcony scene, tender and charming.

The marriage music is always liked. It is commonplace enough. The duel is à la Meyerbeer and effective; the finale and Romeo's song of banishment never fail to score. The duo in Act IV. and the "Non ce n'est pas le jour" evokes (of us) Jean de Reszke and Emma Eames, the ideal looking Juliet. There are some orchestral episodes which show Gounod as a master of atmosphere, as does the final duo. "Romeo and Juliet" is far from being a second "Faust," musically speaking, but it does demand good singing, and that is the reason it is so seldom heard nowadays.

The performance, take it by and large, was excellent. There were several débuts: Yvonne Gall, Juliet; John O'Sullivan, Romeo. The young lady is French and sings well, acts well. She suggests the routinière. She made all her points in her entrance music and sang the valse brilliantly; there was finesse, too, in the scales and other fioritura at the close; her trill was uneven—the lower note was too strongly accented—but the showy, shallow piece was acceptable to the audience and Miss Gall scored a success from the start.

Her voice was inclined to sharpness, but mellowed in the second act. It has that quality the French call "aigre doux." Her top C was free, almost too open. At least a welcome and minor offense, considering the squeezed pallid tones we so often hear in the upper range of sopranos. Her best singing was in the balcony scene, not too tender, but her rather metallic timbre was replaced by more warmth both in tone and sentiment. Miss Gall is a trained actress, sure of herself, and pretty, of the brunette type. An arch, capricious heroine, not passionate. But we were forced to miss the tomb scene, and this brief criticism only extends to Act III. We hope to hear her in other rôles.

The Romeo is a young Irishman, and, of course, we can't help seeing him in a favorable light. Even music reporters are human—occasionally. Mr. O'Sullivan has a light, agreeable tenor, not always happily produced, yet capable of expressive moments. He lacks distinction, as actor and singer, and that is a grave shortcoming. But if sincerity, feeling, and spirited action, withal gauche, count, then he must be given more than a meed of praise. He was liked by his hearers, and received plenty of applause. Bouilliez was the Capulet, Alfred Maguenat Mercutio. A skilled singer and actor who delivered the Queen Mab with much effect. His bearing is picturesque. Journet proved a sonorous friar, and the Nurse was in the capable hands of Louise Berat.

The choruses, male and mixed, and the ballet, were well trained. It would be a good idea to use a gauze drop in the prologue, as was the custom in the régime of Grau, especially in this house, where the lighting is cruelly disturbing. The placement of the orchestra has been changed, and with good results. There was decidedly a more euphonious balance, less blaring of brass. Marcel Charlier conducted with tact and full appreciation of the score.

RACHMANINOFF CHEERED.

He Plays His New Piano Concerto as Russian Symphony's Guest.

The Russian Symphony Orchestra, with Sergei Rachmaninoff as guest, gave its third subscription concert in Carnegie Hall last evening before an audience of compatriots that stood and cheered the composer-pianist for several minutes after his Concerto Op. 1, No. 1, which he performed in revised version for the first time, practically a new work.

Conductor Altschuler opened with Stravinsky's Symphony No. 1, which had had its first American hearing by the Russians in a former season, and was of interest in view of next week's revival of his "Petrushka." There were also an "Idyl" from Scriabine's Symphony No. 2, and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Tsar Saltan," a bit of folklore that in its music blends oddly with "Coq d'Or." The program will be further reviewed in THE TIMES after its repetition in the same hall this afternoon.

Samuel Gardner Plays Again.

Samuel Gardner, lately heard in chamber music with Willem Willeke and Richard Epstein, gave his second violin recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, playing Lalo's so-called "Symphonie Espagnole," with Francis Moore, and four novel "Preludes" of his own. He had also an andante and allegretto of Paganini, several arrangements by Joachim, Kreisler, Hartmann, and Grainger's version of his "Molly on the Shore."

Nearly 50 of 78 Years in Prison.

Joseph Hoffman, 78 years old, the oldest man to appear for sentence in the Queens County Court in years, was arraigned before Judge Humphrey in Long Island City yesterday for burglary and larceny. He admitted that he had spent nearly fifty of his seventy-eight years in prison. Judge Humphrey sent him to the New York Reformatory. Hoffman had been arrested for stealing chickens and had pleaded guilty. He had been sentenced to prison on twelve previous occasions for similar thefts.

To Hold Service for Roosevelt.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock a memorial service for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will be held in the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street. James M. Beck and the Rev. William I. Chamberlain will make addresses, and the Rev. Malcolm James MacLeod and the Rev. James M. Ludlow will pay tributes to the memory of the ex-President.

SUMMONSES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, COUNTY of Queens.—KATHERINE SULESKI, Plaintiff, against JOHN P. DALY and his wife, if any, her name being unknown to the plaintiff; and the widow, devisees and heirs at law of said John P. Daly, if he be deceased, who are unknown to the plaintiff; and the wife, if any, of each of such devisees and heirs at law, and the widow and surviving husband, if any, of such of them as may be deceased, each of whom is unknown to the plaintiff; and the devisees and heirs at law, if any, of such devisees and heirs at law, and the wife, if any, of any of them; and the widow and surviving husband, if any, of any of them who may be deceased, each of whom is unknown to the plaintiff; MARY E. DALY; and JOHN DOE, the tenant or occupant of the premises described in the complaint in this action, who is unknown to the plaintiff, the name John Doe being fictitious.—Defendants.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS: You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default, for the relief demanded in the complaint.

MILTON DAMMANN,
Attorney for Plaintiff, Office & P. O. Address, Number 61 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

NOTICE.—To the widow, if any, of John P. Daly, deceased, and his devisees and heirs at law, if any, and the widow and surviving husband, if any, of such of them as may be deceased, and the devisees and heirs at law, and the wife, if any, of any of them; and the widow and the surviving husband, if any, of any of them who may be deceased. The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of David F. Manning, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, dated the thirteenth day of January, 1919, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of Queens at Jamaica in the said county.

FOOD WON THE WAR.

Our foreign friends have appreciated and complimented us on the manner in which we rationed ourselves amid abundance at a time when those suffering from scarcity required Government control in the economy and distribution of food. We now have the details showing how well we deserved such praise. Our frugality enabled us to increase our exports of meat and dairy products from $437,000,000 in 1917 to $941,000,000 in 1918. Our increase of breadstuffs exported was from $631,000,000 to $801,000,000. Our total exports of agricultural products was $2,784,000,000, including two billions of foodstuffs. It is not too much to say that the soldiers who defeated Germany could not have been sustained in their efficiency without our supplies of food, clothing, and war implements. We were not quick in starting, but our momentum after starting was irresistible.

It is as difficult to stop as to start a moving mass, and the huge impetus of our food economies now creates abundance here while the rest of the world is still hungry. Accordingly, on New Year's Day there were stocks of nearly 300,000,000 pounds of frozen beef, nearly half a billion pounds of pork cured in several ways, and sundry increases in stocks of various meats ranging above 50 per cent. There is in prospect such an abundance of Winter wheat planted in reliance upon the Government's guarantee of $2.26 that there is embarrassment in finding the funds to pay the billions of dollars necessary, or in making provision for the hundreds of millions of dollars loss on the guarantee, unless our own bread is to be made dearer than the rest of the world's. Our actual stocks are 215 per cent of 1918, and the market price is breaking under the actual and prospective load. A leading flour mill stopped yesterday for the first time in many months because there was no market for flour, the Government having ceased its purchases. These are the basic facts upon which there is a demand that the restraints shall be taken off the food markets and prices be allowed to fall further and faster than they are falling, although the decline already is embarrassing or even threatening both to traders and to officials of several markets controlling vaster operations than the world ever witnessed.

There is natural resentment at any proposal to control a fall in food prices, but there is still reason to ask a continuance of that benevolent frugality and sacrifice which German ruthlessness imposed upon the world, and in particular upon us as those most blessed with plenty. That is still the situation. There is abundance only here. There would be abundance nowhere if all the food in the world were accessible to the hungry. The soldiers of democracy are eating less, but with the spread of their control over conquered territory the purveyors behind the fighters find their task increased. Last year we shipped about ten million tons of foods and fodders. This year we must ship fifteen millions. Last Summer we sent fifty million pounds of fats monthly, but we shall send eightfold this January. As peace progresses we shall send more and more, and the demands can decrease only as the less accessible stores of the world are opened. What should be our price policy under such conditions?

Regarding wheat there is nothing to be said. The national faith is pledged and must be redeemed. The necessity of exporting wheat and flour made it necessary that many substitutes should be held by dealers and distributed through them. Now the restrictions are removed when the stocks are the largest known. There is no question of guarantee, but there is a question of responsibility and good business judgment in the distribution of both the food and the loss. An even greater problem is the supply of fats, reflected in the fixed price for hogs. The price was fixed at a conference between the farmers, the Allies' buyers, who took and will take all there is, and the packers great and small, the trusts and the independents. The conference fixed both prices and profits and not a whisper would be heard if Germany had not collapsed. The question is whether the control of the market should stop so that domestic prices should fall contrary to good faith, and perhaps even ruinously.

Nobody doubts that the cost of food will and should fall. It is only a question of the rate and regulation of the fall. There are those who want a crash, just as there are those who want to sustain war wages in peace. On the other hand, it is to be remembered that this is a question of billions, and that it is increasingly a question of business and decreasingly a question of charity. The hundred millions just appropriated is to be spent, not given away. It will sustain our markets and strengthen the price structure, doing more good than would a crash. That is just as true of the billions of foodstuffs as of the hundred millions. It is now good business as well as benevolence to sell our surplus at fair prices and to ship so freely that the visible surplus shall not hang over the market, tantalizing the retail trade, frightening the wholesalers, and embarrassing the officials. Good faith and good business require us to continue our self-denial for the next six weeks. The agreed price to the hog raisers ends with the fat production season, and then it will be right and fair to protect the consumer.

A DISTRESSING SPEECH.

Somewhere east of the Sun and west of the Moon lies the continent of Aquaepotatio, Water Drinkers' Land. There water has something of the inebriating force of wine. It tears away inhibitions. It irritates the temper. It inspires rash and violent speech. Coming from a denizen of that country, and only from him, could such wild words as the State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League has permitted himself to use in regard to Cardinal GIBBONS find excuse or pardon.

Because Cardinal GIBBONS has dared to oppose prohibition, has spoken against it with the moderation and the wisdom, the experience and sagacity of life that are characteristic of him, Mr. ANDERSON has imputed to him mean and interested motives, has doubted his good faith, has attributed "dishonest and untruthful statements" to him, has attacked with what must be called foul blows this honored and true American, venerable not only as a great dignitary of a great Church, but for a long, blameless, fruitful life of wise counsel, noble achievement, and manifold public service. Fanatical intolerance and intemperance of the tongue cannot go much further, save on the soapbox or the stump.

"If Cardinal GIBBONS desires to oppose prohibition because many of the largest and wealthiest distillers of Maryland are members of and contributors to his Church"—so much and no more of this distressing harangue is quoted here. It is enough and more than enough to show the gracious amenities of Mr. ANDERSON's dialectics.

Cardinal GIBBONS has been misquoted, it seems; but whatever he said, and we are sure that he said nothing that was not pondered, reasonable, and sincere, he is entitled to be treated as a gentleman and an honest and a good man, leaving out of the question his dignity, his distinction, and his age. Not only Cardinal GIBBONS, but the obscurest and humblest man in America has a right to express his opinion of prohibition; and if he is to be answered, he should be answered temperately, without aspersion of motives. The moderate drinker has always been a thorn in the side of the prohibitionists. Is the man of moderate views or language to be a public enemy in their view?

Triumph ought to make them generous. The case of Mr. ANDERSON, who used to have some sense of humor, is especially afflicting. Is prohibition to be a dogma which everybody must subscribe to? Many irritations, clashes of authority, much sullenness of public opinion in communities not yet converted to the new dispensation, must be expected in the next few years. Good temper might at least be asked of the winners.

THE FIRST DIVISION IN FRANCE.

Now when the American Army of Occupation is looking down on the Rhine and the censorship has been relaxed, the Regulars are coming into their own. Indeed, there is no reason why the exploits of any American unit cannot be described. The stories of the Rainbow Division, the Empire Division, (the 27th,) the 77th of the National Army, the Wildcat Division, (the Western unit claiming that designation,) have been told by admiring correspondents, and the changes have been rung upon the valor of the Marines. But little has been heard of the machinelike precision and unvarying tenacity of the Regulars in action, in part because it is their business to fight without talking about themselves. However, even a Regular is human and likes to have his efficiency recognized. So when the 1st Division enjoyed a breathing spell at a Rhine bridgehead the correspondents were asked why they had overlooked the Regulars and had written so much about the achievements of National Guard and National Army Divisions; also why the Marines had been lauded to the skies as supermen when Regulars had done some of the work for which the sea-soldiers received credit—for instance, the capture of Vaux, which was taken by a battalion of the famous 9th Infantry.

It is true that the Regulars, whose organizations are not in touch with any given part of the United States, coming from everywhere, so to speak, and therefore without champions, had been more or less neglected. The 1st Division, consisting of a brigade of infantry, a brigade of artillery, with a regiment of engineers, a signal battalion, and the usual adjuncts, had been the first unit to land in France, the first to go into the trenches and into action, and the first to win anonymous fame in the brisk capture of Cantigny; and it had fought on until the heights of Sedan were won—all this without filling the trump of fame. The censor had consistently cut out the name of the organization all along the path to victory. Its remonstrance recalled the growl of the Regulars in Cuba when the Rough Riders eclipsed them in the first news of the carrying of San Juan Hill. At that time JOHN J. PERSHING was a First Lieutenant of the 10th Cavalry, a crack negro regiment, and he remarked ironically to a correspondent that the Rough Riders seemed to be "the whole show" in the newspapers.

The Regulars have to wait for recognition. As fighting is their profession they are supposed to excel and be silent. In all our wars their discipline has told. They have done great things as a matter of course, and it is a pleasantry when others are praised to say that they themselves are only Regulars; but there is a world of meaning in that way of putting their devotion to duty. The story that a commander of Regulars at the front sent word to a French General that he could not ask his men to retire may have been an inspiration of a correspondent on the alert for heroics with an ear quick to hearsay, but it is a fact that the Regulars hate going back with a passionate intensity. In France the 1st Division has certainly done very little of it, if it has ever given way a foot.

One explanation of the obscurity of this unit right up to the armistice is that from the day it landed in France the censor had orders to cut its number out of bulletins of the fighting lest the Germans might obtain intelligence of the identity and increase of the American forces. General BULLARD, every inch a soldier and a born leader of men, is said to have commanded the 1st Division at Cantigny, but nobody at home knew it for many a long day. Thereafter these Regulars, with brief respites to get their breath and reorganize, were in the thick of everything that was going on and bore themselves with a steadiness that had become second nature. They did not want to be called heroes, and exaggeration of their deeds would have excited a grim sense of humor that is characteristic of the Regular. It seems that the 1st not only made a great fighting record in France, as was to be expected, but from its ranks furnished officers for other organizations. Sometimes it was an obtuse censorship that clapped down the extinguisher upon the 1st Division, but is it not the fashion to make the Regulars wait unconscionably long for their laurels?

THE EX-KAISER'S BIRTHDAY.

The most distinguished resident of Amerongen, Holland, on Monday celebrated the completion of his sixtieth year. In memory of the day came great quantities of flowers from friends and admirers in the country across the border, where he was formerly well and favorably known; also several dozen scurrilous and abusive letters, which did not trouble his holiday calm since they were carefully sorted out of his mail and thrown away by his servants. The subject of congratulations doubtless has some trouble in recognizing himself when he looks in the mirror nowadays, for he has lately taken to wearing the undistinguished garb of civil life, and a Vandyke beard has supplanted the bristling mustaches once so famous. There is, too, the little matter of the projected serenade by the village choir, which had to be abandoned on account of public opinion; and some disorganization seems to have been caused in the household by the recent desertion of a number of old servants. But, on the whole, it may be doubted if many men of 60 can celebrate their birthdays in such external comfort.

However, it all depends on what you've been used to. Ten years ago this same man celebrated his fiftieth year in Berlin, with Kings and Grand Dukes flocking to him to pay their respects and assure him of their loyal support. Among the innumerable gratifying incidents which adorned that occasion were the presentation of $100,000 by ADOLPHUS BUSCH to Harvard University to found a museum of Germanic culture in honor of the birthday, and a gift by the celebrant himself to the American Church in Berlin of a sumptuously embellished volume which was regarded by giver and receiver as the token of an ancient and valued friendship. To be sure, this man's chief servant had lately had to promise the parliament of his subjects that he would keep his master's tongue in its place; but this was a detail of small account.

Five years ago, on Jan. 27, this highly placed personage celebrated the completion of another lustrum. There were the same throngs of cheering subjects, the same processions of congratulatory ambassadors, the same edifying spectacle of eminent scientists, business men of genius, artists and authors of distinction who counted as their greatest honor the receipt of a ribbon from him. There were also annoying trivialities, of course; the civil administration of Alsace-Lorraine was just resigning on account of the feeling roused by the incident at Saverne; but this could hardly mar the day. This distinguished individual ruled an empire which was absolutely, if not relatively, the most powerful ever known; by common consent the strongest State in the world, and supposed to be, in many ways, the most highly civilized. He governed his people, in the last analysis, according to his own personal pleasure; and they liked it.

Other Emperors have fallen as far and as suddenly, but of no other can it be said so confidently that his fall was entirely his own fault. If he had let well enough alone he would have celebrated his birthday in Berlin this year, amid the same surroundings and the same enthusiasm. His people were far gone on a vicious course when he came to the throne, but if he had spent his first twenty-five years in holding them back instead of spurring them on he would not now be wondering if he will ever see another birthday. No doubt he does not see it in this light; delusions of persecution, which seem to be endemic in the German people, have not left the imperial family unaffected; he probably regards himself as the victim of an infamous conspiracy of the whole human race, and perhaps hopes that the friend and patron of Gott will not be forsaken. But his hope is a small one; the grand jury of civilization is preparing the indictment. History shows no more perfect illustration of the old Greek doctrine of Hubris and Nemesis, of overweening pride infallibly punished.

MAKING IT PLAIN.

Mr. CHESTER M. WRIGHT, who used to be managing editor of The New York Call, and may therefore be supposed to know something about Socialists, sends to The Tribune from Paris the information that "LENINE "is not satisfied with the proposed "International Socialist Congress "called by ARTHUR HENDERSON, the "British Radical labor leader, and "proposes to hold a personally supervised congress of extremists to "plan the overthrow of the bourgeoisie by the most approved Bolshevist methods."

It is just as well that there should be no nonsense, no use of language to conceal thought about LENINE's attempt to overthrow the present order of civilization. HENDERSON's congress is only a congress of Socialists. It is well that a deep dividing line should be drawn between honest Socialists and the Bolsheviki. Bolshevism is not socialism. It contemplates the government of the people by a few for a few. It is no wonder that LENINE, holding the ideas he does, will have nothing to do with half measures, or with those who propose them, Laodiceans, whom, because they are neither hot nor cold, he despises.

We earnestly hope that LENINE's congress will be in session long enough to illustrate completely the great division that separates these new Caesars, these new Napoleons, these new Hapsburgs, these new Hohenzollerns, these new Legrees, from the common run of man, workingman, Socialist, or whatever he may be.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Realization Gained by Seeing. For President WILSON to use his first leisure day, not in rest, but in a personal inspection of the ruins at Château-Thierry, Rheims, and the neighboring towns, was in every way commendable, and it is equally comprehensible and beyond criticism that the French, ever since his arrival, have been eager to have him see with his own eyes exactly what this war was before the Peace Conference reaches its conclusions as to the action to be taken with respect to the prevention of future wars. Of course, he already knew from books and pictures, as everybody else with an intelligent or even decent interest in the happenings of his day must know, what it was that the Germans brought to pass in their mad effort to conquer and rule the world. It is, however, the unanimous and easily believable assertion of all who have traversed the zones of active operations that only by personal inspection can either a full or a real understanding of the horrors there accumulated be obtained, and such an understanding is certainly desirable as preparation for their work by every participant in the great Congress.

What was the worst feature of what the President saw has now been concealed by the colossal toils of the military gravediggers, but enough was left to bring before him more clearly than can books or pictures the enormity of the crime for which, in addition to guarding against its repetition, he is to help in fixing just reparation.

Accusations Against Our Soldiers. First among the emotions created in American minds by the reports from Paris of murders and robberies committed there in large numbers by men who are or have been American soldiers—first and strongest of those emotions is incredulity. Our own towns and cities have been full for months of just such men as the members of our force abroad, and the instances in which they have been guilty of anything approaching serious misbehavior have been so few as to be, if not exactly negligible, at least regarded calmly as the sporadic transgressions to be expected from any large aggregation of human beings.

As a class, these soldiers have been more than notable for orderliness, sobriety, and courtesy. They have been teachers of good manners to the civilian population, and they have promoted public safety instead of endangering it. That any large number of the brothers of these men have fallen into criminal ways in the French capital is a matter of fact, of course, and not one of opinion or assertion, but doubt and even disbelief will persist here until the Parisian authorities have police station records and court convictions to prove the charges.

The men accused are described as deserters, but desertion in time of war is an offense which our army officers view as gravely as do those of any other army, and it seems far from likely that such evasions have been ignored by them. Possibly the "Apache" of Paris has not found it difficult to get American uniforms in which to disguise himself in order to minimize the risk of detection and capture. No American soldier in Paris has for crime the excuse or explanation of desperate need, as generous provisions for all his wants are made.

A Momentous Question Is Raised. In "The Roll Call," latest product of ARNOLD BENNETT's industrious pen or typewriter, there is presented a curious test of gentility or social rank. The hero of the tale, calling at the house of an office associate, has the door opened at his ring of its bell by a young woman who asks, "Do you want to see father?" It seems that if the words had been, "Did you want to see father?" it would have proved that she belonged to the shop girl or clerk class, but the "do" raised her above those depths!

At any rate, that is the hero's belief, and apparently Mr. BENNETT himself at least inclines to the same opinion. It may be, of course, that Mr. BENNETT is only laughing at the young man, as he does often and often, but none the less the difference between the two questions remains an interesting one.

"Do you want to see father?" is quite right, indeed, but isn't "Did you want to see father?" just a shade more suave, just a shade less peremptory? If so, might it not be the better—sometimes?

THE GENERAL'S PLACE.

Some Lines from an Unpublished MS. of General R. E. Lee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Friday's issue of THE TIMES you administer a merited rebuke to "critics of our army chiefs who are in the habit of speaking scornfully of men in high command who send others into battle and themselves remain safely in the rear."

Several years ago I had the privilege of reading General Robert E. Lee's views as to the place of a General in battle, which may be of interest to your readers. I quote from an unpublished manuscript in his handwriting. The date is not given, but the internal evidence points to the time of the Mexican war:

"Thus with 10,000 men a General fights. He ought to be in the middle of his troops, and often exposed to the fire of the enemy's musketry.

"With 30,000 men a General commands. He causes his reserves and troops to move, and if he is generally, unless under very extraordinary circumstances, beyond the range of musketry he ought to be constantly within that of artillery.

"With 80,000 or 100,000 men a General directs. He forms his plans, issues his orders before the battle, and awaits the event in a central position. During the battle he provides for all unforeseen contingencies, remedies every accident.

"Before the battle he ought to expose himself in order to see with his own eyes and judge with precision as to the state of affairs. This duty fulfilled, he issues his orders and leaves each to perform the duty assigned him.

"If things turn out well he has nothing more to do. Should accidents occur, they should be met by fresh combinations.

"If, on the other hand, the aspect of affairs threatens a catastrophe, then he should place himself at the head of the last troops he moves against the enemy. At such a moment his presence gives an impulse and produces a moral effect that doubles their valor."

From the above it is seen that in only one case does General Lee hold that the commanding General of a large army should lead his men in battle, and that is "when the aspect of affairs threatens a catastrophe." Under such circumstances General Lee thrice tried in the Spring of 1864 to lead his men to "the imminent deadly breach," but was prevented by their refusal to advance unless he would go to the rear. See the details given in General Long's authoritative "Memoirs of Robert E. Lee," in his account of the battles of Spottsylvania and the Wilderness.

So far is it from being the opinion of General Long (a most accomplished officer) that the General in Chief should lead his troops in battle that he feels called on to justify General Lee's endeavor to do so. Thus on Page 341 of the "Memoirs" he says with reference to the battles above named: "General Lee's presence and action were necessary to stimulate the men to greater deeds of valor. It had become a question of victory or defeat, and any General may reasonably expose himself when the fate of a battle hangs upon a thread. In the writer's experience, General Lee never unnecessarily courted danger, though he never cautiously avoided it. It was always his custom to make a personal examination of the movements in progress, as he wished to avoid any reckless exposure of his men. This habit frequently brought him under the fire of the enemy, but he never exposed himself recklessly or unnecessarily, though no consideration of personal safety ever deterred him from the full performance of the duties which necessarily devolved upon a commanding General."

Amend the Constitution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the greatest and most dangerous pests is the chewing gum fiend.

They spit out the gum on sidewalks, in theatres, and any other old place most convenient to them.

It is carried to the homes of decent people on their shoes, no doubt spreading consumption, influenza, and other infectious diseases.

THE MARTIAL MUSE.

Her sanguine song has pealed so long,
Her screams have rung so wildly,
That now, with peace, her woes increase—
She cannot warble mildly.
The wary chats of diplomats,
Though consummate in cunning,
Do not enthrall her soul at all
Like whippet tanks a-Hunning.
The sudden cease of shot and shell
Has left her somewhat dizzy;
Her gory rhymes offend the times.
And yet . . . she must keep busy!

No more she durst make shrapnel burst
Like salvos of tomato,
Nor let cold steel the foe congeal
To cannon obbligato.
She has to stand, her lyre in hand,
Like any parlor model
(Without a verse to rouse a curse)
And chant the dove-cote twaddle.
She hates to sing of love and Spring
But Winter, though you view it
With self-control, means bills for coal
And so . . . she has to do it!

$250,000 FOR TROOP WELCOME IS VOTED

Aldermen Adopt Mayor's Resolution Despite Republican and Socialist Opposition.

POLICE READY FOR TROUBLE

Bitter Wrangle Over Costly Celebration Instead of Aiding Soldiers to Jobs.

Extra police and detectives were ordered to guard the City Hall yesterday from a threatened disturbance by discharged soldiers and sailors while the Board of Aldermen was considering the proposal of Mayor Hylan for an issue of $250,000 in special revenue bonds to finance the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Soldiers. Several persons who addressed one another as "Comrade" were excluded from the galleries, and there was only a minor disturbance after the Mayor's proposal had been authorized with only nine dissenting votes.

Orders to station extra police in the corridors and galleries were given to Inspector Conboy of the First Inspection District, after several discharged soldiers had asserted at a meeting in the Rand School of Social Science, in East Fifteenth Street, on Monday night that they would attempt a demonstration to prevent the passing of the resolutions.

Before the Rand School meeting was broken up by Navy Beach Guards, several protests had been made, the speakers asserting that the money should be used in finding jobs for discharged soldiers, and not in entertaining them. Several Aldermen were at the meeting.

Soldier in Uniform Searched.

While the Mayor's proposal was being debated by the Aldermen an assistant Sergeant-at-Arms in the gallery requested a soldier in uniform to step into the corridor, and there he was searched by detectives. He had nothing in his pockets but an honorable discharge from the army, and he said he had come to the meeting to present to the board a copy of the resolutions passed at the Rand School meeting by the so-called Soldiers', Sailors', and Marines' Protective Association. He said his name was Ralph Tropp and that he had been wounded at Fismes while he was serving with the 305th Field Artillery. Detectives allowed him to return to the gallery.

After the Mayor's proposal had been adopted by a vote of 62 to 9 another resolution was passed authorizing the city officials to let all the contracts for the decorations and other work to be done in preparation for the welcome without calling for public bids. Under the plan proposed to the Aldermen last week by the Mayor's Secretary the work to be contracted for would amount to about $125,000 for decorations, $25,000 for illumination, $15,000 for a reviewing stand, and more than $100,000 for dinners and other entertainments, in addition to the money derived from the special revenue bonds $100,000 set aside in the budget is available for the use of the committee.

A substitute resolution introduced on behalf of the Republican minority in the board, protesting against the use of such a large sum merely for entertainment of the soldiers, was defeated by a vote of 49 to 5. The Socialist members did not vote on this, although they voted in the negative upon the Mayor's proposal.

The resolution of Aldermen Falconer, Squiers, and Quinn said it was unnecessary to provide an issue of bonds because money could be transferred from the budget appropriation for special tunnel, aqueduct, and bridge guards. It was pointed out that $450,000 had been set aside for these special police and that reduction of their numbers would leave $250,000 for the Mayor's Committee.

Want Jobs Provided.

The resolution offered by the Republican members said that "the returning soldiers and sailors themselves would prefer that the city, instead of spending $730,000 with private contractors and without public letting, should spend the greater part of this $730,000 in such a way as to redound to the direct and permanent welfare of our returned soldiers and sailors through the initiation and prosecution of public works of vital necessity." In addition to giving soldiers and sailors jobs on public works of all sorts the suggestion was that some of the money be used in creating bureaus to find jobs for the returned men.

It was pointed out that $100,000 already was available in the city budget and that a special issue of special revenue bonds for $80,000 had been voted for the temporary Arch of Victory. To add to this the $300,000 to be raised by public subscription and the sum proposed by the Mayor, all to be spent only upon a fleeting welcome, the resolution continued, would constitute "pomp and pageantry more extravagant and wasteful than any since the days of the Roman Empire." The effect of the expenditure upon taxes also was touched upon.

In reply Borough President Dowling of Manhattan said that the emergency policemen were a necessary part of the department until the regular members returned from war, and he remarked that during the Mitchel administration $250,000 was provided for the welcome of the allied missions without a dissenting vote among the Aldermen.

Alderman Falconer retorted that the Republicans had no desire to detract from the welcome to the soldiers, but that they did not desire to point out a way to get the money without issuing special revenue bonds. He added that the sum to be spent in decorations was more than three times the $40,000 used to transform Fifth Avenue into the "Avenue of the Allies" during the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign, "and they were the best decorations the world has ever seen." Alderman Squiers suggested an endowment fund to aid soldiers whenever they were in distress.

When President Moran of the Aldermen retired from the session to attend an executive meeting of the Board of Estimate the seven Socialist Aldermen had a series of clashes with Alderman William P. Kenneally, who was called to preside, and with other Aldermen. Reading of a letter pressing a resolution offered by the Socialists was opposed by Alderman Wirth upon the ground that it was "propaganda" and for several minutes there was confusion. A woman in the gallery who shouted: "This is worse than Russia" was calmed by the extra policemen stationed there, and the presiding Alderman called upon the sergeant at arms to seat the Socialist Aldermen who were demanding the floor. The bickering upon employment for soldiers and the recent harbor strike continued until adjournment.

Controversy Over Beck Invitation.

Another controversy began in Brooklyn yesterday over the invitation extended to James M. Beck to speak at a mass meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music tonight under the auspices of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee. A resolution purporting to have been adopted by members of the Brooklyn committee at a meeting at the home of James E. Sullivan, at 530 Fifty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, was presented to Borough President Reigelmann, Honorary Chairman of the Victory Committee. It protested against the invitation extended to Mr. Beck.

Borough President Reigelmann ordered Nathan S. Jonas, Chairman of the committee, to cancel the invitation, so that "nothing would be done to give offense to any people of Brooklyn." He charged that the meeting of the Independent Citizens' Committee in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 17, at which Mr. Beck and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning were speakers, "was planned as a direct attack upon the head of the city government." Mr. Beck should not have been invited to the Brooklyn meeting, Borough President Reigelmann continued, because he "took such an active part in furthering the objects of the Madison Square meeting."

Mr. Sullivan refused Borough President Reigelmann's invitation to confer with Chairman Jones, who then gave out a statement asserting that the resolutions "contained untruths and misstatements." He said the committee was not antagonistic to Mayor Hylan or any other public official, and continued:

"While I remain Chairman of this committee, no newspaper or its representative will dictate the actions of the committee nor influence its Chairman; neither will any body of men, in or out of politics, intimidate the committee in spite of the fact that some newspapers are willing to support and give publicity to unimportant details for the purpose of embarrassment. This committee is going about its labors, believing that it has practically the united citizenship of Brooklyn behind it. Whenever its Chairman shall observe a sentiment to the contrary, he will call a meeting of the Executive Committee and present his views to them for action."

Borough President Reigelmann also announced that several soldiers who had walked out of the Madison Square mass meeting after the Mayor had been criticised for appointing William R. Hearst as a member of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops had informed him they would create a disturbance if Mr. Beck spoke at the meeting.

Secretary Daniels Orders Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary Daniels today instructed Rear Admiral Usher at New York to investigate and report upon the suppression by a naval guard and police reserves there last night of a meeting of discharged soldiers, sailors and marines at which the speakers criticized the Government.

WOULD AVOID THIS PORT.

Pennsylvania Legislators Assail Welcoming Committee Here.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 28.—State Senator George Woodward of Philadelphia today introduced a resolution in the Senate assailing Mayor Hylan's committee to welcome homecoming soldiers from France, and asked the Federal Government to designate Philadelphia as the port of debarkation.

The resolution was adopted by both Senate and House, and, according to its terms, Secretary of the Commonwealth Cyrus E. Woods will at once forward copies to the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy. The resolution reads:

Whereas, The Mayor of the City of New York has appointed on a committee to receive soldiers, sailors, and marines returning from Europe men whose patriotism in the war with Germany and Austria has been questioned; and,

Whereas, The Port of Philadelphia has adequate facilities to permit the landing of these returning soldiers, sailors, and marines; and,

Whereas, It is proper and fitting that these men returning from a war having for its purpose the preservation of our life, liberty, and happiness should be landed at Philadelphia, the city wherein was adopted the Declaration of Independence, establishing the liberties of the people; therefore, be it

Resolved, If the House of Representatives concur, that the general assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby respectfully petition the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Navy of the United States to appoint the Port of Philadelphia as the port for the landing of all soldiers, sailors, and marines returning from Europe and destined for the Eastern part of the United States.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Commonwealth be directed to forward a copy of this resolution to the President, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Navy of the United States.

VOTE FOR TAX COMMISSION.

Assembly Favors Establishment of Board to Increase Revenues.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—The Assembly today concurred in the resolution already presented to the Senate for the establishment of a commission to investigate taxation and devise means to raise taxes to take the place of the revenue that will be lost through the adoption of the prohibition law. A tax on all incomes above $2,000 will be recommended.

The bill provides for a commission of six members, three Senators and three Assemblymen. Two of the places, it is understood, will go to the Democrats. An appropriation of $15,000 for the commission's expenses is provided for.

If the bill is adopted at once the commission will hold its first session in Albany next week. There will be at least one session in New York City.

It is expected that Senator Davenport will be Chairman of the commission. He is at present Chairman of the Senate Committee on Taxation.

It is intended to retain three prominent tax experts—Professor Charles J. Bullock of Harvard, Chairman of the Model Tax Committee of the National Tax Association; Professor E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia, and Professor Henry Adams of the University of Wisconsin. Either Charles J. Tobin of Albany, Vice President of the National Tax Association, or Martin Saxe, former State Tax Commissioner, will be selected as counsel to the commission.

ALTERS WAR CONTRACT BILL

Senate Bars Profits on Work Performed After Cancellation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—With the hope of reaching a final vote before adjournment tomorrow, the Senate devoted another day to consideration of the bill for the validation and settlement of informal war contracts. The measure, which was framed by the Military Affairs Committee as a substitute for the House bill, was amended in several minor details.

Without a record vote the Senate tentatively accepted an amendment offered by Senator McKellar of Tennessee providing that in no case should any award include "prospective or possible profits on any part of a contract beyond the goods and supplies delivered to and accepted by the Government and a remuneration which may include a reasonable profit for expenditures and obligations necessarily incurred in performing the contract." The amendment is designed to prevent claims for profits on contracts, the filling of which had not been started at the time of cancellation.

An amendment by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, which was also adopted, would authorize the Secretary of War to apportion the amounts awarded to prime contracts among subcontractors. The amendment also would give the claims of subcontractors priority over those of other creditors.

PRAISE RAILWAY WORKERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Letters of complaint, suggestion, or commendation as to railroad service received by the Bureau for Suggestions and Complaints of the Railroad Administration during its first sixteen weeks of existence, up to Dec. 24, numbered 11,860. Classification of the letters, the bureau announced today, showed "that those commending employes for courtesy and loyalty exceed the complaints of discourtesy by nearly two to one."

"In not a few cases we have been able to adopt the suggestions made," the bureau said, "and the complaints and recommendations received have enabled us to correct disservice or discourtesy and recognize merit with a promptitude hitherto impossible."

Referring to letters of commendation for individual employes, the bureau said that they constituted a "record of which the army of railroad men as well as the women who have recently been mustered into service may well be proud." All letters of individual commendation have been entered on the records of the employes and "will be given due consideration at the appropriate time."

WANTS LION'S PLACE IN NATIONS' LEAGUE

If Peace Is to Last, Says Admiral Mayo, Lion and Lamb Must Lie Down Together.

SEES NAVY IN TRANSITION

Admiral Henry T. Mayo, the commander in chief, and more than 100 other officers of the Atlantic fleet were the guests yesterday of the Sons of the Revolution at a luncheon served in Fraunces's Tavern. The officers present included Vice Admiral Albert Gleaves, commanding the Cruiser and Transport Force; Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, who commanded the American dreadnoughts in the Grand Fleet; Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, one of the new squadron commanders of the fleet, who was in command of the naval battery of big guns that fought on the western front; Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, and Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher.

Robert Olyphant, President of the organization, presided, and the speakers were Admirals Mayo, Rodman, Gleaves, and Plunkett, and De Lancey Nicoll. All of the speeches were war speeches and Admiral Mayo in the course of his remarks referred to the League of Nations now under consideration by the peace commissioners in Paris. He said that if the League of Nations becomes a reality it will mean that the "lion and the lamb must lie down together," and that in such an event he was of the opinion that the United States should try to be a lion and not a sheep.

"I thought," said Admiral Mayo, "that for some time before we entered the great war our people were losing much of the patriotic spirit that inspired our fathers in the Revolution. It seemed that a large part of our people had come to that pass where they appeared to think that the United States owed them something. And so I hope that the greatest value of this war will be the restoration of a sense of duty and obligation to our country on the part of the people.

"Just now the navy is in a sort of transition period following the tremendous expansion due to the war. We have now got to go backward a bit and reduce the navy, and I think there is danger that we may do it too fast. The war is not over yet, but granting that it will end without further hostilities, the fact remains that the navy has tremendous tasks yet to accomplish. We have got to bring our men back, we must rebuild the teamwork of our battleship and destroyer organizations, we must train new crews to fight our ships, for great numbers of the men who served so well enlisted for the period of the war and they are all anxious to get home, though some of them, I am sure, will come back. The result of all this has been the disorganization of what I term the teamwork of the fleet. The battleship commanders, I am sure, appreciate the magnitude of the task ahead of them. I know that I do.

"I wonder if any of you will combat the idea that had we spent two hundred or more millions on preparedness before the war we might not have been called upon to spend so many billions during the last year and one half. If the war ends without trouble between at least some of the nations that were engaged, it will be a different ending from any other great war that has ever taken place. Whether the Peace Congress is to be entirely successful with the League of Nations is something I will not discuss, but the fact remains that in order to keep peace the lion and the lamb must lie down together, and in such an event I think it perhaps best for America to take the rôle of the lion."

Mr. Nicoll, the next speaker, eulogized the work of the navy and also of the army in the war. He said that when we entered the war the army was unprepared, but that it was different with the navy.

Vice Admiral Gleaves said he had been heard so many times in New York that he had decided only to recall the efficient services of the officers and men under his command in transporting the great American army safely to France.

Admiral Rodman told of the surrender of the German fleet in which his dreadnoughts represented the United States. He received the order from Admiral Mayo more than fourteen months ago to proceed to the North Sea and join the British Grand Fleet at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, said Admiral Rodman.

"At 5 o'clock that same afternoon," added the Admiral, "the first ship of the division was under way. Our mission was to capture, destroy, or annihilate the German fleet, and that is what the Grand Fleet did. The instant a German ship poked its nose out of its hiding place there was a sufficient force ready to meet it. I am not permitted to tell you how we knew every time one tried to come out, but we did just the same. I have been asked the question many times why the German fleet surrendered. The principal cause was that they knew absolutely that if they did come out they would be licked. There is no question that the German fleet felt that in the event it came out it would meet the fate of the submarines, and I may add that it was not until after the surrender that we found out how effective had been the campaign against the U-boats. The final figures showed we had accounted for eighty more than we had claimed to have accounted for.

"It seems inconceivable," said Admiral Rodman, "that a fleet as strong as that of the Germans could accept conditions so humiliating. To this day not an officer or man in the Grand Fleet has spoken to those Germans except officially. We knew that they did not play the game fair, we knew they were barbarians by land and pirates by sea, the murderers of women and children, men who were not fit for an officer or a gentleman to speak to.

"We used to worry a little when we thought of war between America and Germany. We had fear of a war with that people. But there is no danger now. It is over and done with. There is nothing more."

Admiral Plunkett, who commanded the big American naval guns on the western front, said that the American naval battery fought all the way from St. Quentin to Luneville, playing a particularly brilliant and important part in the recapture of the important cities of Laon and Sedan. The five 14-inch guns which the navy manned were designed and built in this country. The carriages on which they were mounted were built in fifty days, thirty-nine concerns having part in that great achievement. When he arrived in France with his guns Admiral Plunkett said the French were at first skeptical as to the wisdom of permitting them to be transported over the railroad, being fearful that the roadbeds could not stand the weight. He finally had to appeal to the Government in Paris before he received permission to take the guns to the front. The fears of the French, the Admiral added, were in a measure justified as no such weights had ever before been carried on the French railroads.

Others at the luncheon yesterday were Captains William C. Cole, Harley H. Christy, and C. B. McVay, Jr., who were dreadnought commanders in the Grand Fleet under Rodman; Captain William A. Moffett of the new superdreadnought Mississippi, Captain D. M. Nulton of the fleet flagship Pennsylvania, Captain L. M. Overstreet, Captain Yates Stirling, and Captain W. K. Wortman of the destroyer forces; Captain G. R. Venable, Captain S. H. R. Doyle, Captain C. F. Freeman, Captain Adolphus Andrews, Captain D. W. Blamer, Captain E. H. Dodd, Captain C. R. Miller, Captain H. H. Hough, Captain W. V. Pratt, and Commanders F. C. Ely, A. S. Hickey, J. H. Hoover, F. C. Martin, S. B. McKinney, R. S. Robertson, and E. S. Root, Major N. P. Vulte, and Captain P. A. del Valle of the Marines.

APPEAL FOR NURSES TO FIGHT INFLUENZA

Henry Street Settlement Reports Itself Unable to Cope with Situation.

1,000 DEATHS LAST WEEK

Slight Increase Yesterday, but Dr. Copeland Says There Is No Cause for Alarm.

Lillian D. Wald, head of the Henry Street Settlement, issued an appeal yesterday for nurses and for money to bring nurses to the city to aid in the fight against pneumonia and influenza. At the settlement it was said that only 153 nurses were available and that many cases had to go unattended.

The settlement's nurses, it was said, were caring for 2,000 cases a day at the present time and that this was their limit, while at the height of the epidemic last Fall the 189 nurses and the 50 nurses' aids attached to the institution handled 4,000 cases a day. When Dr. R. S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, heard of the appeal of the Henry Street Settlement he said there was no necessity for turning away cases, for the Department of Health had from 400 to 500 nurses who could aid in the work. He immediately ordered the Bureau of Preventable Diseases to notify all the settlement and other private agencies handling the nursing situation that all cases they were unable to care for should be referred to the Health Department.

The Henry Street Settlement yesterday turned away applications for relief in broncho-pneumonia and double pneumonia cases, it was said, and a case was cited of a household of two families where seven of the eight persons were ill and no nurses available. Another appeal to which it was impossible to respond was that of a man whose wife and three children are ill with pneumonia, and who, without aid, was finding it beyond his strength to attend to the sick members of his family.

The number of new cases of pneumonia and influenza and deaths from these causes took an upward turn yesterday, but Health Commissioner Copeland said that there was nothing like an epidemic at the present time. There were 109 deaths from influenza yesterday, compared with 43 on Monday, and 119 deaths from pneumonia, compared to 61 the day before. The new cases were as follows:

	Influenza.	Pneumonia.
Monday	229	47

There were 1,140 deaths last week from pneumonia, influenza, and other respiratory diseases, compared with 433 a year ago. The average number of deaths from these causes for the week ended Jan. 25, covering a period of five years, was 400. During October, when the epidemic was at its height, the deaths ran more than 800 a day, said Dr. Copeland, adding that there was no cause for alarm at this time, and suggesting as the principal precaution that the sick member of the family be isolated.

Here are the number of cases reported yesterday by boroughs:

	Influenza.	Pneumonia.
Manhattan	270	77
Brooklyn	246	63
Bronx	102	35
Queens	15	17
Richmond	27	7
Total	[illegible]	199

The visiting nurse service of the Henry Street Settlement, said Miss Wald yesterday, was overwhelmed with requests for nurses with demands for care in some cases of five, six, and seven persons ill in a family.

Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George Boardman Robinson was celebrated with a dinner and reception last evening at the Hotel Gramatan in Bronxville. Their daughter, Mrs. Ramsay Pugnet, acted as hostess. The couple were married in the old New York Cathedral in Mulberry Street, and for years Mr. Robinson was President of the New York Catholic Protectory in the Bronx. They have four sons and three daughters. All of the sons were present except John Bryan Robinson, a member of Coudert Brothers, who is now in Paris.

PERKINS APPOINTMENT HELD UP IN SENATE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—Four of Governor Smith's most important nominations were reported today by the Senate Finance Committee to the Senate. The appointment of Miss Frances E. Perkins to the State Industrial Commission was not reported. Action on Miss Perkins's nomination, it is expected, will be taken next week, and it was rumored today that the committee will report her name. No reason was given for postponing action.

Governor Smith this afternoon declared that he would refuse to withdraw Miss Perkins's name, and said he wanted a vote by the Senate on her appointment, despite the opposition to her that has been made, particularly by the manufacturing interests of the State. The Governor intends to make a hard fight to have her nomination confirmed.

The appointments reported favorably today were: Lewis Nixon of New York, to be State Superintendent of Public Works, to succeed General W. W. Wotherspoon; Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn, to be State Superintendent of Prisons, to succeed William A. Orr, resigned; Michael J. Walsh, Yonkers, to be a member of the State Tax Commission, to succeed Ralph W. Thomas, and Henry S. Renaud of New York, to be State Superintendent of elections, to succeed Frederick Marshall.

The committee did not take a vote on Miss Perkins's nomination.

JOHN A. SQUIERS MARRIES.

Son of Late ex-Minister to Cuba Weds Mrs. Ethel Marks Gil.

John A. Squiers, son of the late Herbert G. Squiers, former Minister to Cuba and to Panama, and Mrs. Ethel Marks Gill, a daughter of the late Arthur Marks of Boston, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Frank H. Potter, 150 East Seventy-second Street, by the Rev. Percy S. Grant. There were no attendants and none except the members of the families were present.

The bridegroom's mother has had charge of a war hospital in France for several years. His father entered the American diplomatic service in 1895, when he was made Second Secretary of the American Legation in Berlin. He was appointed Minister to Cuba and to Panama by President Roosevelt, and was the First Secretary of the American Legation at Peking during the Boxer uprising. His death occurred in October, 1911, in London. The family have a residence at Beaulieu, in Hampshire, England.

Mrs. William Astor Drayton, whose husband is in the Serbian Army, is the bridegroom's sister, also Mrs. Harold Whitman, wife of Major Whitman. Another sister married Admiral H. H. Rousseau.

Kahn-Lowy Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kahn of 600 West 113th Street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Blanche Kahn, to Walter Lowy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Lowy of this city. Miss Kahn has been attached to the Broad Street canteen and it was here that she first met Mr. Lowy, who is a warrant officer in the pay corps of the Navy.

Moore Art Sale Reaches $43,716.

A K'ang-hsi jardiniere with oriental cover, and decoration of rockery, flowers and flying birds, went to Lorenz, agent, for $350. O. Fukushima paid $250 for a gilt bronze incense burner, Ming; O. F. Robbins paid $280 for a bronze wine pot, Han period, with gold and silver inlay and archaic dragon design in low relief; a bronze bowl, Hsuan Te, and cover with green jadeite button, went to Bernet, agent, for $260, and a pair of exceedingly rare bronze offering stands with original covers, unique as a pair, went to K. Oshima for $420.

Old Chinese cloisonne enamels and old porcelains and potteries of different periods will be sold today.

Lieut. O'Neill, Army Airman, Killed.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Lieutenant O'Neill, an American army aviator, was killed instantly this afternoon near Chatillon-sur-Seine when his machine collapsed at a height of about 700 feet from an unknown cause.

HURLEY DISCUSSES SHIPPING OUTLOOK

Believes Americans Determined to Maintain Merchant Marine of Adequate Size.

SEEKS DEFINITE PLAN

Wants to Know Extent of Construction Program and Government Operation.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Edward N. Hurley, head of the Shipping Board, announced today his intention to return to the United States on the Leviathan when she sails again from France after his examination here into problems connected with the merchant marine.

Mr. Hurley said he felt certain that the American people had determined to have and to maintain a merchant marine sufficient in size to make it certain that they would not be dependent on the shipping of other nations for their foreign trade, and that the demand for such a shipping program was virtually unanimous.

As soon as the armistice was signed, he said, he had recognized that a great many questions would arise in connection with the American shipping program that would require first-hand knowledge of what was planned to be done by the other nations engaged in shipping, and he had come to Europe in this connection.

Mr. Hurley said that now that the war pressure had been relieved, Americans and others interested with them in shipping under American registry were anxious for definite information concerning future plans for a merchant marine so as to settle three main questions, as follows:

What is the character and extent of the Government construction program?

What is the plan for continuing Government operation?

If Government operation is to be discontinued, on what basis will the ships be operated privately and to what extent will Government control be maintained?

Collateral to these questions but also of great importance are those that relate to the future construction program, as to the number and type of ships to be built and whether certain types of ships already constructed shall be authorized for foreign account.

Mr. Hurley also said that within the last sixty days he had obtained much information on the construction programs, operating problems and general plans of the other maritime powers and that the information had particular reference to the questions now under discussion in the United States. He feels that as a result of his investigations he will be able on his return to the United States to present information and data obtained while in England which will bear directly on the questions involved and should be of great assistance in determining the best future policy for the American merchant marine.

Some of the other maritime powers, Mr. Hurley added, through official and unofficial agencies, have felt called upon to intimate the belief that the United States would have many difficulties in constructing and maintaining a suitable and adequate merchant marine, but that his investigations did not lead him to believe that the difficulties confronting the United States were in any sense insuperable; in fact, that he was convinced that a construction and operation program could and would be developed which would give to the United States what her people desired in this connection.

No definite action on the various problems will be taken until the result of his investigations can be presented. Mr. Hurley said that he was fully aware of the urgency of the settlement of all these collateral questions and for that reason he contemplated making an early return to America for the purpose of laying before the Shipping Board as well as the Senate Commerce Committee and the House Committee on Merchant Marine the results of his investigations so that the board might, after considering all the European phases of the situation, make suggestions and recommendations to the President for a general policy.

Referring to his appointment with Samuel Gompers as the American representatives on the International Labor Committee of the Peace Conference, Mr. Hurley said that his discussion in America of the shipping situation would not interfere with his work in connection with the Labor Committee.

Miss Martin to Wed Ensign Secor.

"And provided further, that nothing in this section shall be held to prevent the importation of skilled labor under the condition prescribed in the fourth proviso to the third section of the act of Feb. 5, 1917, entitled 'An act to regulate the immigration of aliens to and the residence of aliens in the United States'; and provided, that nothing in this act shall be held to repeal the provisions of the joint resolution of the Congress of the United States, approved Oct. 19, 1918, authorizing the readmission to the United States of certain aliens who have been conscripted or who have volunteered for service with the military forces of the United States or co-belligerent forces.

"And provided further, that during the period of the prohibition of immigration of aliens, other than the members of the classes hereinbefore exempted who are known to have been residents of those countries, if otherwise admissible, may be temporarily admitted from Canada, Newfoundland, and Mexico, for a period not exceeding six months, under such rules, governing entry, inspection, temporary stay, and departure as may be prescribed by the Commissioner General of Immigration."

To Deport Interned Aliens.

The House Immigration Committee also favorably reported a bill to deport all aliens who were interned, or convicted of crimes against this Government during the war. This bill, Mr. Burnett said, was requested by the Department of Justice and would bring about the deportation of 4,020 persons.

BILL OPPOSED IN EUROPE.

British Labor Leader Objects to America Barring Aliens.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The European workers believe that labor has the right to go and come freely wherever employment is to be found regardless of frontiers, declared George Nicoll Barnes, Labor representative on the British peace delegation, in discussing the proposal to prohibit immigration into the United States for some years after the signing of the peace treaty. European labor, he said, was strongly opposed to such a law, although it was unable to prevent its passage.

The European labor market, Mr. Barnes pointed out, was full, while the field for employment in the United States hardly had been scratched over. Mr. Barnes said he thought a provision should be made, however, for employment of immigrants before they embark for a foreign land.

Mr. Barnes was in conference today with delegates from the British trades unions regarding the draft of a measure for the proposed International Labor Bureau which, when completed, will be submitted to the representatives of British employers. After this has been done the measure will be taken before the Peace Conference. Other drafts, it is expected, will be submitted by other nations. All are to be compared and consolidated into a final project for submission to the conference.

"We are working on the theory," said Mr. Barnes, "that the alleviation of industrial conditions throughout the world is an integral part of the work of the Peace Conference, low conditions of life being a menace to the peace of the world. It is not enough to affirm general principles. There should be an international organization to insure their observance. The difficulties heretofore have been, first, the lack of backing by States and lack of representation of employers and employed. The conventions of the Berne conference are still inoperative in many cases owing to the fact that the States represented there were free to adopt them or not as they thought fit.

"Neither employers nor employed could throw their weight in to give a backing to the scheme in the absence of an international authority to which they could appeal. We hope to overcome these difficulties by making our international organization co-ordinate with the League of Nations and by bringing together employers and employed, as well as States, and giving a status to be workers and employers."

RETAIL FOOD PRICES DROP.

Washington Market Dealer Looks for Further Decline.

A marked reduction in retail food prices is indicated by a comparison of figures for this week and a week ago. This decrease is especially noticeable at the Washington Market. One dealer said yesterday afternoon that he expected to see prices go much lower than at present, and added that business with the dealers had been especially good Friday and Saturday, following the marking down of the prices, and that so far this week the business had increased in volume over the same days last week, due, he thought, to lower prices.

	This Week. Pound.	Last Week. Pound.
Chicken	32c	48c
Geese	40c	55c
Turkey	49c	55c
Butter	63c	78c
Pork	28c	40c
Bacon	34c	55c
Hams	34c	45c
Sirloin steak	38c	42c
Round steak	40c	45c
Eggs, fresh	65c doz.	80c doz.

Food prices have materially decreased in virtually all the markets of the city, but the prevailing opinion is that the consumer has not yet reaped the full benefit of the lower wholesale prices.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—The decline in the prices of dairy products which was renewed here today is attributed by many dealers to refusal of householders to pay the high prices which did not begin to break until a fortnight ago.

In the last five days cheese at wholesale has declined 8 cents; butter 6 cents and eggs 8 cents. A Federal Grand Jury is expected to report Saturday on retailers who are alleged not to have passed the saving on to the ultimate consumer.

C. H. DODGE GIVES $400,000.

Contribution for Near East Relief Announced at Luncheon.

A contribution of $400,000 to the campaign fund for the starving Armenians and Syrians, the gift of Cleveland H. Dodge, was announced at a luncheon yesterday at the Bankers' Club, by the New York City Committee of the American Committee for Relief in the Near East. In addition to this, contributions of $11,160.85, were announced, the collections of various teams. The committee has asked the workers to accept all Liberty Bonds possible at par, adopting as a slogan, "Would you keep a bond or a child?" It was announced that this is not violating any regulations of the Treasury Department.

Apart from the sum raised by the City Committee, the American Committee announced contributions amounting to $199,112.15, received during the week ending yesterday.

Bulk of Polk Estate Goes to Son.

The estate of Dr. William M. Polk, father of Frank L. Polk, Acting Secretary of State, who died on June 23 last, was appraised yesterday at $875,121, of which the son received $716,557. Dr. Polk, who was a member of the Faculty of the Cornell Medical College, gave $5,000 to the institution, and left only $3,000 to his wife, Mrs. Marie H. B. Polk, who is wealthy in her own right. The bulk of the estate consisted of $788,256 in stocks and bonds.

The waiting attitude of traders in stocks was emphasized yesterday by the small turnover, and while prices displayed a firm tone as a whole, with some strong spots, the upward tendency was by no means emphatic. The Street had much to ponder over in connection with the decline of ocean freight rates and the pending action of the Steel Corporation on its quarterly common stock dividend. The Directors did not meet until after the market closed and, as the case has always been in the past, advance information on the dividend was lacking and guesses were of wide variety. The steel stocks were moderately firm and news of the halving of the extra dividend was received with no great surprise late in the afternoon, although net earnings were less than had been looked for. The total net income of $86,000,000, before providing for taxes, was about $57,000,000 less than in the corresponding item in the third quarter of 1918, and it is likely that the sharp decline reflected readjustments which are usually completed toward the end of a year and may have had particular reference to the revaluing of inventories after the cancellation of war contracts got under way. The surplus of something over $2,000,000 emphasized the reduction of net income, showing, as it did, that the corporation could not have declared as large an extra disbursement as in the preceding quarter without drawing upon its accumulated surplus. If the corporation's statement may be looked upon as a forecast of what other companies are to report, some sharp revision of preliminary estimates on earnings will have to be made. It will be interesting to discover when complete steel company reports are issued how inventories of high priced materials were handled after war manufacturing began to decline.

The large advance which occurred in cotton prices was connected with news that export freight rates on European shipments had been reduced, and indicated possible developments to come in respect to other commodities affected by high transportation costs. Probably a great deal of short covering assisted the advance, and speculative operations for the rise may have had their part, still the change of sentiment in the cotton market in regard to export possibilities was one of the noteworthy events of the day. The cotton situation contains enough uncertain factors to make welcome any positive development of favorable import. Labor unrest in England is being closely studied by the cotton market, and until it is cleared up no one may predict with any degree of assurance whether or not the consumption of cotton and other raw materials from this side will tend to increase rapidly. The extent of the freight rate reductions and their specific application to outgoing goods has not yet been clearly defined to the satisfaction of either shippers or buyers, and for this reason it is difficult as yet to ascertain the effect of the changes on the earnings of steamship companies. An equalizing factor is the elimination of high war insurance and the probable reduction of general insurance rates as available shipping space for commercial cargoes increases.

Call money rates fluctuated between 5 and 4 per cent., with the tendency downward as the day progressed. Foreign exchange market continued quiet, with unimportant changes of rates.

AMERICAN BRASS PROFITS.

The 1918 report of the American Brass Company shows that in the year ended with December net profits amounting to $3,992,219 were earned. This was equivalent to $26.61 a share earned on the $15,000,000 capital stock, which compares with $47.39 earned on the same stock in 1917. The surplus after the payment of dividends in 1918 was $992,219, which compared with a surplus of $434,177 in the preceding year.

In 1918 the company paid $3,000,000 in dividends, while the disbursements in 1917 were $6,675,000. In 1916 the company reported net profits amounting to $10,901,689 and paid dividends of $3,750,000. The company's balance sheet of December, 1918, gives cash at $2,081,740, compared with $1,750,165 in 1917.

Seeks Brunswick Company Proxies.

Hunter Wykes, a lawyer of 43 Liberty Street, has sent a circular letter to stockholders in the Brunswick Terminal and Railways Securities Company asking for proxies which he may use at the annual meeting Feb. 11, to elect new Directors to develop the company. The letter reads: "With the present prospect of a much greater rate of development than has heretofore been known in Brunswick, I believe that the recognition of this principle is essential. The plants should be reconstructed and enlarged, a system of unification introduced, rates must be revised and new franchises obtained. I am also of the opinion that the project can be financed, when necessary, in such a manner that the stock of our company will appreciate largely in value."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Cuba Cane Financing.

It is expected that an offering of Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation bonds will follow shortly after the stockholders ratify the proposed $25,000,000 mortgage. Preliminary steps for the formation of a syndicate have been taken. The primary purpose for the raising of new funds by funding part of the corporation's property is to pay off bank loans.

Steel Production Increases.

Not only has the curtailment of steel production in the Youngstown section been halted, but recent reports show that operations are increasing until now the mills are working at about 80 per cent. of capacity. Not long ago they were running at 50 per cent. of capacity. No reason for the change from a policy of curtailment to one of increased production has thus far been forthcoming. There has been no report of any extensive buying either in this country or for foreign account. It may be that orders have been quietly accumulating which warranted a resumption of expanded production. The steel mills in Youngstown, it is said, are employing practically the same number of men as in 1918.

General Asphalt Advances.

General Asphalt, which has attracted a speculative following recently, had another sharp rise on the Curb market yesterday, the stock breaking through 70 and advancing some seven points on the day's dealings. It was not long ago that General Asphalt was resting serenely on the Philadelphia market and the decided increase in price did not make itself manifest until the issue was taken up as a speculative medium by the Curb brokers. The advance has been accompanied by reports of a development of the company's oil properties in conjunction with the Royal Dutch concern.

Shippers Welcome Rates.

The announcement from Washington that the Shipping Board had met the most recent cut in ocean freight rates announced by the British Ministry of Shipping, found favor in shipping circles yesterday, although there were those who conservatively drew attention to the fact that the American manufacturer is not entirely independent of foreign bottoms despite the cut. These men were inclined to question the supply of American bottoms for all ports, but the majority opinion was not so meticulous and the big decrease came opportunely. Exporting and importing organizations have been urging the authorities in Washington to take definite steps for their protection and the protection of the foreign trade of the United States, and the big cut in rates appears to have answered the question to the satisfaction of most of the local shipping men.

B. & O. Obligations.

The extension of the Baltimore & Ohio notes and bank loans which fall due on Feb. 1 for a period of three months is understood to have been effected by the company's bankers through an arrangement with the War Finance Corporation, which will take up the notes that holders do not care to extend further than the first of next month. In well-informed quarters it was said yesterday that the amount of notes the corporation will be asked to take up will be comparatively light as the majority of the holders have agreed to extend them again. The amount of the obligations in question is $22,500,000 approximately. It is expected that the present extension will carry the notes sufficiently beyond the forthcoming Liberty Loan to allow for some substantial long term financing by the company.

A Change of Heart.

Just before the close of yesterday's stock market there was a decided change in sentiment for the better and many of the issues in the general list which had not attracted particular attention in the earlier trading advanced. Buying orders were numerous and among the issues for which a sudden and unexpected demand developed were Hide and Leather, Consolidated Gas, and St. Paul preferred.

The Virginia Debt.

Like that ancient King of France who marched his men up the hill and then marched them down again, the Brown Brothers, Virginia Debt Certificates, which marched down the hill from 70 to 64 on Monday, marched up again yesterday from 64 to 70. Dealings yesterday were not heavy, the turnover being considerably less than on the preceding day, and there was no news to account either for the decline or the recovery. Last night, if the schedule was lived up to, the Governor of West Virginia met a legislative committee to discuss the matter of payment of the old debt which, according to the United States Supreme Court, is a legitimate debt, and, according to intimations by the same tribunal, should be settled by Feb. 1.

Patriotism and Bonds.

According to a hard-headed banker in Wall Street, the idealists who think patriotism should float the next Liberty Victory Loan are all wrong; just as the alleged practical men who talk about its being a business proposition are wrong. This banker thinks it is a mixture of business and patriotism; that it must be both. A $6,000,000,000 proposition is entirely too big, he says, to be "put across" on any other basis.

ASK HIGHER GAS RATE AGAIN

Brooklyn Borough Co. Now Wants to Charge $1.30.

The Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, which recently asked permission to increase the price of gas from $1.10 to $1.25 and was refused, filed another application yesterday with the Public Service Commission asking permission to make the price $1.30. About ten days ago the company asked Supreme Court Justice Cropsey in Brooklyn to set aside the price of $1.10 fixed by the commission. The court doubted its ability to fix any price above the statutory rate of 80 cents. The matter is still pending.

In its present application the company submitted a table of its alleged losses under the $1.10 rate as well as under the previous rate of 95 cents. In the last three months of 1918, it says, its loss was $9,782.72. It also said it was unable to sell stock or borrow money to complete improvements demanded by the Public Service Commission.

"Complainant has outstanding $1,000,000 of bonds, bearing interest at 5 per cent., payable quarterly," says the application. "An installment of interest amounting to $12,500 became due on Dec. 1, 1918, and has not yet been paid. Default in interest was due to an inadequate rate to consumers."

$100 W. S. S. to be Put on Sale.

War Savings Stamps in $100 denominations are to be issued shortly and will be available to the public on the same relative terms as the $5 stamps, according to Vernon Munroe, Assistant Director of Government Savings. The new stamps, which are already on the press, will cost $86.20 if bought during February, the price increasing 20 cents with each month until the end of the year. They will be about the size of the $100 bonds of the Fourth Liberty loan. The ruling that no person can hold more than $1,000 of War Savings Stamps of any single issue is still in force.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Henry L. Doherty & Co. and Montgomery & Co. announce that the entire issue of Cities Service Company, series C, 7 per cent. convertible debentures, amounting to $17,300,000, has been sold.

A. E. Ames & Co., the Dominion Securities Corporation, and Wood, Gundy & Co. are offering an issue of £1,081,200 Dominion of Canada guaranteed 4 per cent. sterling coupon bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, due Jan. 1, 1962, at 75.37 and interest to yield about 5¼ per cent.

Edgar K. Sheppard, formerly of Gilbert, Elliott & Co., has become associated with Kirk & Ball as manager of the sugar stock department.

D. A. Shaw, President of the Grant Motor Company, has announced the net earnings of the company to be in excess of $450,000 after the payment of preferred dividends, which is equivalent to more than 20 per cent. on the common stock.

Why Pay More?

For $25 you can secure in combination John Moody's famous annual publications on Steam Railroad and on Public Utility and Industrial investments. These books are not merely "manuals," but also contain RATINGS of all the security issues.

Why pay far more than this for other statistical publications which do not contain the same uniform and complete exhibits, and which do not contain any ratings whatever?

Our publications are the only financial volumes with which John Moody has had any connection for the past decade. Unless you buy "Moody's Rating Books" you do not get the work of John Moody.

EXTRA DIVIDEND CUT BY STEEL DIRECTORS

MARKET EXPECTED ACTION

Earnings for 1918 Were $198,834,569, a Reduction of $124,790,517 from the Record in 1916.

The Directors of the United States Steel Corporation yesterday made a cut of 1 per cent. in the extra dividend. They declared a regular dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the common stock and 1 per cent. extra for the quarter ended Dec. 31, whereas in the preceding quarter the extra dividend had been 2 per cent., and for some time previous to that 3 per cent. The regular dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred. The action of the Directors did not come as a complete surprise, the market having anticipated a cut in dividend in view of the curtailment in steelmaking during the last quarter of 1918, especially after the signing of the armistice, when Government contracts were canceled.

Although the cut had been rumored, there was not any too great confidence that it would actually be made in view of the action of the Bethlehem Directors a few days ago in maintaining the rate of payment on the common stock of that company. The trading element was inclined to be cautious, and there was some strength displayed by Steel common, the stock actually scoring an advance on the day's trading, due apparently to a desire of the shorts to cover commitments.

Net earnings for the last quarter of 1918 showed a sharp drop by comparison with the preceding quarters of the year, the total for the fourth quarter being $36,354,165, as compared with $42,761,589 in the preceding quarter. The difference in total earnings was, however, even greater than this indicates, as the allowance for excess profits taxes in the September quarter was $101,987,347, as compared with a tax allowance of $50,000,000 in the December quarter. Certain readjustments in the expense account, it is believed, were made during the last quarter to apply throughout the entire year.

On the announcement of earnings for the four quarters of the year, the earnings for 1918, after allowing for war taxes, are indicated to have been $198,834,569, a reduction of $96,457,611 from the earnings of 1917, and of $124,790,517 from the record earnings of 1916. The earnings for the year just past are equivalent to about $22 a share on the common stock of the corporation. This compares with 46 per cent. in 1917 and 48 per cent. in 1916, and practically 10 per cent. in 1915. The allowances for war taxes during 1918 were heavier than ever before, the total set aside for Government obligations being $274,288,795, or more by about $75,000,000 than the net earnings of the corporation for the year. The following table shows a comparison of the earnings of the last three years:

Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the Steel Corporation, refused to make any comment on the quarterly report of the company. The earnings for October, November, and December show a steadily declining tendency, the earnings of the first named month being $13,659,932 and for December $10,834,882. The total for the quarter, $36,354,165, is the lowest that the Steel Corporation has reported at any time during the last three years. In the June quarter of 1915 the earnings were $27,950,055, but after that the quarters all showed better earnings than the one just closed. The peak of earnings came in the fourth quarter of 1916, when $105,917,438 was reported. A total of $40,887,193 was added to surplus during the last year.

SEA RATE CUT LIFTS COTTON

After a firm opening, followed by some irregularity in which prices were forced down close to the levels of the previous night, yesterday's cotton market advanced rapidly and consistently until the average for near months stood at practically 200 points gain. The more distant months were up 135 and 180 points on the day. An encouraging feature for the bulls was the fact that the strength, once well developed, was maintained right up to the close of the session.

The new ocean rates were the predominating influence of the day. At first it was feared that the announced cut did not apply to cotton, and mainly for that reason the early trading was so irregular. The attack on the New York Exchange by Representative Heflin was generally ignored.

After the market was several hours old, the news dispatches from Washington stated that Senator Pollock of South Carolina had announced that cotton freight rates from Atlantic ports had been reduced from $22.50 per bale to $6.50, while rates from Gulf ports had been cut from $23.50 to $7.50. This, said Senator Pollock, should make cotton worth at least three cents a pound more than it was before the cut. Local interests, judging from the way they bought the staple, apparently agreed with the Senator.

The market, beyond doubt, was ripe for just such a movement as that of yesterday. The short interest has been growing steadily for some time until it is believed now to be of enormous proportions. The speculative account is practically nil. In short, the market appears sold out, and yesterday's movement undoubtedly saw many old short lines covered. Wiseacres around the ring believe that many more will be covered precipitately if the advance continues.

RESERVE BANK GAIN FOR 1918 WAS 109%

Net Earnings Increased to $22,634,033, an Advance of 607 Per Cent. Over 1917.

GREAT GROWTH IN DISCOUNT

Government's Share $12,795,214—Fewer Acceptances Purchased—Surplus Up to Limit.

The earnings of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, for the fiscal and calendar year 1918, amounted to $25,314,735 gross and $22,634,033 net, compared with $4,862,756 and $3,729,609 for 1917. The Government's share of the bank's earnings, the so-called franchise tax, is $12,795,214, whereas in the previous year it was $649,363. The increase in gross earnings, figured on a percentage basis, is 520, and the percentage of increase in net earnings is 607. The bank earned net equal to 109 per cent. of its paid-in capital.

In the statement of comparative condition the bank shows a tremendous expansion in the volume of bills discounted for members. In 1917 the total for this class of business was $225,117,913, while in 1918 it was $697,341,455. Acceptances purchased, on the other hand, fell off from $148,770,185 to $77,576,632. Rediscounts for other Federal Reserve Banks, which totaled $23,191,033 at the close of 1917, were nil at the conclusion of last year.

In the statement of resources and liabilities the three principal divisions of the former compare as follows: Loans and discounts $424,251,433 at the close of 1917, against $905,216,288 at the close of 1918; reserve cash, $649,944,655 for 1917, and $672,523,785 for 1918; other resources, $184,728,564 for 1917, $294,061,002 for 1918. The liabilities show capital of $20,820,100 and surplus of $8,322,040 for 1918, compared with capital of $18,695,950 and surplus of $649,363 for 1917. Gross deposits at the end of 1918 totaled $975,219,452, compared with $731,458,687 the previous year. Note liability was $852,800,835 last year and $456,338,565 the year before. The total of resources and liabilities was $1,871,806,076 last year and $1,208,924,653, the preceding year.

The profit and loss account statement, in detailed form, follows:

PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT.

	1918.	Increase Over 1917.
Gross earnings	$25,314,735	$20,451,880
Operating expenses	2,680,702	1,547,456
Net earnings	22,634,033	18,904,424
Dividends paid	*1,195,026	†747,792
Cred. to profit and loss	20,467,891	19,169,164
To surplus	7,672,676	7,023,313
Res. for franchise tax	12,795,214	12,145,851

At the close of 1918, the Director of the bank increased the surplus account from $649,363 to $8,322,040, thus giving the bank the full 40 per cent. surplus allowed under the law. At the present time there is a proposal pending which, if it becomes law, will allow the several Federal Reserve Banks to accumulate 100 per cent. surplus. In the last year, the Government's share, $12,795,214, the amount of the franchise tax, came after virtually the whole surplus was written out of earnings.

The increase in operating expenses, which, for operation of the bank, exclusive of the cost of the bank's currency, was from $780,481 in 1917 to $2,317,738 in 1918, was due largely to the considerable increase in the number of employes, which expanded from about 1,000 to more than 2,000.

Withhold Sugar Proxies.

Some of the preferred stockholders of the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation, among them Henry Evans, President of the Continental Fire Insurance Company, have refused to give their proxies in support of a plan to provide new financing for the sugar company without first being informed as to certain details of the management of the corporation. In a letter written to the Cuba Cane Company Mr. Evans asks what sinking fund provisions are to be stipulated in the proposed issue of bonds, what terms are to be given the underwriting syndicate, and whether the stockholders will have a pro rata share of the underwriting.

PACKERS ATTACK CONTROL PROPOSAL

"Would Just Muddle Things Up," E. S. Morris Tells Committee.

PRESENT LAWS ADEQUATE

Louis F. Swift Answers Questions About Profits at Hearing by Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Presidents of two big packing companies today advised Senate and House committees against enactment of any additional legislation to regulate the meat packing industry. Louis F. Swift, of Swift & Co., told the Senate Agriculture Committee present laws were adequate to deal with any abuses charged, and Edward S. Morris, of Morris & Co., testified before the House Interstate Commerce Committee that any further legislation "would just muddle things up."

Inasmuch as every person had his own idea of what was reasonable, Mr. Swift said, a packer could not tell whether his profits were legal until he had been ordered to refrain by the Secretary of Agriculture or convicted by a jury.

J. Ogden Armour, president of Armour & Co., said yesterday that he expected to consult representatives of all other packers concerning measures to be offered as substitutes for legislation now pending before Congress. Mr. Swift, when asked today by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, if he expected to assist with such legislation, said he felt much of the so-called "feeling against the packers" was exaggerated, and that legislation would not affect the situation.

Mr. Swift opposed provisions of the Kendrick bill to regulate the meat industry, on the ground that they would make anti-trust laws applicable to a single individual and put regulation wholly in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture without limitation or direction.

"No man would invest," he added, "where success or failure depended on the whim of a political appointee, ignorant of the packing business. Every person who refrained from buying until prices were lower would be open to the charge that his action was for the purpose of decreasing or enhancing prices and would be subject to prosecution."

Members of the committee questioned figures presented by Mr. Swift showing profits.

"When you say your profit is two cents on the dollar, you intend to convince the average man your earnings are a mere trifle," said Senator Gore of Oklahoma. "We want to know what you made on your capital stock."

Mr. Swift said he made fifteen per cent.

"Surplus ought to be eliminated, too, to get at a just percentage," said Senator Norris of Nebraska. "If this was accumulated as an excess over dividends paid, it has been paid by people who eat meat. No water or stock dividends should be included."

"If Mr. Hoover is soothing his soul that he reduced your profits $10,000,000 by his regulations, he's shooting wide of the mark, isn't he?" asked Senator Gore.

"Well, our profits were $13,000,000 less last year than in 1917," the witness said.

"But you would have made less without the Food Administration regulations?"

"They had a bearing," said Mr. Swift. He added that labor cost was $15,000,000 more.

"Then that accounts for more than the entire reduction that has been attributed to the Food Administration?" interjected Mr. Heney.

Affidavits were presented to show that Swift & Co.'s advertising expenditures were $1,700,000 in 1918, and not $1,000,000 a month, as has been stated.

Some limitation of capitalization of packing companies was suggested by Senator Gronna of North Dakota after Francis J. Heney had cross-examined Mr. Swift concerning a series of increases of his company's capital stock.

Mr. Heney said that by separating the Swift concern into three organizations recently the market value of the original stock had been increased more than $100,000,000. Mr. Swift denied this and agreed to inform the committee as to the transactions dealing with the separation of the one company into Swift & Co., Swift International, and Libby, McNeil & Libby.

Mr. Morris, in completing his testimony before the House Committee said the packers should not be interfered with as long as they operated at the present degree of efficiency and justly treated both the producer and the consumer. Legislation would be particularly harmful at the present time, he said, because the packers were making every effort to get back to a pre-war basis.

Asked by Representative Rayburn of Texas if he did not believe it would be advisable for the Government to at least fix the price of meat, Mr. Morris said such an attempt undoubtedly would result disastrously, because there were many factors entering into the determination of meat prices over which the Government would have no control.

"The Food Administration has been successful in fixing the price of meat sold to the Allies," he said, "but that was because the Allies had to take our meat or go without. As soon as the world market becomes normal again prices will be fixed as before by the law of supply and demand."

Asked by Representative Snook of Ohio if he did not believe legislation would tend to relieve the distrust which "the public has for the packers," Mr. Morris declared he believed this distrust was exaggerated. Many more people trust the packers than view them with suspicion, he said, but keep still while "those with grudges holler."

Representatives of Cudahy & Co. followed Mr. Morris on the stand. J. A. McCaughton, traffic manager, submitted figures to show that refrigerator cars were operated much more efficiently by the packers than by the railroads. He said it would be all right for the Government to supply cars to the independent packers, but asserted that the big packers should be allowed to retain those they have now.

Thomas Creigh, attorney for Cudahy & Co., told the committee it would be "an utterly unpractical, un-American procedure for the Government to snuff out a business without a clear, judicial, unbiased investigation of the facts." He said such an investigation had not been conducted by the Federal Trade Commission, and that the commission's report was "filled with erroneous and distorted statements to which no credence should be given."

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,321 packages. Another decline of 1@2c, with dull trading and accumulating stocks. EGGS.—5,038 cases. There is at least a temporary shortage in the supply of fresh gathered eggs under continued very light receipts, and the offerings of previous accumulations are hardly sufficient to supply the urgent requirements of the trade. Prices show a further advance of about 1c per dozen, and the market is momentarily firm. Advices from the interior indicate increasing collections, and the market would be sensitive to any enlargement of supply. Storage eggs in very small supply and working out at steady but very irregular prices. Nearby white eggs are scarce, and although there are considerable offerings of California stock the market for fancy qualities is firm and slightly in sellers' favor. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 63c; extra firsts, 61@62c; firsts, 60@60½c; seconds and poorer, 56@59c; dirties, No. 1, 55@56c; No. 2 and poorer, 50@54c; checks, good to choice, dry, 48@50c; undergrades, 43@47c; refrigerator, 32@51c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 70@71c; ordinary to prime, 64@69c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 64@69c; pullet whites, 64@65c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 69@70c; lower grades, 64@67c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 62@67c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 61@66c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 60@65c.

PUBLIC SERVICE FINANCING.

President McCarter Announces Corporation's Plans in Newark.

President Thomas N. McCarter of the Public Service Corporation announced in Newark, N. J., yesterday financing plans which the Directors have completed to meet its collateral notes, amounting to $7,500,000 at par, maturing on March 1 next; to pay off all the other unfunded and floating indebtedness of the corporation and to provide it with sufficient funds for its capital requirements for the current year, in all $22,500,000.

Mr. McCarter said the Directors yesterday had authorized an issue of 8 per cent. cumulative preferred stock to the amount of $50,000,000 at par, and that it is provided that the corporation may, upon notice, redeem so much of this authorized issue of preferred stock as may from time to time be issued and outstanding at 100 per cent. of its par value.

"This will serve to protect the corporation against the permanent existence of an 8 per cent. preferred stock should financial conditions return to a normal basis," he said.

He also told other financing plans of the company, including an offer to the existing shareholders of $12,500,000 gold collateral three-year 7 per cent. notes of the corporation, to be secured by $14,000,000 at par of the general mortgage bonds of the corporation and $5,000,000 at par of the stock of the Public Service Electric Company. These notes are to be offered to the shareholders at 98½ per cent. of their par value, and may be converted into the 8 per cent. preferred stock of the corporation, at the option of the holders thereof, any time prior to Dec. 1, 1921.

Introducing Greater New York

It prepared the way for the system of tunnels and bridges that now daily carries millions of producers between the boroughs.

It advanced toward realization the vast city's possibilities of leadership in world industry and commerce.

Intelligent, sound banking service played its part in the progress that followed.

The Brooklyn Trust Company's deposits in 1883 were $4,351,079. December 31, 1918, they amounted to $30,996,080.

Meeker's Market Letter

A symposium of interesting facts about a great Public Utility and Oil Corporation. Truth glimpses that point to Cities Service common stock as the issue of the hour and the year.

Foreword

It would be fatuous to recommend a stock the future of which was mostly in the past, or which had so little past that the future would be highly problematical. In recommending Cities Service Company Common stock, therefore, the writer neither offers the investor a moribund proposition nor yet a fledgling ambitious to try its untrained wings on the investment public. Cities Service has a record of just enough fine achievement to point the way to much bigger and better things to come.

What is Cities Service? A Definition

Cities Service Company, now one of the great corporations of the country, was the production in its inception of the genius of Henry L. Doherty as an engineer, an organizer and a financier. He brought it into being and still steers its course, but more thousands of men of brains, industry and energy keep it functioning and rendering essential service to millions of people. As organized in 1910 it was purely a Public Utility Company. That is, it supplied to municipalities those necessities of modern life, Electric Light and Power, Street Cars, Artificial and Natural Gas for light and fuel, all commonly called the public utilities, all vitally associated with our business and domestic life. As purely a Public Utility Company, Cities Service was a success. Mr. Doherty, a man of the people, was one of the first to break away from the old Public be d— idea of corporations. "Please the Patron" is his slogan. The wash woman must receive attention and get fair treatment when she complains of her gas bill. The troubles of the customer become also the troubles of the company. Hostility was changed to friendship. Under this benignant rule Cities Service grew, until it operated over 100 properties in 200 communities in the U. S. and Canada. Mr. Doherty confirmed his reputation as the greatest Public Utility operator of the day.

Enter King Oil

In some parts of the country Natural Gas is one of the prime utilities. It solves the fuel problem; is clean, safe and cheap both for heating and cooking, and is often used as an illuminant. Cities Service Company, to control its source of supply, leased thousands of acres of natural gas lands in several states. One day when drilling a well for Gas out in Kansas they struck Oil instead. That put them in the Oil business. They have since had similar experiences in Oklahoma, Texas, Ohio and Kentucky. Spurn not the gifts the gods give you. Had Doherty and Cities Service waited supinely and considered it a good joke that Oil came where they looked for Gas, this letter would never have been written. But they didn't. They employed a staff of geologists and the most competent oil men they could find and uncovered a pool of Oil in the Butler County, Kansas, field for which they have since been offered $150,000,000. Nature having launched them in the oil business they pressed their advantage, and there is not now a State or a nearby country where Cities Service has not been a pioneer in locating and developing oil territory and piling up leases. The riches the future may bring forth can scarcely be computed, but wherever Oil is, there also is Cities Service. Where there are prospects there are also found the avant couriers of Cities Service.

Production and Diversification

Subsidiaries of Cities Service in 1918 produced over 15,000,000 barrels of oil, a daily average of over 41,000 barrels. The bulk of this oil came from the Kansas fields, but subsidiaries also produce in half a dozen other States. A part of this product is sold to pipe lines to carry to other refineries. A considerable part is refined at its own plants located in Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. The product thus refined by the Company is distributed through over 100 retail stations in the Middle West and 46 retail stations in the Atlantic States, as well as through the customary wholesale agencies. The refineries can handle 33,000 barrels of oil per day. The Western refineries are connected with the oil fields by over 900 miles of pipe lines constructed by the company, with a total storage capacity of over 6,000,000 barrels. There are also owned 2,500 tank cars and a tank steamer fleet.

Some Things You Can Depend On Cities Service For

Millions of people look to the Company for electric light, electric power and heat, gas light, gas heat or fuel, crude oil, refined petroleum, lubricant oils and greases, gasoline, naphtha, paraffin wax and dividends. In some of the southern cities refrigeration and the manufacture of ice is also a complement of the business. We venture the assertions that no other great corporation embraces so many useful functions, does them so well, or can show such diversity of operations and location of properties.

Capitalization and Dividends

Cities Service Company has outstanding capitalization of $67,906,782 6% Preferred, and $28,488,848 Common stock with $80,000,000 fifty year 7% Convertible Gold Debentures. The Common stock will pay this year, in addition to the regular cash dividends 12% extra in stock dividends, and it is the intention to increase these stock dividends each year as long as the increasing earnings warrant. Thus the owner of 100 shares during the year 1919 would receive $600 per year in cash and 12 shares of stock, equal in money at this writing to $3,500. Owing to stock depression at this time, the common stock is quoted at a little below $300 per share, but during a part of 1916 it stood at $350 per share, at which price the extra stock dividend is worth $4,200. One hundred shares of Cities Service Common held for a term of five years will double itself if you keep the stock dividends; you will have 200 shares instead of 100, and besides that you will have drawn cash dividends in the 5 years, amounting to $3,970.07.

Why Cities Service Issues Should Be Bought Now

This Company has just begun to scratch the surface of its usefulness and prosperity. Big and profitable as its operations have been, they are only an index to the future. In our opinion, no other reputable stock holds such possibilities of profits and usefulness. In the last three years it has been high at 360 and low at 178. With the return of better conditions in the stock market, which may come at any time, the conclusion is irresistible. We believe the common stock based on property holdings and earning powers to be now worth more than $1,000 per share intrinsically.

We recommend the 6% Cumulative Preferred now selling around 80 (has been up to 94) as a fine dividend paying investment with incidentally higher prices to be expected. We recommend Cities Service Common stock as the best speculative opportunity in the country with incidental income yield attractions. Read these figures of earnings: For the year 1918 the outstanding common stock earned $61.67 a share rising gradually from $8.23 a share in 1911 and the increase still continues. The preferred stock requirements in 1918 were earned 5.32 times. These earnings are computed after due writing off of necessary war taxes and despite the fact that the operation of Public Utilities has been more expensive because of higher price of fuel, labor, etc. The time to buy is when stocks are cheap. They are cheap now comparatively cheaper than for years. Cities Service stocks especially are cheap. There are hundreds of other facts about Cities Service. Very interesting facts we would like to give you. Let us tell you about Cities Service common or preferred. If you decide to buy we shall be glad to fill your order.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed steady and moderately active. Selling in the final hour cut previous gains down to a minimum, and final prices in a majority of the issues showed but fractional changes, mostly advances. In tone the market was narrow throughout the session, and trading activity was centred in a small group of industrials. Railroad shares were comparatively quiet, but closed firm.

SPIRITED BIDDING FOR FURS.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 28.—The total sales at the international fur auction has passed the $8,800,000 mark. This evening 25,000 beaver skins were auctioned off.

There was unusual bidding for the 160,000 nutria offered this morning, although the collection was not a choice one. Prices advanced about 15 per cent. over last October. The top price of $4.65 was paid of an unusual lot of large dark pelts, bought by a New York dealer, but the price of the bulk of the selling was between 75 cents and $1.25. The collection brought $198,624.

Wednesday is the closing day of the auction, over 1,000,000 muskrat and 250,000 from the supplementary catalogue, including silver fox, white fox, and squirrels, will be sold.

Slow on Handkerchief Buying.

There is still a tendency on the part of buyers to hold off to a certain extent in placing orders for handkerchiefs. During the last week there has been another reduction on some of the cotton lines amounting to 10 per cent. All told this makes a total of 35 per cent. There has not been a reduction in the price of linen handkerchiefs, in fact, it is said that the price is more likely to advance owing to the shortage of material. In view of the attitude taken by buyers, very little stock is being made up. Later when these goods are in demand there will be a scramble for merchandise, and undoubtedly some of the retailers will find themselves short.

PROPOSALS.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.—Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, February 18, 1919, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for the improvement of the state canals as authorized by Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903 and amendatory laws, and chapter 301 of the Laws of 1909; and for the construction of barge canal terminals pursuant to the provisions of chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911, as follows:

Terminal Contract No. 57.
Contract plans, sheets 1 to 10 inclusive.
Terminal Contract No. 69.
For protecting the shore of Erie Basin between Lake Street and Slip No. 1, at Buffalo.
Contract plans, sheets 1 and 2.
Terminal Contract No. 107.
For installing electric wiring, lighting, power and battery charging equipment for the canal terminal at Erie Basin, Buffalo.
Contract plans, sheets 1 to 10 inclusive.
Terminal Contract No. 223.
For constructing a barge canal terminal freight shed at Greenpoint, Brooklyn, New York City.
Contract plans, sheets 1 to 11 inclusive.
And until 12 o'clock noon of Wednesday, February 19, 1919, for the following pieces of work:
Erie Canal—Sections 9 and 10.
For driving steel sheet piling, placing concrete lining and incidental work between Rochester and Lockport.
Sheets 1 to 5 inclusive.
Erie Canal—Section 9.
For completing the concrete prism lining at Cartersville and constructing a stream entrance near Knapp's bridge.
Sheets 1 to 3 inclusive.
Contract Q.
Cayuga and Seneca Canal—Section 1.
Sheets 1 to 5 inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y., and at the office of the State Engineer and Surveyor.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or New York, issued by a national or state bank (or trust company in the case of terminal contract) in good credit within the state and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The bond required for the faithful performance of each contract shall be in such sum as shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Public Works, which sum shall not be less than twenty per centum (20 per cent.) of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Superintendent of Public Works.

New Bungalow Sets.

Among the articles for use during the Summer months that are selling very readily are bungalow sets. These consist of bedspreads, pillow tops, table covers, laundry bags, and bureau scarfs. In the new lines that are now being shown to the retail trade they are offered in a large variety of cretonnes with filet lace insertions and edgings. They are also made up in poplin, embracing shades of rose, blue, and brown.

To Combine Knit Goods Bodies.

A committee is at work drafting plans for the amalgamation of the four principal knit goods organizations of the country. The combined body is to be called the National Association of Knit Goods. Its headquarters will be in this city and there will be branch offices in Chicago and Cleveland and, perhaps, Philadelphia. The organizations which it is proposed to merge are: the Sweater and Knitted Textile Manufacturers' Association, New York; Cleveland Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland; Sweater Manufacturers' Association of Middle West, Milwaukee; and Sweater and Fancy Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, Pennsylvania District, Philadelphia.

More Smocks Being Used.

Judging from the orders that are being received for smocks, it is evident that these goods are now regarded as being more of a necessity than a novelty. Smocks have become very popular for street wear among misses and children. They are also being used very extensively for house and sport wear. Some very substantial orders were taken in the South and West for these garments. The local trade is said to be equally as good. One manufacturer said that his business in smocks has increased at least 35 per cent. over last year's.

Orders for Handbags.

Despite the fact that ladies' beaded handbags are very popular at present, the call for bags made of lightweight fabrics is quite good. The silk bags that are now being shown, with combinations of beads and celluloid and Dutch silver tops, are having a big run this season. They are offered in black, taupe and brown. Through the West the stocks in the retail stores were very low, and this resulted in the salesmen securing some good size orders. The local trade is a little slow in placing orders, but it is expected that the buying will start within the next two weeks.

Trade in Colored Collars.

The new lines of men's colored collars that are being introduced among retailers are meeting with some success in certain sections of the country. In the South and in the West these goods are selling somewhat better than they are in the local trade. They are offered in brown, pink, blue, and green. Others are shown in striped patterns and are made in both linen and silk.

Retail Dry Goods Men to Meet.

Lew Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, sent out yesterday to 17,000 retail dry goods merchants throughout the country notices of the forthcoming convention which is to be held in this city on Feb. 11, 12, and 13. The place will be the Hotel Pennsylvania. Besides the regular proceedings and discussions, there will be a dinner, a smoker, and an exhibition of office systems, store appliances, and equipment. Dealers in the smaller cities are especially invited to attend and to become members of the association for reasons that are given at some length in the notices of the convention.

From the Buyer's Point of View.

An out-of-town buyer who was in town yesterday purchasing merchandise for the Spring season said that he was only buying enough goods for his immediate needs; and that he was turning his stock over every thirty days in view of the present conditions. In regard to knit goods, he asserted that he had a sufficient stock on hand and would not place any orders for future delivery under the circumstances. If the prices should advance, which he doubted very much, all well and good, but he absolutely refused to buy merchandise at the present prices.

Sale of Army Blankets.

By order of Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company, a peremptory sale of blankets was held in the auction rooms of Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, 470 Broome Street, yesterday morning. The lot consisted of over 15,000 blankets, both perfect and imperfect, in Oxford gray cotton warp, olive drab cotton warp, khaki all wool, and khaki wool. The proceeds of the sale amounted to about $50,000. The average price paid was from $1.75 to $2.12½ for cotton warp blankets, and from $2.50 to $3 for the woolen ones.

Some Activity in Gray Goods.

There was quite a little spurt of activity in the local gray goods market, although no large transactions were reported. Sales that came to notice in printcloths included some 38½-inch 60-48s at 8¼ cents and of 44-40s in the same width at 6¾ cents. Southern mills were reported offering 38½-inch 64-60s at 9½ cents, but this did not seem to appeal to buyers. In sheetings there were sales of 36-inch 5.50-yard goods at 9 cents. A small lot of 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens was disposed of by second hands at 15 cents. There were also reported sales of specialties like voiles, organdies and silk filling goods.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A. T. Ellis, for twenty-two years with E. B. Sudbury & Co., has resigned his position with that firm to become the New York manager of the Allied Knitting Company of London, Eng., importers and exporters of knit goods and hosiery.

Daniel N. Berent, formerly with the Exporters' Dry Goods Exchange, is now connected with the export department of the American Importing Company, 484 Broadway.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

An important deal has been practically closed in the Marine Square section of the downtown business zone in the sale of the eleven-story Seligman building, occupying the block front on the south side of William Street, between South William and Stone Streets. The structure is owned by the bonding and brokerage firm of J. & W. Seligman, who erected it about ten years ago. The buyers are Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, marine underwriters, who occupy space in the building.

The Seligman building covers a plot fronting 93 feet on William Street, 71.11 feet on South William, and 54 feet on Stone Street. It is opposite the Cotton Exchange and the Merchant Marine House, formerly Delmonico's, the neighboring square having become known as Marine Square. The Seligman firm will lease for its own quarters the space at 54 Wall Street, occupied by the Central Trust Company.

Another block front deal on Washington Heights was closed yesterday by Max N. Nathanson, operator, who purchased from the Long Light Corporation the two new apartment buildings at the southwest corner of 172d Street and Fort Washington Avenue, and the southeast corner of 172d Street, and Haven Avenue, known as the Regnis Apartments.

They are five-story new-law walkup houses, arranged in suites of two, three, and four rooms, which show a yearly gross rental of $39,000.

The Fort Washington Avenue corner house covers a plot about 45 by 126, and that on Haven Avenue about 80 by 169. William S. Baker negotiated the sale on a basis of $350,000.

Private Dwelling Sales.

The Guaranty Trust Company, represented by William A. White & Sons, sold to a client of Pease & Elliman, 16 East Ninety-third Street, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 80. It was a cash deal, purchased for occupancy.

Willard Veit sold for the estate of Dr. Henry Savage the dwelling, 151 West 119th Street, on a lot 20 by 100, to a builder, who will remodel for bachelor apartments.

Tenement Deals.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, purchased from Burton Tomkins, 595 West 178th Street, a five-story new-law tenement, on a lot 25 by 100, held at $32,000. Nehring Brothers negotiated the sale.

J. E. Mitchell sold to a client of Byrne & Bowman, 533 West 145th Street, a five-story tenement, on a plot 33.4 by 100. In part payment the buyer gave a plot 50 by 100, on McLean Avenue, Yonkers.

Deal Pending on Maiden Lane.

Negotiations have been pending, it was ascertained, for the purchase of the twelve-story building known as Jewelers' Court, at 51 and 53 Maiden Lane. It is owned by the 51-53 Maiden Lane Company, of which Samuel P. Tull is President. The structure has a frontage of 39.2 feet on Maiden Lane.

The Bronx Market.

Ralph B. Neuroth sold to Frederick Brown, operator, 2,240 to 2,244 Valentine Avenue, two five-story apartments on a plot 102 by 100, held at $123,000. Byrne & Bowman were the brokers.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz sold to an investor the two-story and basement dwelling 1,436 Minford Place, on a lot 25 by 100.

The Central Savings Bank sold to a client of Kurtz & Uren 1,774 and 1,776 Washington Avenue, two five-story apartments, each on a lot 26.2 by 109.

John F. Fetzer sold for the Tully Construction Company to George Zelliox the five-story flat, 38 by 100, at 1,113 Finlay Avenue.

Anna Glass sold to Seekamp & Cordes two five-story flats, 80 by 100, at 818 to 822 East 167th Street, and resold 818 to Anna Heinz. John F. Fetzer was the broker. He also sold the four-family house at 2,016 Stanhope Street, 25 by 100, for George Zelliox to Rose Hanlon.

Queens Borough Sales.

The Theodore M. Le Bean Realty and Construction Company has purchased from P. Hoffman a plot 40 by 143 on the east side of Lefferts Avenue north of Metropolitan Avenue, Richmond Hill.

The Jamaica Manor Corporation purchased from H. Scher a parcel of five lots in Block 3 of the South Jamaica Manor development.

R. Godley sold to M. Mayr a plot 37 by 110 on the south side of Myrtle Avenue west of Linden Avenue, Flushing.

Big Sale at Ridgewood, N. J.

Home Builders Buy 342 New Jersey Lots.

The Meister Builders, Inc., sold to the Stirling Home Builders a plot of forty-two lots on Victor Avenue and De Russy's Lane, New Brunswick, N. J., for development. The Stirling Builders also purchased from the New York State Banking Department a tract of about 500 lots at Manor Park, Westfield, N. J. The new owners plan to start work immediately on developing the property for homes. It is one of the largest properties in New Jersey sold this year for development purposes.

Times Square Lease.

In the Times Square section the five-story building at 143 West Forty-sixth Street has been leased for two years by the Crystal Fur Company from Mrs. Lillian G. Kew, owner of the property. The lease was closed by B. Edward Crosby and John O'Connor.

Commercial Leases.

Goodwin & Goodwin leased for the Madeline Realty Company to Abraham Levenson the one-story garage, 100 feet east of Lenox Avenue, on the north side of 144th Street, 125 by 100, for a term of ten years at an aggregate rental of $100,000.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased the four entire lofts at 288 Broadway, 28 by 175, to the France and New York Medicine Company and José de Jesus, at an aggregate rental of about $50,000. Extensive improvements are being made to the premises by Bernard F. Golden, contractor. Nathan Permut, attorney, represented the tenants.

M. & L. Hess, Inc., leased for Mabel Loria and Beatrice M. Ertz for a term of years the one-story building at 314 to 318 East Twenty-eighth Street to the Commercial Repair Company, Inc., which will use the building for a service station for automobile trucks.

William H. Whiting & Co. have leased the store and basement at 310 to 314 Hudson Street to the Firth Sterling Steel Company of McKeesport, Penn., for a term of years at a total rental in excess of $50,000; also the store and basement at 68 Beekman Street to the New Continent Commercial Company, and the store at 157 and 159 William Street, corner of Ann Street, to Warren A. Fowler.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased the store at 1,761 Broadway to the Eastern Car Distributors.

Kinnan Leases Home to Operator.

Louis Pincus is the lessee of the home of A. P. W. Kinnan, President of the Union Dime Savings Bank, at 439 West End Avenue, northwest corner of Eighty-first Street, a five-story dwelling, which will be altered into small apartments. The lease is for a long term of years. Lester H. Goodkind of Frederick Zittel & Sons closed the lease.

Realty Notes.

The Real Estate Exchange of Long Island will hold its regular monthly meeting and luncheon at the Café Boulevard at noon tomorrow.

The West Side Savings Bank has made a loan of $80,000 at 5½ per cent. to the Nason Realty Company on its property at 1,371 Shakespeare Avenue, the Bronx, for five years.

Alfred M. Anderson is the buyer of the six-story apartment house 9 and 11 West Ninety-seventh Street, sold Monday through Goodwin & Goodwin.

This consists of a machine shop and about seven and one-half acres of land located on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, on Clyde Avenue, Buffalo, having a spur track on each side of the building. The land is fenced. The main building is single story, well lighted and in good condition, of stone construction, 80 feet x 300 feet, a stone addition thereto, 30 feet x 200 feet and a frame addition, 88 feet x 304 feet, together with other outbuildings, among which are a restaurant and time and employment office.

This is a modern plant with a low tax rate and cheap electric power. The equipment consists of electric motors and transformers, air compressors, boilers and heating system, high class tool room equipment, office fixtures and furnishings, belting, shafting and hangers, furnaces, lathes, boring mills, drill presses, grinders, pumping and conveyor systems, benches, special machinery, etc., all being in good operating condition.

The property is open to inspection and may be seen by applying at the premises. Any offer made must have the approval of the Ordnance Department before acceptance.

A Series of FACTS—5

Tenants!

THE record we have made in keeping the twenty-three buildings in the Park Avenue Section under our management tenanted has been unusual.

This is due to the efficiency of our management, together with the close co-operation of the highly organized staff of experts in our Rental Department, who concentrate their time and efforts in New York's leading residential section.

Perhaps this combination can make your building more profitable for you.

ADVERTISING AGENCY.
EXPERIENCED HEAD
COPY WRITER.
SALARY $5,200 UPWARD.

Old, successful advertising agency reorganizing on new basis. Owner able, vigorous, well known, recognized everywhere, wishes to be relieved of inside office detail and supervision; desires to spend practically all his time outside in contact with clients—old and prospective. Wants several inside men; mainly and immediately a head chief who will be responsible for copy, art, engraving, printing, &c.; practically an inside agency head. He will be given assistant copy writers, artists, stenographers, mechanical expert and forwarders as more are needed.

A splendid opportunity for an able, level-headed, ambitious, experienced agency copy producer who can work like a horse, has executive managerial power, and wants to eventually (if not now) own a substantial interest in a prosperous advertising agency.

For 10 years this agency has earned for its owner upward of 20% on $100,000 capital. It would be a rare investment for any advertising man who wants to work along with his money to buy stock in such a firm, provided he is qualified and has the money.

Capital is not asked for, but if the right man insists on owning stock, the present owner will permit him to do so.

If now employed, but are interested in this proposition, you might use a "pseudonym" so as to avoid any possible embarrassment when writing fully your experience and qualifications: though every communication will be held in absolute confidence, and the agency owner can be absolutely trusted in this matter. Address Agency Owner, B 156 Times.

United States.

The commission announces for Feb. 25 an examination for dairy husbandman, for men. Vacancies in the Dairy Division, Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, for duty at Washington, D. C., and in the field, at entrance salaries ranging from $1,800 to $2,500 a year, will be filled from this examination. The entrance salary within the range stated will depend upon the qualifications of the appointee, certification to fill the higher salaried positions being made from those attaining the highest average percentages in the examination. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on general education and scientific training, 40; practical experience and fitness for carrying on work along lines related to subjects outlined in statement of duties above, 40; thesis or publication, 20. Graduation from a college or university of recognized standing in a course of dairy husbandry, and in addition at least two years' successful, responsible experience in connection with dairy husbandry since leaving college, are prerequisites. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Pressure continues relatively low along the northern border and over the Middle Atlantic States, and is high in all other regions, except California. Fair weather has prevailed during the last twenty-four hours, except in the region of the Great Lakes, where there were snow flurries, and on the Texas Coast and in the State of Washington, where there were scattered rains.

Temperatures continue above the normal for the season in practically all parts of the country, the excess in temperature being most pronounced in the Northwest, where it is 20 to 40 degrees above the average for this date.

Indications are that the weather will be generally fair, with a continuation of temperatures above the normal during Wednesday and Thursday east of the Mississippi River.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the Atlantic Coast will be moderate variable, mostly west, with fair weather.

FORECASTS, TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair in south, cloudy in north portions Wednesday. Thursday, fair; not much change in temperature.

Southern New England—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday and Thursday, with moderate temperature.

Western New York—Partly cloudy Wednesday. Thursday, fair and warmer.

The temperature record for the twenty four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	14	35	4 P. M.	19	40
6 A. M.	13	34	6 P. M.	23	43
9 A. M.	11	37	9 P. M.	21	42
12 M.	14	45	11 P. M.	22	42

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 40; for the corresponding date last year it was 17; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 34; at 8 P. M. it was 43. Maximum temperature, 46 degrees at 1 P. M.; minimum, 34 degrees at 5:30 A. M. Humidity, 62 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 63 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.01 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.78 inches.

INDICTED B. R. T. MEN GET VENUE CHANGE

SCORES HYLAN HEARINGS

District Attorney Lewis Dissatisfied —B. R. T. Receiver Confers with Service Board.

Justice Callaghan in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday granted the change of venue application of Timothy S. Williams, ex-President of the B. R. T., and the other officials and employes indicted for manslaughter in connection with the Malbone Street wreck on Nov. 1, and ordered trial held in Nassau County, at Mineola. If that county is not satisfactory to District Attorney Lewis or to the defendants, Justice Callaghan said he would name any other county on which the parties might agree.

Stephen S. Baldwin in his argument last week asked the court to name a county "as distant from Kings County as possible." Mr. Baldwin contended that the people of any county near Kings would be prejudiced almost as strongly against the defendants as were the people of Kings. When asked if he was satisfied with Nassau County, District Attorney Lewis said:

"I am not satisfied with any county except that in which the crime with which the defendants are charged is alleged to have been committed. The defendants were not entitled to a change of venue and I did not expect they would get it. Now that I am ordered to another county for trial I shall try the case in that county. I am not responsible for the change."

Mr. Baldwin was out of town, and Meier Steinbrink, Williams's attorney, refused comment.

Justice Callaghan in his decision said:

"It is difficult for me to understand how a campaign for the conviction of these defendants could have been carried on with more effectiveness than that which has been carried on in this county. It rivals the efforts of a well-organized corps of propagandists. A public hearing was held by the Mayor, sitting as a Magistrate. The newspapers have announced that it was the Mayor's intention to 'reach the men higher up.' The hearing conducted before him was given the widest publicity, photographs were taken of the defendants on arraignment and published in the newspapers. In fact, the defendants were tried and convicted in the eyes of public opinion before an indictment was found against them. An organization was formed in this county from among the relatives of the victims of the wreck, and a desire for vengeance had been expressed in public meetings by the members of this organization which has, by resolution, declared that it would do everything in its power to bring about a conviction of the defendants."

MOVE TO BETTER B. R. T.

Receiver Garrison Confers with Service Board.

Receiver Garrison of the B. R. T. called at the offices of the Public Service Commission yesterday afternoon and conferred for an hour with Commissioners Whitney, Hervey, and Kracke; the commission's chief counsel, Godfrey Goldmark, and its special counsel, William L. Ransom, on the subject of increasing the efficiency of the B. R. T.

The commission promised to do what it could to complete the rapid transit system so that trains could begin running, and to assist Mr. Garrison with schedules that would yield the maximum of service with the present equipment.

It was also practically agreed that 250 new surface cars should be bought. There is no money available for these cars, but it was suggested that the surface companies could issue certificates of indebtedness, which could be accepted by the B. R. T. Company and money furnished on them out of sums to be raised on receiver's certificates. There will be other conferences between the commission and Mr. Garrison.

TO SEND WOMEN'S MISSION.

Y. W. C. A. Industrial Commission Will Study Condition Abroad.

It was announced at the offices of the National War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday that an industrial commission of women, headed by Mrs. James Cushman, Chairman of the War Work Council, would be sent abroad in April to study the industrial life of women in England, France, and Italy in an effort to promote a world fellowship among women workers.

Discussing the plans of the commission yesterday Miss Florence Simms, head of the Industrial Department of the Y. W. C. A., said that it was hoped the women of this country would lend their moral support to the mission.

"The war has forced upon us the bearing of international relationship in all things," she added. "It seems timely that women interested in the larger life of our women workers should take counsel together and express their interest, with the hope that certain minimum standards which seem essential to health and welfare among women may be agreed upon."

Besides Mrs. Cushman the commission will include Mrs. Raymond Robins of the National Women's Trade Union League of America; Mrs. Irene Osgood Andrews of the American Association for Labor Legislation, Miss Grace Drake, National Consumers' League, and Miss Florence Simms, Miss Marie Wing, and Miss Imogene B. Ireland, all of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Ireland will serve as the Secretary of the commission. Miss Mary Gilson, an authority on employment management, will accompany the mission.

MAY SUE FOR RUSSIA.

Court Denies Motion to Dismiss Action Over Black Tom Explosion.

Federal Judge Mayer denied the motion yesterday of Charles A. Boston, as counsel for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, to dismiss the suit instituted by Frederic R. Coudert, in behalf of the Russian Government, for damages caused by the Black Tom explosion in July, 1916. The motion was made on the ground that there was no Russian Government, and therefore no plaintiff.

In the opinion the court said that the defendant had in its possession at the time of the explosion property belonging to the Russian Government which was destroyed, and that authority to begin the suit for damages had been obtained from one Boris Bakhmeteff, and that the recognition of the latter by this Government as Russia's Ambassador had been brought down to date by certificates issued on Oct. 31, 1918, and Jan. 2, 1919, by the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of State respectively. When Mr. Bakhmeteff left this country for France in December last he turned the affairs of the embassy over to Serge Ughet, financial attaché of the embassy, who is now in charge.

URGES TUNNEL PROJECT.

Merchants' Association Writes Gov. Smith on Hudson River Plan.

The Merchants' Association has asked Governor Smith to support the Hudson River vehicular tunnel project, which provides that the estimated cost, $6,000,000, shall be paid equally by this State and New Jersey. The letter to the Governor urges that an appropriation of $1,000,000 be made for immediate use.

"Careful consideration was given by our committee to the possibility that such a tunnel might have the effect of diverting to New Jersey industries which would otherwise locate or continue their location in New York. We do not believe that this would be the result, but, on the contrary, think that the benefits would be mutually reciprocal," the letter says. It states that there is a strong tendency at present to divert business from this port to points where the port charges are less and that it becomes important, therefore, that economies should be effected wherever possible in port charges. The proposed tunnel, it is explained, would help in this respect, as it would tend to reduce terminal expenses by reducing the cost of trucking, which is large because of delays in handling freight.

GETTING THE O'LEARY JURY.

Judge Augustus N. Hand, in the Federal District Court, yesterday overruled the motion made on Monday by counsel for Jeremiah A. O'Leary to quash the indictment, which charges that O'Leary and others violated the espionage law by entering into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the country. After the motion was overruled the work of getting a jury to try O'Leary and Adolph Stern, his co-defendant, began.

Each talesman was asked if he was acquainted with President Wilson, J. P. Morgan, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Andrew Carnegie, James W. Gerard, and Lord Northcliffe. They were also asked if they belonged to the American Defense Society, the National Security League, or any other organization of a similar nature. At 7 o'clock last night, when court adjourned, five tentative jurors were in the box. The case will be continued at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE MAY SPREAD

Schlesinger, President of Union, Says 25,000 May Be Added to Those Now Out.

MANUFACTURERS ARE FIRM

They Refuse to Deal with the Union, Says Morris Weiss, President of Their Association.

Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, declared last night that unless an early agreement was reached in the strike of 35,000 members of the union against the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, it would be necessary to call out about 25,000 more workers engaged in the manufacture of ladies' garments and thus bring the total number of strikers up to approximately 70,000. Mr. Schlesinger pointed out that he was speaking as the representative of the workers, all of whom are desirous of obtaining the forty-four-hour work week, a 15 per cent. increase in wages and the other union conditions demanded.

It was also announced at the union headquarters, 31 Union Square, that between 6,000 and 7,000 members of the union in Philadelphia had been called out and that a similar fight was being waged against the organization of manufacturers in that city. The strike here is deadlocked and there was no appreciable change in the situation yesterday, although the union officials declared that 4,000 workers had returned to their machines under agreements made with independent manufacturers who had no connection whatever with the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association. This is the total number of workers who have gone back to their jobs, it was said, and not many more would have returned by the end of the week.

Morris Weiss, President of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, said yesterday that the recently formed Contractors and Jobbers' Association which has been negotiating with the union had no affiliation with the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association. The members of this association, he said, employ no workers, do no manufacturing, but simply purchase and resell the finished product. The contractors' association, Mr. Weiss added, consists of a small number of contractors in the industry. The great number of independent manufacturers who at a recent meeting resolved to take the same stand as the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association were still consistently refusing to deal with the union, he asserted.

"The strike is in excellent shape," said Mr. Schlesinger in answer. "The shops are idle and they will stay idle until the manufacturers will concede to all the just demands of the union. The various contractors' associations which were organized during the last few days and which are seeking to enter into collective agreements with the union are being notified by the International office to forward a complete list of names and addresses of the firms for whom they are working or to whom they sell their products. Upon the receipt of such list the union will immediately investigate their shops and inform them whether the union will negotiate with them or not.

"The Executive Board of the General Strike Committee decided that all workers who return to work in the settled shops give up 10 per cent. of their earnings to the strikers for the duration of the strike. The International Union will within the next few days issue a call to every member of the organization throughout the country to give up a day's wages for the strikers. About 4,000 men and women have already returned to work under the new union agreement. The Settlement Committee is taking every precaution that the manufacturers who are settling shall not make any work for the firms on strike, or sell garments to them, and that they shall faithfully live up to the provisions of the agreement."

There are about 140 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union throughout the country, and a readiness had been expressed through the various locals, it was said, to make the requested contribution to the general strike fund.

The official canvass of the referendum vote being taken among the furriers in the New York market, Morris Kaufman, manager of the Joint Board of the International Fur Workers' Union, said yesterday that the impending strike in the industry showed that only thirty-nine workers opposed the strike, while 4,894 were in favor of the walkout. Mr. Kaufman pointed out that business was dull in the fur industry at present, and that had all of the 7,000 workers been employed there would have been 7,000 in favor of the strike. The strike has been called for Monday, but it will, in all probability, commence on Saturday before the closing hour, it was said yesterday.

Dr. J. L. Magnes, the Chairman under the expiring agreement with the manufacturers, was making every effort to avert the strike, but union officials declared his efforts would be futile unless the manufacturers would agree to the demands, which include a forty-four-hour week, one price the year around, the limiting of unjust discharges, and the finishing of garments in same shop in which the other three operations are carried on.

ORDERS TRIAL FOR TREASON

Judge Mayer Rejects Fricke's Plea to Bar Indictment.

When the matter of the plea in bar interposed by Albert Paul Fricke to the indictment charging him with treason came up for trial yesterday in the Criminal Branch of the Federal District Court Judge Julius M. Mayer was asked to postpone the proceedings because the defendant's counsel, Thomas J. O'Neil and J. J. Daly, were otherwise engaged. This Judge Mayer refused to do and directed the drawing of a jury to pass on the issue raised by the plea that Fricke was immune from prosecution because on last May 22 he had testified as a Government witness in the Wessels case. When the jury had been obtained Fricke refused to question its members.

Federal Prosecutor Ben A. Matthews, who examined Fricke before the Grand Jury, testified that he warned the defendant of his constitutional rights and that he had not promised Fricke immunity in case he gave testimony that would tend to incriminate him. When the minutes of the Grand Jury examination were put in Fricke refused to put in any evidence in support of the plea. He also refused to make any argument in his own defense. Judge Mayer then directed the jury to dismiss the plea and render a verdict in favor of the United States. This was done. At the suggestion of Prosecutor Stephenson, Judge Mayer ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered to the indictment in Fricke's behalf and set the treason trial for Feb. 3.

Fire in Garage at Bellevue.

Fire that did $5,000 damage occurred late yesterday afternoon in a garage at Bellevue Hospital, and before it was extinguished a delivery truck was destroyed and the private automobile of a staff surgeon was badly damaged. The fire was started by a backfire in the carburetor of the delivery truck. Nurses and orderlies went through the wards reassuring the patients when the sound of the fire apparatus alarmed them.

INVITES VASSAR TO DEBATE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 28.—The Princeton undergraduate body has been thrown into confusion by a committee, which has challenged Vassar to a debating contest. This unexpected development in intercollegiate debating has called forth a storm of protest from the conservative sons of "Old Nassau." The Daily Princetonian condemns the proposed contest with the girls. "We have been so kindly to the debating teams as to rate them one step higher than the chess teams," says this organ of undergraduate opinion, "but the proposal to cross words with the petticoated representatives of this bitter rival is too much. We throw up our hands in silent surrender; our vocabulary of invectives is utterly inadequate.

"Why not debate Vassar?" ask the sages of Whig and Clio. Yes, why not? Why not a knitting or sewing tilt with Bryn Mawr? Why not a pingpong match with Barnard, or a spelling bee with Wellesley, or a tea-pouring contest with Miss So-and-So's finishing school? Or, even better, why not take on the International Correspondence School for a heated skirmish in penmanship?"

The Daily Princetonian appeals to the Debating Committee to withdraw the challenge.

He Changed His Mind

A gentleman we know discovered recently on the day before a big banquet at which he was to speak that his dress clothes would no longer contain his slightly stouter figure.

Of course there was no time to have new clothes made by a tailor; but he doubted frankly if we could satisfy him.

In about ten minutes he was standing before a mirror in Full Dress regalia which was a real pleasure to look at. The coat fitted round the neck and shoulders. The back was perfect. There was a smartness of line and a distinction which he admitted was totally lacking in his old dress clothes.

Nothing was said about price until he had expressed himself as being satisfied—enthusiastically so.

The dress clothes he happened to select cost $40.

THE AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Phonograph Supreme

IN PERIOD DESIGNS

THE above illustration shows the Vocalion in a Queen Anne Model—one of sixteen distinctive cases, designed by The Aeolian Company to meet the growing demand for cabinets that conform with the various historic "periods." The simple, gracefully curved lines of the cabinet make this Vocalion at home with almost any furniture, however, be it Queen Anne or not.

This instrument has all the well-known Vocalion advantages—that is, it is the phonograph greatly improved, greatly refined and complete in every modern detail. It has the beautifully clear tone that distinguishes all Vocalions. It contains the unique and fascinating Graduola, with which you may play the phonograph as a musical instrument. And it has an advantage that all music lovers will recognize as vital; namely, a Tone Arm that will play all standard makes of records.

Designed in the graceful and popular "Queen Anne" manner, the Vocalion illustrated will prove a delightful addition to your home—its peerless musical qualities complemented by a cabinet of exceptional charm.

This attractive instrument may be purchased for a moderate initial payment

'DRY' AMENDMENT PROCLAIMED PART OF CONSTITUTION

State Department Notifies Nation of Adoption as Fundamental Law.

IN EFFECT JAN. 16 NEXT

New York and Vermont Finally Pass Resolution for Ratification.

SHARP FIGHT AT ALBANY

Senate Adopts the Amendment, 27 to 24—Distillers Lay Plan for Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Formal proclamation by the State Department that the national prohibition amendment has been ratified by three-fourths of the States of the Union and thus becomes a valid part of the Constitution was issued at noon today by Frank L. Polk, the acting Secretary of State.

Ten minutes previously Mr. Polk had attached his signature to the proclamation in the reception room adjoining the office of the Secretary of State. Among those present were William Jennings Bryan, former Secretary of State, one of the most vigorous advocates of national prohibition; Senator Sheppard of Texas, the author of the resolution by which Congress submitted the prohibition amendment to the State Legislatures for ratification; Representative Charles H. Randall of California, who was elected to the House of Representatives on the Prohibition ticket; representatives of various temperance organizations, Chief Clerk Ben G. Davis of the State Department, and other department officials.

The signature was appended with several pens, which Mr. Polk had promised, these being presented to Senator Sheppard, Mr. Bryan, Representative Randall, and others.

Commenting on the proclamation Mr. Bryan said it was the hope of the prohibitionists to enforce absolute prohibition at home and also to carry the movement "into other lands."

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, issued a statement saying in part:

"The announcement by the Secretary of State that three-fourths of the States had ratified the amendment, is the official proclamation under Section 205 of the Revised Statutes that the amendment is a part of the organic law of the nation. This does not mean that the amendment is operative on that date or one year thereafter. The Constitution, Article V., fixes the date it becomes valid to all intents and purposes when the thirty-sixth State ratifies.

"The courts will look to the official announcement to see when that occurred. It was Jan. 16, 1919. It will become operative one year later, Jan. 16, 1920."

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 29.—The Federal prohibition amendment was ratified by the Vermont Legislature today. Favorable action was first taken in the House and later the Senate suspended its rules and concurred in the vote.

SENATE AT ALBANY RATIFIES AMENDMENT

"Wets" Defeated by Vote of 27 to 24 in Bitter Attempt to Stave Off Final Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 29.—New York State, by action of its Senate tonight, ratified the Federal prohibition amendment by a 27 to 24 vote and became the forty-fourth State to put the national ban on alcohol. The Assembly adopted the ratification resolution last week by a vote of 81 to 66.

Two Republicans, Senators Sage of Albany and Lockwood of Brooklyn, voted with the solid Democratic opposition. New York's acquiescence to the demise of "John Barleycorn" came after a session lasting nearly ten hours, filled with every possible parliamentary move to deny ratification. The fight was one of the most spectacular staged in the upper house in years. Few Senators failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to speak and the debate was vigorous.

The Democratic attempt to substitute another prohibition amendment with a referendum rider met with defeat by a 26 to 25 vote. Senator Abeles of the Bronx, Republican, voting with Senators Sage and Lockwood and the Democratic minority.

Confusion which marked a greater part of the session, due in part to the maze of parliamentary tangle offered by opponents of ratification, threatened to break into wild dispute when Senator Thompson of Niagara charged Governor Smith's election to the "rum interests." His charge met with bitter resentment from the Democrats. Again Democrats became vehement in answering Majority Leader Walters, who charged that prohibition originated with the Democrats.

In answering this, Senator Dowling of New York arraigned Southern Democrats as originators of prohibition and as "sectionalists, south of the Mason

Bolivia to Claim Provinces as an Outlet to the Sea

PARIS, Jan. 29. (Associated Press.)—That Bolivia intends to set up a claim for the Provinces of Tacna and Arica, under the doctrine of President Wilson that nations are entitled to an outlet to the sea, was indicated today by General Montes, Bolivian Minister to France. In a statement to The Associated Press he said:

"The claims of Chile and Peru to these provinces are based purely on political arguments, while those of Bolivia are based on the vital right of access to the ocean through the natural channel of these provinces. Without access to the sea, of which we were deprived when we lost Antofagasta as a consequence of the Pacific war, Bolivia could not hope to become a great nation and trade freely with the world."

General Montes pointed out that Chile and Peru possessed long coast lines even before the Pacific war.

FAIL TO HECKLE BECK AT MEETING

Would-Be Disturbers Squelched Before He Speaks—Hisses Meet Cheers for Hearst.

BIG POLICE GUARD PRESENT

Soldiers Tell How They Were Taken to Brooklyn and Rehearsed for Outburst.

Attempts to break up the meeting of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night and prevent James M. Beck from speaking because of the belief that he would attack the loyalty of some members of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops were so completely frustrated by the police at the outset that the program was carried out without interruption. Two members of the Victory Committee, who tried to interrupt the meeting, and one soldier were ejected by the police.

Heavy guards of police and military police were stationed at all the entrances and in every aisle, so that it was impossible for any person in the audience to rise from his seat and begin an interruption that would last more than the few minutes required to escort him to an exit.

Threats had been made to Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn by the same soldiers who attempted to break up the meeting of the Independent Citizens' Committee in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 17 that they would not permit Mr. Beck to speak at the Brooklyn meeting. They had perfected an organization for causing a disturbance of the Victory Committee meeting, and they appeared at the Academy of Music with civilians, who led the disturbing section in Madison Square Garden.

Got In Before Regular Opening.

About a hundred of these soldiers and marines gained entrance to the hall and took seats in the gallery before the doors were opened to the general public. Ushers said they did not have tickets of admission, and, inasmuch as they were overheard rehearsing plans for breaking up the meeting, they were requested to leave. Another meeting was organized by these men in the streets near the Academy under the leadership of civilians who said they were from the War Camp Community Service.

Nothing was done inside the hall to break up the meeting or to protest against the presence of Mr. Beck until James H. Post, the Chairman, arose to introduce the speakers after the first half of the musical program had been finished. Mr. Post had said only three words when Edmund O'Connor, Commissioner of Records in Kings County and a former Vice Chairman of the old Hearst Independence League, got up from a seat in the second row of the orchestra.

He asserted he was a member of the Victory Committee, but before he could say more than that he had seen in the newspapers that the gathering was to be a mass meeting, his voice was stilled by cries from all parts of the hall. A woman who sat near O'Connor in the same row jumped up and shouted: "Put him out! Shove him behind the platform!"

James E. Sullivan, another member of the committee, who occupied a seat in the third row, began to protest in a loud voice that O'Connor also was a member of the committee and entitled to be heard. Sullivan had in his hand a copy of the resolution presented to Borough President Reigelmann on Tuesday, purporting to have been adopted by members of the committee in protest against the invitation to Mr. Beck to speak at the meeting because of the allegation that at the Madison Square meeting he had "abused the authorities of this great city."

His voice also was lost in the cries of "put them out!" and a soldier who had moved from a remote part of the hall to the first row, giving to his former neighbors the excuse that he could not interrupt easily unless he was near the platform, tried to open an altercation with Nathan S. Jonas, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Victory Organization.

These Interrupters Yanked from Seats.

In response to the call of the members of the committee on the platform, eight policemen, three detectives and two members of the Provost Guard walked down the aisle and pulled the three interrupters from their seats. Sullivan tried to oppose the police but he was pushed out. O'Connor and the soldier then walked out unescorted.

As O'Connor was walking up the aisle he turned and yelled: "Hurrah for Hearst! Hurrah for Hearst!" His call was answered by hisses and boos. Another voice from the gallery called: "We don't want any Sein Fein here!" and the audience immediately became good-natured.

RUSSIAN REDS WIN SUCCESSES ON MANY FRONTS

American and Allied Forces in the North Retreat from Shegovarsk, on the Vaga.

CITY IN UKRAINE CAPTURED

Suppression of Revolt at Tashkend Also Reported—Fall of Orenburg Is Confirmed.

JOHNSON IN SENATE ATTACK

He Again Demands That We Withdraw Our Troops from Russian Soil.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 29. (Associated Press.)—The American and allied forces operating south of Archangel evacuated Shegovarsk on Monday and retired ten miles to the northward. The Bolsheviki continue to shell the American and allied positions at Tarasevo and Tulgas, but there is a comparative lull in activities on the entire front.

The forces which retired from Shegovarsk, which is about sixty-five miles north of Ust Padenga, which was the allied position furthest south a week ago, yesterday halted their march northward and established new positions at the villages Vistarka and Ust Sama, on opposite banks of the Vaga River, at a strategic bend in the stream, about ten miles north of Shegovarsk. The new positions are protected by forests through which there are no Winter trails in the immediate vicinity. Enemy patrols, which approached to within two miles, retreated when shelled.

The number of refugees fleeing over forest paths in zero weather from Shenkursk to the American and allied lines is increasing. American Red Cross representatives report that the plight of the refugees is serious.

Those who left Shenkursk after the arrival of the Bolsheviki repeat stories of massacres there, but allied headquarters is still inclined to doubt them. The refugees declare that the Bolsheviki continued to shell the town long after the American forces withdrew, evidently not knowing that they had left. The bombardment finally resulted in the setting afire of many buildings, after which, it is said, the Bolsheviki rushed in and shot many of the inhabitants.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—An official wireless dispatch received from Russia tells of the defeat of the Ukrainian peasant army by the Ukrainian Soviet forces and the occupation of Ekaterinoslav, capital of the Government of the same name in South Russia. The dispatch says:

"Ukrainian Soviet forces after a desperate battle overcame the stubborn resistance of the forces of General Petlura and occupied the town of Ekaterinoslav, capturing guns, machine guns, and other booty.

OMSK, Siberia, Jan. 25, (Associated Press.)—Official advices received here are to the effect that Orenburg, capital of the Government of Orenburg, on the right bank of the Ural River, has been occupied by the Bolsheviki. General Dutoff, commander of the anti-Bolshevist forces, abandoned the town and retired in a northeasterly direction.

The Bolshevist control in Tashkend, capital of Russian Turkestan, has been overthrown through the defection of Commissioner Assipov, with whom two regiments of Bolshevist infantry and one of cavalry mutinied and seized the city and the railroad. All the Bolshevist Commissioners were shot.

The Siberians have captured Saranpol, Province of Tobolsk. Two hundred of the Red Guard were killed and the remainder dispersed.

Johnson Calls American Attitude Toward Bolsheviki "Weak, Stupid, and Ignorant."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Characterizing the American Government's attitude toward Russia as "weak, vacillating, stupid, and ignorant," and asserting that American intervention on the Archangel front had enabled the "grotesque" Bolshevist Government of Lenine and Trotzky to "last far beyond its allotted time and exercise its despotic sway in the name of public safety," Senator Hiram Johnson of California today addressed the Senate in support of his resolution demanding the withdrawal of American troops from Russia.

"Our dealings with Russia," declared Senator Johnson, "and the dealings of our allies with Russia have been not only an exhibition of the crassest stupidity, but have contributed to the awful tragedy there."

Senator Johnson quoted from President Wilson's various declarations of his attitude toward Russia, and went into an analysis of historical events subsequent to the Bolshevist revolution in an effort to prove that the American

Brockdorf Wants Neutrals To Administer Schleswig

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 29.—The Afton Tidningen's Berlin correspondent says that Count von Brockdorf-Rantzau, the Foreign Minister, who has been appointed by the German Government as the head of its delegation to the Peace Conference, has suggested that an inter-Scandinavian commission be established to govern Schleswig until the Danish-German frontier question is settled.

GERMAN NAVY MEN ASKED TO ENLIST

Mysterious Agents Seeking to Get Sailors for Service Abroad.

HINT OF EARLY FIGHTING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (via Copenhagen.)—The Central Naval Council is circulating among its subordinate departments and at various naval ports an address requesting a searching examination of the activity of certain men who lately and apparently not unsuccessfully have tried to enlist naval officers and seamen for the service of some foreign country. All the departments have been requested to report any cases coming to their knowledge at once to the Central Naval Council in Berlin.

Cpatain Scheide, who is now in charge of the Naval Intelligence Service, explained to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent the reasons for the circular letter. For several weeks many officers and sailors have been personally and by mail asking the Central Naval Council whether they should enlist in foreign service, they having received tempting offers. Machinists, technical seamen, gunners, and U-boat men seemed to be specially demanded, being offered a thousand marks monthly and more.

"We investigated several cases," Scheide said, "and found that the name of the foreign country which desires to hire our men was not revealed by the agents, who seemed to be Dutchmen. For this reason we could not advise our men to accept service. Besides, we must take care lest such wholesale enlistments might involve Germany in new troubles."

Many Seamen Disappearing.

"Were they really wholesale enlistments?" asked THE TIMES correspondent.

"The agents at least tried to work wholesale," was the reply. "Only a few days ago a long list of officers and seamen who were inclined to accept foreign service came to our notice. Another list was circulated even in our own house, the Navy Department, headed by the name of a well-known officer, who, however, disclaims all knowledge of it.

"The investigation has only just begun. In one case a naval officer was telephoned to by a foreign agent, and asked to meet him at a certain place. When he arrived there with another naval officer the agent had disappeared. Two other agents were examined, but denied that they had made any serious offers.

"Still, a considerable number of seamen have disappeared in the last two weeks without leaving any trace, which convinced us that they had accepted foreign service."

Scheide refused to say what nation might be involved, but thought there were several. He had also heard from men who talked with the agents that they were given to understand that there would be a chance to distinguish themselves and advance rapidly, indicating that there might be fighting.

THE TIMES correspondent suggested several countries east of Germany, but Scheide refused to commit himself. All he would say on this point was that, though the agents were mostly Dutch, he was convinced that Holland was in no way implicated.

Fighting at Wilhelmshaven.

A Hamburg telegram states that there was a heavy artillery fight at Wilhelmshaven between Spartacides and sailors belonging to the Majority Socialists, which lasted until 2 A. M. The Spartacides are reported to have been defeated, with many killed and wounded. Details are unobtainable because telephone and telegraph communication are interrupted. Railway men, who are on strike, expressed their disapproval of the Spartacides' action, like many workmen in other branches and professional men, such as physicians and nurses.

Herr Kuhn, President of the Republic of Oldenburg, arrived late this evening in Berlin, reporting to the People's Commissioners that he and his Government were not concerned in the Spartacide invasion of Wilhelmshaven. He was not informed of the result.

Not only the Deutsche National Volkspartei, but also the Deutsche Volkspartei congratulated the ex-Kaiser on his birthday.

"With unswerving loyalty for the Kaiser and the empire we remember the great times Germany lived under Hohenzollern rule," is the most striking sentence of this congratulation, which Vorwärts considers characteristic showing of royalism. The paper consoles itself with the view that the address to "the unfortunate man at Amerongen" is full of hypocrisy, and that the members of the Deutsche Volkspartei have quite a different opinion of Wilhelm from what they pretend.

Die Freiheit indignantly records that the ex-Kaiser's birthday was celebrated at grand headquarters on the night of Jan. 26-27, in the presence of Hindenburg, Gröner, and many staff officers. At the War Office nothing is known officially of such a celebration, but its possibility was admitted. It was said that some officers might have drank the ex-Kaiser's health, which is not punishable by law.

WILSON'S COLONIAL PROPOSAL WINS, INTERNATIONAL CONTROL ASSURED; POLES AND CZECHS TOLD TO END STRIFE

WE RECOGNIZE POLAND

Lansing Sends Greetings to Paderewski as Provisional President.

RIVALS BEFORE THE COUNCIL

TOLD TO END HOSTILITIES

This Action Followed Recent Warning to All Warring Claimants of Territory.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The Supreme Council of the great powers gave the entire day to Poland, hearing the Polish Delegates Dmowski and Pilotz, and the Czechoslovak Delegates Kramarz and Benes.

While the hearing bore on the instructions to the commission about to start for Poland, yet the main desire of the Council was to hear the Poles and Czechoslavs concerning the warfare which is now going on between them along the Silesian frontier.

This clash between the military forces of the two countries is regarded as contrary to the recent warning given by the Council against the occupation of territory by force.

The delegates of the two countries were invited to explain the hostilities and take measures to abate them.

The hearings today and the departure of the commission for Poland are expected to put an end to this internal conflict between two powers which are represented at the conference.

The Polish Commission, which is planning to depart for Warsaw early in February, comprises Generals Montbena and Rombi, Italians; General Louis Botha and Siresme W. Howard, British; General Niessl, G. Velten, Consul General at Warsaw, and M. Noulens, former Ambassador to Russia, French, and Major Gen. Francis J. Kernan and Professor Robert H. Lord, Americans.

Recognized by America.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — President Wilson has extended full recognition to the new Polish Government under the Premiership of Ignace Paderewski. Disclosure of the President's action was made by the State Department today when it issued this announcement:

The Provisional Polish Government is accorded complete recognition in a telegram which Secretary Lansing has sent Ignace Paderewski by direction of President Wilson. The message extending this full recognition follows:

"The President of the United States directs me to extend to you as Prime Minister and Secretary for Foreign Affairs of the Provisional Polish Government his sincere wishes for your success in the high office which you have assumed, and his earnest hope that the Government of which you are a part will bring prosperity to the Republic of Poland.

"It is my privilege to extend to you at this time my personal greetings, and officially assu you that it will be a source of g ification to enter into official relati s with you at the earliest opportuni and to render to your country such id as is possible at this time as it ters upon a new cycle of independ at life will be in full accord with that spirit of friendliness which has in the past animated the American people in their relations with your countrymen."

Poles Here Cable Thanks.

Polish national leaders tonight declared that the Polish portion of the population of the United States would give itself over to general rejoicing over the action taken by the President and Secretary Lansing. A message was sent to Paris by national Polish leaders here thanking President Wilson for his recognition of the Paderewski Government. In the name of the National Polish Department of America this statement was issued tonight by James C. White, Director of the National Polish Bureau:

"President Wilson's recognition of the Polish Government under the Premiership of Paderewski, is an act fully consonant with the high ideals with which America entered the war and with the ideals which have actuated the President from the beginning.

"To President Wilson belongs the credit of having on Jan. 22, 1917, broken the silence which surrounded the Polish problem, and which threatened to make it an affair of internal Russian administration by a declaration which echoed around the world that there must be an independent Polish State.

"Since that memorable declaration, the President has repeatedly made known both his aspirations and ideals with regard to the future and the independence of Poland, and it is with

Allies Hasten Steps to Punish War Criminals; Will Not Permit Germans to Obstruct Action

PARIS, Jan. 29.—British preparations for the pursuit of the war criminals, "however highly placed," as the instructions of the Peace Conference are worded, are being carried on steadily, and it is hoped that Sir Gordon Hewart, the Attorney General, and his judicial colleagues will have their case ready very shortly.

No time has been or will be lost, and there is no doubt that the guilty will be brought to book, but it is desired that the measures in view shall be thoroughly and soundly based, not only so that immediate justice can be done, but that in later times there can be no possibility of doubt that justice has been done.

It is perhaps unfortunate that certain provisions were not included in the armistice terms for the rendering up of personages against whom grave evidence lies of offences against international law, for some of them will inevitably try to escape trial by flight.

Some German authorities have intimated their willingness to support an international investigation, but it is not known whether the Ebert Government will assume the same position or whether pressure will have to be put upon it.

For the speed of the proceedings, much will necessarily depend upon whether the Germans are willing to produce the necessary documentary or personal evidence and generally to recognize the validity of the process that will in any case be established. If they do not, so much the worse for them, for the Allies are unanimously resolved that justice, impartial and effective, shall be done.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—By far the most difficult of the Continental European tasks which the big powers that are directing the affairs of the Peace Conference have to undertake is that of straightening out the complicated military and political affairs of Poland.

At the present moment Poland is fighting what may be called three separate wars simultaneously on as many frontiers, and is trying at the same time to convert herself into an independent republic to which shall be added later such regions of old Poland as have not yet been restored or are still being contested for by other new States.

Definite action by the Allies is held up pending a report of the commission authorized to study the whole Polish situation. That commission cannot make the first move to get the desired information until it receives its instruction as to what is wanted and how to go about getting it.

The task of formulating instructions was delegated to Stephen Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, and he has completed them, but they must be ratified by the five great powers before they can become operative. That ratification has not yet been made.

In the meantime Poland is fighting both to keep what she has and to acquire what she thinks she ought to have. This fighting is going on every day despite the warning sent out by the great powers Friday that all hostilities must cease everywhere, and that all territorial claims would be seriously prejudiced in the minds of the Peace Conference at the time of final adjustment in all cases where attempts to make good those claims by military force had continued in defiance of the warning.

Sympathy for Poland.

But the Polish Committee in Paris asserts that their country cannot cease fighting when it is under constant military attack by three enemies. Other powers represented at the Peace Conference are inclined to sympathize with that view. A most embarrassing phase for the conference at the Quai d'Orsay is that one of the three military forces at war with Poland is that of Czechoslovakia, one of the new States recognized by the Allies and exactly on the same footing as a friendly nation as Poland itself.

The other enemies at war with Poland are the Ukrainians and Bolsheviki. That is less embarrassing, for the Ukraine has a now well-defined status, and the Bolsheviki are still counted as outlaws and enemies of all nations, at least until they accept the

AUSTRALIA SENT PROTEST TO PARIS

OPPOSED INTERNATIONALISM

Could See Nothing but Complications from That Method of Control of German Colonies.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 29, (Australian Government cable.)—The Hon. W. A. Watt, acting Prime Minister, today summed up public feeling regarding the disposition of the former German colonies. He demands that the islands taken from the enemy by Australian and New Zealand troops be controlled in the future by Great Britain or Australia and New Zealand.

"It is probable," said Mr. Watt, "that at the conference of allied powers an attempt will be made to internationalise or neutralise the Pacific islands and other countries that formerly belonged to Germany. After careful consideration of the prospects of such a form of government, we can see nothing but complications arising out of that method of control, and I am cabling today to Prime Minister Hughes in Paris, strongly setting out our objections to any form of international government, in the same way as we have presented to him our strong opinions against restoration of these islands to the control of the German people."

"The question of the disposal of Germany's former overseas dominions is now under consideration at the Allied Peace Conference," says Mr. Watt's statement. "I wish to state plainly the attitude adopted by the Government of the Commonwealth in respect to the Pacific islands.

"Shortly after the conclusion of the armistice both houses of the Federal Parliament unanimously carried a resolution that the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Australia declare it is essential to the future safety and welfare of Australia that the captured German possessions in the Pacific occupied by Australian and New Zealand troops should not under any circumstances be restored to Germany, and that in the consideration and determination of proposals affecting the destination of those islands Australia should be consulted.

"The time for consultation having arrived, the Government should make its views plain. It is the desire and hope of the Australian Government that the islands of the Pacific formerly held by Germany and now occupied by Australian and New Zealand forces should for the future be controlled either by Great Britain or Australia and New Zealand.

"In expressing this desire we are not influenced by an ambition to extend our territory, but feel that this free, young nation must safeguard itself against molestation. The only form of insurance which is open to us is government under the British flag, as the Commonwealth already governs a substantial area in Oceania adjacent to the late German possessions of New Guinea and Bismarck Archipelago.

"We feel that success has attended our development of these islands. [Parts of New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago have been under the administration of an Australian Governor General for four years.]

"We must appeal to the nations who have to judge our claims. We do not seek to exploit the natives, but to develop the productive and industrial possibilities of these possessions for the future good of the present inhabitants as well as the safety of this island continent.

"Many evidences have been tendered to the Government that this is practically the unanimous view of the people of Australia. I can only express the hope that the presentation of our case by Prime Minister Hughes will so influence the statesmen of the allied countries that Australia's position will be safeguarded."

WILSON'S IDEAS PREVAIL

Concessions Give League Mandatories Liberty as to Colonies.

LLOYD GEORGE PERSUADES

Spends Most of Day with British Colonial Ministers, Urging Them to Recede.

INSURES FULL SUCCESS

Conference Between Smuts and House Played Large Part in Settlement.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—As the result of a private meeting today between General Smuts and Colonel House virtual agreement has been reached on the troublesome questions involved in the insistence of Japan, Australia, and New Zealand that the Conference confirm the secret understanding reached between Great Britain and Japan for disposition of the captured German colonial possessions.

Mr. Lloyd George spent most of the day endeavoring to persuade the British Colonial Ministers to recede from their position in favor of observing the secret arrangement.

In consequence of these occurrences it is not going beyond the bounds of probability to say that the principle of internationalizing the German colonies, with a future administration intrusted to Governments designated by the League of Nations, will be recognized by the Peace Conference.

It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of this outcome of the greatest diplomatic battle fought behind the closed doors of the Quai d'Orsay. The assertion is now made that the acceptance by all the nations and federated dependencies concerned of the principle of internationalization for which the United States has strenuously contended means the success of the League of Nations.

Those who advance the claim go even further in the assertion that if the principle had been rejected the league would have been a futile organization.

While this principle does not directly affect the territorial aspirations of Italy, the developments today make it clear that Italy will probably abandon the effort to obtain the annexation of Fiume and the adjacent Dalmatian territory, and abide by the spirit of the principle, which means that she will consent to the Jugoslavs having Fiume and perhaps exercising control until the territory is ready to assert the principle of self-determination.

Compromise Accepts Wilson Plan.

PARIS, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—The German colonial question is ripe for decision, as great progress was made yesterday concerning it. It is understood a compromise is to be adopted which will fully preserve President Wilson's plans for international administration, but will give the various mandatories certain liberty of action in executing their control of the colonies.

The Supreme Council held two sessions today, but the chief interest of the day was centred in a series of private conferences in the upper chambers of the American and British delegations, where efforts were being made to reconcile the rather acute issue which had arisen over the disposition of the German colonies.

The American position had been definitely stated in favor of internationalization of the colonies under the League of Nations, with mandates as trustees to such powers as undertook to administer them. But the British Dominions, which were chiefly interested in the German colonies of the Pacific and in South Africa, were equally firm for annexation with full sovereignty and without a mandate from the league.

The main effort today was to reconcile these extremes, and those taking part in the conferences were hopeful tonight that a middle ground would be found which would preserve the American contention for a matdate to the powers claiming the colonies.

Early in the day General Smuts, representing the British dominions' view against the mandate, and Colonel House held a long conference, with a view to reconciling the differences This seemed to tend toward an agreement whereby the mandatory power would have control of the administration of any colony committed to its care, but the league would exercise supervision over the general character of this administration, with a view to protecting the interests of the nation and the population.

Later Premier Hughes of Australia, who is the exponent of the extreme view for outright annexation of the colonies, conferred with Colonel House in a further effort to a middle ground.

Two official communications on the peace proceedings were issued today. The first says:

The President of the United States, the Premiers, and the Foreign Ministers of the allied and associated Governments and the Japanese representatives held two meetings on Jan. 29. The morning sitting was devoted to hearing reports of delegates who made general statements on the Polish situation and Polish claims. In the afternoon the Czechoslovak delegates gave their views on the question of the industrial basin in Silesia situated between Bohemia and Poland.

The other communiqué says:

Since Monday last Mr. Barnes, British Minister without portfolio, has been conferring with prominent British trade unionists on the draft of a scheme for the international regulation of conditions of employment.

The scheme has been closely examined, and the experience of all present at the conference has been freely placed at Mr. Barnes's disposal. Many valuable suggestions have been made, and it is felt that full light has been given to the views of organized British trade unionists.

The conference concluded at noon, Jan. 29, and the draft scheme agreed upon will be submitted to the International Commission on Labor Regulation, which was appointed on Saturday last at the Peace Conference.

President Planning Second Visit.

Much as President Wilson still hopes to avoid a second trip to Europe, it begins to look as if the course of Peace Conference affairs would cause him to feel impelled to recross the Atlantic in the early Spring.

Recent statements purporting to announce definitely that the President had arranged to come back to Paris after going to Washington in February, and even giving the date of his sailing on his return trip were founded, it may be said, on no definite information. The fact is that the President, while still hoping it will turn out that another trip to Europe will be unnecessary, is waiting to see what the remaining fifteen days of his stay in France will bring forth before finally deciding on his course.

The President is said to have told his confidants that if events pointed to the need of his return he felt that his course would be found fully justified when he addressed Congress, as he plans to do almost immediately on his return to the United States. It has developed that he has abandoned the idea of returning by way of England. If his plans hold, he will sail from Brest on the George Washington between Feb. 10 and Feb. 15.

It is realized here that President Wilson's return home with plans for departing for Europe again would bring up the question of an extra session of the new Congress with Republican majorities in both Houses. The best available opinion here is that if an extra session be thought inevitable the President would call it before his return to France, probably setting the date ahead to some time in June, expecting to finish the business of the Peace Conference in time to return to Washington and be in the White House when the new Congress assembled.

The President's friends here say he is prepared to answer any criticisms or an intended return to France with facts which he will lay before Congress in the addresses which he will probably deliver.

SEE DIFFICULTIES AHEAD.

English Correspondent Tells of Colonies' Objections.

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 30.—The British Imperial War Cabinet has accepted President Wilson's theory of internationalization as applied to the captured German colonies, notwithstanding energetic protests from the representatives of the dominions, says The Daily Mail's Paris correspondent.

"These protests," says the correspondent, "have been of the gravest character. The South African representatives believe acceptance will give the greatest encouragement to the rebel element in South Africa which it ever has received during British administration. The Australian delegates fear that Australian public opinion will regard it as extremely unsatisfactory and inexplicable. The Dominion representatives generally, though very reticent, are greatly perturbed."

The Daily Mail cites Arabia and Mesopotamia as instances where possibly the inhabitants are capable of self-determination and would have their wishes put into effect by the League of Nations.

Regarding safeguards under which the mandatories would administer the countries whose people are not ripe for self-determination, The Daily Mail says that President Wilson proposes that the safeguards shall be settled by the Peace Conference or the League of Nations, they being varied according to local conditions.

"President Wilson doubtless has before him," the correspondent continues, "the principles of the British colonial administration as those which the league must enforce by safeguard, and the British view appears to be that under this system, while formal adhesion is given to President Wilson's theory, the right of government by mandatory power will not differ in effect from the British Imperial conception. This view induced the Imperial Cabinet to accept President Wilson's plan, but an examination into the steps to be taken for putting it into effect already reveals the gravest difficulties."

"It involves three difficulties of paramount importance: first, who is to pay for the development of the territory; second, what rules regarding tariffs are to be observed, and, third, are the mandatories to be allowed to exclude people or capital they do not wish to enter.

"President Wilson believes all these can be settled by separate consideration of the case of each territory. He even foresees the possibility of the league having revenue derived from constituent members, which might be spent in developing lands which it will nominally own.

"French, Italian, and British colonial opinion is that any system of international control always has proved a failure and always will, and that the only right of interference which the league ought to assume would be the right to call to account any power whose Government is injurious to the interests of the inhabitants.

"The colonial delegates declare that public opinion in their countries is quite incapable of appreciating the idea that administraton under President Wilson's scheme may under certain circumstances not differ materially from actual possession."

HARMONY PREVAILS AMID DIVERSE VIEWS

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Complicated as are some of the questions arising out of the proposed disposition of the former German colonies, the fact is not lost sight of that the Allies and America started with one point in common. When the subject first came up for discussion it was found that there was absolute unanimity on the proposition that none of her former colonial possessions could be restored to Germany. Arthur Balfour and General Smuts had expressed this determination so far as the British Empire was concerned, and it was highly satisfactory from the English point of view to find the American delegates in entire agreement.

President Wilson's proposal that all the German colonies should be internationalized came as a surprise. He had been expected to advocate such a policy, but only to a limited extent.

Britain Standing by Her Colonies.

Great Britain, on her side, was prepared to submit to the conference proposals which in her view would clearly indicate that she was not seeking colonial aggrandizement. She was not, however, ready to abdicate her interest in the claims which the colonial members of the British commonwealth might be able to justify before the conference on the grounds of their future security. South Africa and Australia were entitled to count upon the support of the mother country in all their reasonable demands. In all other respects the British attitude in regard to this question is roughly defined as one looking to a settlement of the various problems arising in such a way as will contribute to the future well being of the world. In some cases it is believed that immediate solutions are impossible. The League of Nations, it is hoped, will provide machinery by which the immediate necessity of territorial dispositions can be dispensed with.

The case of the Marshall and Caroline Islands is one particularly in point. It is an open question whether the acceptance by the allied powers of Wilson's fourteen points has retroactive power in such matters as treaties and engagements entered into before the United States came into the war; and from this point of view there would be room for much discussion of the binding character of the arrangements entered into between Great Britain and Japan.

Though I cannot, of course, predict the developments of the British attitude in this particular matter, it is a permissible assumption that a method can be discovered of arriving at an understanding whereby, without disregard of the interests of any particular nation, other interests can be conciliated.

It was suggested today that a solution of what may be called the Pacific problem was being sought along the lines of a division of the mandatory powers assigned to the various Governments under the League of Nations.

The question of Kiao-Chau is one that is being studied in its relation to other subjects. China is understood to have made a strong claim for the restitution of that territory, which was ceded under pressure to Germany; and, while the Japanese delegates are reported to have so far maintained an attitude of great reserve, listening to everything and saying nothing, it is certain that the part the Japanese played in the capture of what the Emperor William once called the eyrie of the German eagle in the Far East will be put forward with much vigor. It is true that the British co-operated in the taking of Kiao-Chau; but these particular military and naval operations were neither extensive nor expensive by comparison with the standards of the whole war.

In setting forth these aspects of the British point of view I have sought to indicate that, while there is no disposition to minimize the differences which do exist, it is firmly believed in quarters closely in touch with the general policy of the British Colonial Office that the unanimity which marked the opening of the discussion of this vexed question of the disposition of the former German colonies will also stamp its closing phases.

ROME BACKS ACTION IN PARIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 29.—The whole press of Rome is satisfied with the procedure at the Peace Conference, and expresses the hope that a lucky beginning will be a good omen for the future workings of the conference.

The news of the approval of the League of Nations project was received here with rejoicing, as this action was the one most ardently desired by the Italian people, as demonstrated by the speech of Orlando, who has always upheld the necessity for a society of nations to make war in the future impossible and form strong commercial and industrial ties between nations.

All the decisions so far taken are regarded as having distinctly shown the influence exercised by President Wilson over the assembly. His suggestion of a meeting of the different Russian parties is called here a "great statesman's coup."

The conference is now approaching what one paper calls the "burning questions" of territorial settlements. It is judged here that the most difficult problems will be those of the Rhine and Adriatic.

THREE SECRET TREATIES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—In connection with the territorial questions before the Peace Conference is confronted by no less than three secret treaties, says the Paris edition of The London Daily Mail today. It goes on:

"The first is the treaty between Great Britain, France, and Italy disposing of the Adriatic coast, which conflicts violently with Jugoslav and Czechoslovak interests.

"The second is the treaty between Great Britain and Japan, under which Japan gets the German islands in the North Pacific.

"The third is the treaty between Great Britain and the King of the Hedjas under which Damascus forms a part of the territory given to the Hedjaz Kingdom.

"Damascus lies near the border line of the spheres of control in Syria and Palestine agreed upon between the British and the French. Under this agreement Palestine from the Sea of Galilee to the Egyptian border is a British protectorate administered for the special benefit of the Jews, while north of the Sea of Galilee to Ain Meinor it comes under the French. The latter, however, are most anxious to have Damascus included within their sphere, while the Hedjas delegates are equally anxious to retain Damascus as it is already under their administration."

PRAISES MONROE DOCTRINE.

Cecil Would Have It Maintained by the League of Nations.

LONDON, Jan. 29, (British Wireless Service.)—Lord Robert Cecil, the British authority on a League of Nations, praised the Monroe Doctrine in an interview today regarding the interest of neutral countries, especially Latin America, in a League of Nations.

"Neutral countries cannot, of course, take part in deliberations directly concerning war problems," he said, "but, so far as a League of Nations is concerned, if neutral countries prepare a practical plan for submission to the conference, the representatives of the great powers will be glad to consider it, although it must be a plan containing concrete issues and not theoretical solutions drawn upon paper.

"The Monroe Doctrine has given satisfactory results in practice which justifies its further application as a model of operation. The League of Nations could appoint the American nations themselves as the mandatories for the execution of its principles regarding territorial integrity, so far as these principles affect American countries. In this manner the United States and the Latin American republics could act in conformity with their policy already established."

Lord Robert added that if European action were excluded in the American Continent the occasion might arise when an American nation might unjustly damage European interests. To avoid this it would be advisable that a court or similar institution be formed by the American countries themselves to consider and decide the actions applicable in each case.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The delegates of the South and Central American nations to the Peace Conference decided at a meeting held today to create a commission to look after the interests of all these nations before the conference, with delegates especially assigned to look after various subjects.

Thus, Brazil will voice the feeling of the Central and South American nations as regards the League of Nations; Cuba will pay especial attention to international labor legislation from the same point of view, while Uruguay will especially interest herself in the subject of the internationalization of ports, waterways, and railways.

ADOR HOPEFUL OF LEAGUE.

Swiss President Says His Nation Will Be Included in It.

GENEVA, Jan. 29.—Gustave Ador, President of the Swiss Federation, returned today from Paris, where he conferred with peace delegates. President Ador was received by Swiss Government officials here, to whom he delivered a brief address.

With reference to the proposed League of Nations and the Peace Conference, M. Ador said he had not been before the Peace Congress, properly speaking, but had been in conference with allied representatives. The Allies had been largely engaged in discussing the conditions to be imposed upon the conquered nations, he said, and hence neutrals had not been admitted to their collective councils. He added, however:

"When the Society of Nations takes form we will certainly be included."

pride that we remember that he made the independence of Poland with access to the sea one of the fourteen peace principles on which the great peace to come is to be predicated.

People Never Wavered.

"For these reasons it is a matter of supreme pride that once again we hear from his lips the official words of recognition of the Polish State. He has done a great honor to Poland and to Paderewski. He has lifted up the people of Poland, who, though often cast down, have never wavered in their confidence in the sincerity and integrity of the pledges made for Polish freedom by America and the representatives of the allied nations.

"He has also cheered the hearts of the great Polish immigration in the United States, which from the beginning of the war has sought to serve America with patriotism, with enthusiasm, and with real sacrifice, and yet, without any division of its loyalty, because from the first the men and women of Polish birth and blood have appreciated that in making a victorious United States they were making a free Poland, and that a free Poland would also mean a more secure United States, free from war and rumors of war.

"Once again we desire to express, in this hour of triumph, our great, overwhelming obligation to Paderewski, who today sits in the Premiership of Poland. To us was given the privilege during the last three years to work with him and for him, to watch the unfolding of his dreams for the rebuilding of a real Polish republic. Our confidence in him has never wavered.

"To the Americans of all classes, to the American newspapers, to American publicists who listened to our cry when our voices were as one crying in the wilderness, and who gave us aid, we extend our deepest appreciation. The new Poland we desire, and the only Poland that Paderewski will consider, will be a free, a true Poland, with absolute equality and opportunity for all its inhabitants."

RUSSIANS IN PARIS STATE THEIR POLICY

Bakhmeteff and Associates Declare Adhesion to Popular Rule.

PROMISE LAND REFORMS

Deny Reactionary Purposes—Pledged to Fulfill Treaty Obligations.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—After a delay so long that it seems to indicate the failure of the effort of America and the Allies to get into negotiations with the Bolsheviki and the other Russian Governments at Princes' Islands, there came today a manifesto from the committee of Russian diplomats in Paris, addressed to the Peace Conference in general and President Wilson and other chief plenipotentiaries individually, setting forth what this Paris group—composed of Lvoff, Bakhmeteff, Maklakoff, and others—hope to accomplish.

The work on this document was begun about the time that Pichon refused Lloyd George's proposal, afterward accepted, to confer with the Bolsheviki. It was held back pending the wait for the rejections or acceptances of the proposed conference. Neither the Omsk nor the Kurban Government has accepted the invitation despite reports to the contrary, and it is not likely that they will. A report of doubtful authenticity was current in Paris this morning that the Archangel Government had sent a formal refusal. So far the Bolsheviki have condescended to reply only through a satirical letter to Longuet's Socialist paper, accusing the Allies of lack of good faith and lack of authority to represent the world.

It is in these conditions that the Paris Committee, which declares itself to be the unified representation of all the anti-Bolshevist Governments of Russia, issues its declaration to offset the charge that it is reactionary. It also gives the Peace Conference another opportunity to treat with the anti-Bolsheviks, not in common with their enemy on a faraway island, but by themselves here in Paris.

Denies Reactionary Tendencies.

"We are accused," M. Bakhmeteff, the Russian Ambassador to Washington, said to me today, "of being reactionary and of trying to set up military Governments merely as a means of restoring the old despotic régime. Nothing could be further from the truth, as one could see by our proclamation."

The committee's statement, says in part:

"Whenever the moment come for the restoration of order in Russia, that order can never be based on the principles of the old régime. The different Governments established in various parts of Russia to destroy anarchy have found it necessary for their immediate tasks to assume a military character, but as soon as the task is accomplished their military character will cease, and we shall have a Government of all Russia, legally and freely elected by the people. The sovereignty of the people will serve as a base for all power granted to such a Government.

"The new Russia will know no limitations of civil or legal rights because of religion, nationality, or social position, and all hereditary privileges will be forever suppressed.

"The restoration of economic order and industrial health is recognised as the first necessity; so that every possible encouragement is to be given to private enterprise and initiative to attract needed capital. In this connection the plan calls for safeguarding the health and rights of workers by the best methods known in other countries.

"Social peace cannot come before the solution of the land problem, and that solution must include legalising the possession of the land taken by the peasants since the revolution.

"In the new Russia there must be a decentralization of administration in the interest of all localities. Nationalities other than the Russian within the State must also have full opportunities without discrimination."

After this enumeration of the main points of its program the committee's statement calls attention to the fact that after the revolution Russia freely proclaimed the independence of Poland, but it adds that that must be the end of dismemberment. All separatism must be checked absolutely from now on and Russian unity established for all time.

None except the Bolsheviki and extreme Socialists accuse the members of this Paris committee of being reactionaries working to re-establish the old régime. In other quarters there is no doubt of their patriotism, sincerity, and loyalty to Russia as a whole. Nevertheless, there seem to be objections on the part of American and other delegates to the Peace Conference to treat with this diplomatic group as representatives of Russia who can give the most desirable and definite results.

Pledge to Fulfill All Treaties.

PARIS, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—A declaration has been issued and delivered to the allied Governments by what in the document is called "a conference of Russian Ambassadors and business men in Paris." The declaration says the object of the conference was to defend the rights and interests of Russia by "solemnly proclaiming, in the name and by the order of the united Governments of Russia, the principles by which the nation's policy will be inspired."

In the course of the statement occurs this passage relating to the agrarian question:

"During the revolution a disorderly movement occurred on the part of peasants who took possession of the land. This exceptional situation demands exceptional means for dealing with it, but to return to the old state of affairs is impossible. Peasants must own more land than hitherto, but, for the present state of anarchy there must be substituted some legal basis."

The declaration concludes by saying: "Russia pledges herself to fulfill all obligations arising from treaties she concludes, but claims the right to be indemnified by the enemy for damages sustained during the war, which caused her heavy sacrifices."

Recognition of Finns and Poles.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Russian Embassy late this afternoon made public a paraphrase of a cablegram received from the Russian Embassy at Paris, stating the attitude of the Russian leaders assembled in conference in Paris with respect to internal and foreign policies.

Among the policies which are supported are:

"Recognition of individual historical forms of self-government and development of different nationalities in the boundaries of single, indivisible Russia in the forms of autonomy and federation.

"Independence of Poland.

"Re-establishment of the temporary Government, of the constitutional rights of Finland, and the preparedness of Russia to meet her aspirations; provided, however, that the military and economic interests of Russia be guarded.

"Peaceful intentions of the Russian people and absence of any aggressive tendencies.

"Correspondence of Russia's aspirations with the new principles of international unity adopted by all the Allies."

The Russian Embassy also made public a cablegram from the Government of the Northern Regions at Archangel, which read:

"Before leaving for Paris, the President of the Northern Regions, Nicholas Tchaikovsky, at a meeting of representatives of social organizations, declared that the aim of the political leaders in convening in Paris is to obtain Russia a representation at the Peace Conference and to establish a centre of Russian politics for the purpose of constituting a strong Russia. Peace cannot be lasting until Bolshevism is expulsed, as it represents a universal danger.

"Tchaikovsky further stated that the Slav question could not be decided without the participation of Russia."

OMSK DEFERS ITS REPLY.

Siberian Government Will Consult Various Anti-Bolshevist Groups.

OMSK, Siberia, Jan. 25, (Associated Press.)—The proposal of the Peace Conference for a discussion between the various Russian groups will probably be submitted by the Omsk Government to representatives of the various groups in Siberia for action. In the meanwhile the Government officials insist the military situation requires that the campaign against the Bolsheviki be pushed vigorously.

The receipt of the proposal by wireless from France caused surprise in Government circles here, as it is feared it may have an adverse effect on the discipline of the army supporting the Omsk Government. Pending the receipt of an official text of the proposal, the Government officials will make no comment except that the anti-Bolshevist campaign should not be relaxed, and that constructive efforts to strengthen the Government and rebuild the nation should be maintained.

In seeking opinion as to what should be done concerning the proposal, the Government will probably confer with representatives of the co-operative assemblies as well as political leaders.

MISS ELSIE DE WOLFE BACK.

Tells of Some of Her Hospital Experiences in War.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe, who arrived on Tuesday on the Lorraine after doing war work in France for the last twenty months, last evening told of her experiences, and especially of her flight from the hospital in Compiegne to the town of Crepy-au-Valois. She said that at 3 o'clock in the morning it was reported the Germans were about to break the line and that she would therefore have to evacuate the hospital at once.

She went to the street and, with shrapnel flying everywhere, she gave aid to a wounded Tommy who had walked thirteen kilometers from a hospital which he was ordered to leave. Finally she and the other nurses received marching orders, and so they left and arrived at Crepy. She then went to Aumont, where she remained until a few days before the armistice was signed. She was in Paris on Nov. 11, where she said the noise of celebration was deafening, but order prevailed.

POLES FIGHTING ON THREE FRONTS

invitation to the Princes' Islands parley conference.

A concrete and very real example of the complications of this problem is the following: Poland is daily sending appeals to Paris for help in the form of food and munitions of war to enable her to hold out against her enemies. The Allies would like to render such aid. There is no objection to sending guns and ammunition to the Poles to help them fight the Bolsheviki, but under the existing circumstances there could be no assurance that the Poles might not, under the stress of military emergency, be obliged to use the same guns and powder against the Czechoslovaks, whose delegates sit at the same table at the Paris Peace Conference with the Polish delegates.

Polish Mines Captured.

Late information discloses the danger of just such a situation. For example, on Jan. 24, the very day the wireless warning to cease all hostilities was sent from Paris to all Europe and Asia, Czechoslovak troops captured from the Poles Moravika and Oskava, in Moravia. Fighting has gone on ever since, and today comes the news that the Czechoslovaks have taken the mining regions of Karvin, upon which the new Polish State depends very largely for its mineral resources. At the same time the Poles and Ukrainians are struggling for the Ukraine, and the Poles are fighting the Bolsheviki in the north.

To digress for a moment from the Polish question—the warning of the great powers to cease fighting seems to have been more effective in other quarters. Serbia and Rumania have stopped fighting about the Province of the Banat, and the situation between Italian and Jugoslav troops is less strained, although the Italian press has just begun a bitter attack on France, charging that country with advocating the Jugoslav cause despite its Adriatic secret treaty obligations to Italy.

But to return to Poland. Because of her multiplicity of difficulties she seems to be losing ground daily in her fight with the Czechoslovaks, and to say that the representatives of the powers at Paris are greatly disturbed by the situation is putting it mildly. For, if there is one point above all others concerning Eastern Europe on which all the Allies agree, it is that a strong barrier Polish nation is absolutely indispensable as a future safeguard against German expansion to the east and against the spread of Bolshevism to the west.

President Wilson explicitly declares in his thirteenth point that an independent Polish State must be erected to include the territories inhabited by indisputably Polish populations. Poland asserts that every foot she is fighting for today is thus indisputably inhabited. The Czechoslovaks deny that claim, and that is one of the big issues which the Allied investigating Commission must rule on.

Poles Fractionally United.

The political news from Poland is much more comforting than that concerning her military affairs. Although no details have yet been received in Paris concerning the popular elections on Jan. 26, the French Foreign Office has every assurance from its agents that the Poles are really united politically in support of the present Provisional Government of Paderewski and Pilsudski, and that the Constituent Assembly, to which delegates have just been elected, will begin the orderly work on Feb. 9 of building their new State.

Voting took place in all parts of Galicia, or Austrian Poland, and Russian Poland, in which a state of war does not exist. No elections, of course, were possible in German Poland, but delegates from that region who formerly sat in the Reichstag at Berlin, but were loyal to the Polish cause, will no doubt be accepted as representatives at the Constituent Assembly at Warsaw of the territory which the Peace Conference is expected to take away from Germany and restore to Poland.

Information received here from diplomatic agents is to the effect that Paderewski has been received by all groups as a great popular hero, to be the first national leader in the revived nation. The romance attached to taking as their chief a man known throughout the world as a great artist has appealed to Poles. Furthermore, there is felt a tremendous gratitude toward the great pianist who is recognized by his countrymen as the man who did the most in getting relief from America for their sufferings throughout the war.

According to the same sources of information, there is complete accord at present between Paderewski and Pilsudski; also the Poles have done better than expected in raising a popular loan. Industry is being resumed slowly and some mining and transportation enterprises are getting under way.

CZECHS TO SEIZE SILESIA.

American Officers in the Force to be Sent to Eastern Germany.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—President Masaryk of the Czechoslovak Republic, according to an official statement made by him and received here by wireless from Warsaw, has announced that Czechoslovak troops will occupy Eastern Silesia. He denies that allied troops will be concerned in the occupation. The President's statement follows:

"In view of unsatisfactory conditions in Eastern Silesia, the Czechoslovak Government has decided to occupy the province with Czechoslovak troops. All statements appearing in the press declaring that the Entente has decided to occupy Eastern Silesia are without authorization and entirely incorrect. The British, American, French, and Italian officers mentioned in the newspapers are attached to the Czechoslovak armies and take their orders from the Czechoslovak Government. No troops except Czechoslovak legions are being employed in the region."

The Eastern Silesia referred to is probably the eastern portion of German Silesia. It lies between Poland and Czechoslovakia. An Amsterdam dispatch Tuesday night said that the Czechoslovak forces were concentrating on the frontier between Bohemia and Saxony. It was reported that one of the villages occupied by the Czechs was Freistadt, which, however, is just south of the southern border of Eastern German Silesia in the region of Ratibor.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 27.—According to news from Berlin, severe fighting is going on between the Czechoslovaks and the Poles. The Berlin Tageblatt says that the latter had retreated from the Oberberger district and were endangered on Saturday evening between Pestrovis and Karvin by Czech forces 20,000 strong. Later the Poles received important reinforcements, and the indecisive battle was still raging when the latest news was received.

SAYS DUTCH KEEP KAISER HARMLESS

Premier Beerenbrouck Asserts Service to Allies in Allowing Him to Stay.

FORCED IN BY DECEPTION

False Tale Obtained Passage of the Border—Will Observe Laws as to Extradition.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—A Frenchman who has just returned from a semi-diplomatic mission to Holland communicates to THE NEW YORK TIMES a declaration of the official Dutch attitude regarding the ex-Kaiser which was made to him by Premier Ruys de Beerenbrouck, who revised his copy of the statement and authorized its publication. The Premier said:

"We are reproached for having given hospitality to the Kaiser and his son. But, to put it bluntly, these gentlemen fell like a brick on our heads. How could we act otherwise than we have done? I would like to know what any one else would have done in our place.

"You know the circumstances: On Sunday, Nov. 10, at 4 A. M. the Sergeant on guard duty at Eysden perceived the arrival of a train of automobiles. Officers of the rank of General stepped out and demanded that he accord passage to the Kaiser. The Sergeant refused.

"Then one of the Generals declared: 'Everything has been arranged with the Dutch Government and the Kaiser is expected.'

"The Sergeant, as a mere noncommissioned officer, allowed himself to be overcome by this 'warlord' of high rank, and the Kaiser entered Holland.

Premier Informed After Entry.

"At 9 o'clock that morning, on my return from church, I was informed by my colleague, M. Van Karneback, Minister of Foreign Affairs, that he had received at 7 o'clock a telegram from our representative at Brussels, M. Van Hollenhoven, transmitting a request that the Kaiser be allowed to pass the frontier. Almost at the same hour the commander in chief of our army received a notification from the post commander of Maestricht of the event that had occurred at dawn—that is, the Kaiser's entry. We were face to face with a fait accompli.

"What attitude were we to adopt? The Kaiser's act of abdication was only dated Nov. 11, but on Nov. 10 on two separate occasions he affirmed that he had come to Holland solely in the definite quality of 'a simple private person,' of a plain citizen asking for hospitality. It was difficult, even dangerous, to refuse.

Asserts Service to Allies.

"To receive him was to render a service to the Allies. The world knows now where are the chiefs of the imperial family and that they are unable to do any harm.

"This unexpected arrival forced us to seek a place to lodge the visitor. After much ado and with a great deal of telephoning we found it on the property of Count Bentinck, who has been subjected to a lot of vexation in consequence—the breaking off of long-standing friendships with Englishmen and annoyances of all kinds. His position, like our own, has been completely misunderstood."

In reply to the Frenchman's question as to the possibility and desirability of the extradition of the members of the imperial family responsible for the war, which might, as it were, mark Holland's entry into the League of Nations, the Premier said:

"I can only repeat to you what I said in Parliament: We shall act in accordance with the existing laws and treaties. But believe me, when feeling on the subject runs les high, the world will appreciate the legality and usefulness of the attitude taken by the Netherlands.

"In Germany the imperial family might have formed the centre of a moral and intellectual agitation. Nothing of the kind is possible here."

SAY HINDENBURG SEEKS RETURN OF EX-KAISER

Trying to Bring It About After Assembly, Paris Hears—Reported Overtures to Ebert.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to the Echo de Paris, is endeavoring to bring about the return of former Emperor William after the meeting of the National Assembly.

Leading German manufacturers in Westphalia are said to be interested in the plan.

The newspaper adds that the former Emperor wrote to Premier Ebert that he would accept whatever residence in Germany was assigned to him. Ebert is said to have replied that only the National Assembly would be qualified to decide the question.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—High school students paraded the streets of Bremen on Monday carrying black, red, and white flags. Twenty of them, when arrested, declared the demonstration to be one of respect for the former Emperor and not in favor of the monarchy, according to a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen.

AMERONGEN, Holland, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—A birthday dinner was given in Amerongen Castle last night in honor of the former German Emperor. It was attended by about twenty persons, including members of the family of Count Godard von Bentinck, the former Emperor's host, and Count Charles von Bentinck of Zuylestein and his daughter.

Among the other guests were the Mayor of Amerongen, General von Estorff, Count Schmettaud, the Marshal of the former Emperor's Court, and Captain von Ilsemann, the former Emperor's private secretary.

In honor of his guests, Count von Bentinck wore the ribbon of a Knight of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, which the former Emperor was the head.

Floral gifts for the former Emperor were still arriving at the castle today. They had been held up by a heavy snow which delayed railroad traffic.

The former Emperor and former Empress are enjoying comparatively good health and there is no indication of any intention on their part of leaving Amerongen soon.

The castle has become a hive of industry since the former Emperor induced most of his servants and some of the members of the family of Count von Bentinck to join him in the healthy exercise of sawing logs. At first he used an ordinary carpenter's hand saw and kept each log in position with his knee. Now a big two-handled saw is utilised, Herr Hohenzollern working one end while one of his assistants operates the other. Two men servants hold the opposite ends of the log firm.

The exile has such strength in his healthy arm that he is able to outdo all the others and continues at work on his end while those on the other end of the saw are continually replaced by newcomers.

A shed, which is the scene of the sawing operations, has been built against a great oak tree in the castle grounds. At one end is a pile of logs brought from the thickly-wooded estate of Count von Bentinck outside of Amerongen. The supply of wood is renewed daily.

As the logs are cut, which is done with considerable rapidity, the men servants pile them in regular heaps at the other end of the shed, from which they are hauled off to replenish the castle fires.

OFFICERS SWIM ASHORE.

Lieutenants Back from France Impatient at Delay in Landing.

When the American transport Scranton arrived yesterday from Bordeaux with three army officers as passengers and a cargo of high explosives her Captain was instructed to anchor in the lower bay until the vessel was discharged. The officers were told that a navy would be sent to convey them with their baggage to Hoboken, but two of them were so impatient to land in America that they jumped overboard and started to swim to the Brooklyn shore, 200 yards away. Just as they neared a pier they were picked up by a small boat. Their names are Lieutenant A. L. Bourgardes of the American Air Service, who lives at 611 West 110th Street, and Lieutenant R. S. Rose, also residing uptown, who belongs to the United States Signal Corps. At Hoboken the debarkation officers admitted that the two officers had swam ashore and said that they were now listed on the official papers absent without official leave. The third officer on the Scranton was Lieutenant Isaac Barber of Jackson, Miss., belonging to the United States Quartermaster's Department, who remained on board for the hazy trip.

The cruiser Frederick will arrive this morning at Pier 5, Hoboken, with 1,547 troops, including the headquarters and medical detachments and Companies A, B, C, and D of the 330th Infantry, who will go to Camp Merritt, and the 466th and 492d Aero Squadrons returning to Camp Mills, L. I.

The Hoboken debarkation officials also expect the transport Plattsburg, with 1,685 troops, including the Machine Gun Company of the 330th Infantry, and the 328d Machine Gun Battalion, 7 casual companies, 228 sick and wounded, and 10 soldiers' wives, who have been married abroad.

The transport Mongolia, with 4,420 troops on board, chiefly casual companies, and 906 sick and wounded, will arrive late in the afternoon.

GERMANS DEMAND COLONIES BACK

IMPERIAL LEAGUE'S DEMAND

Colonials Call for Support by German People—Wilson's Views Cause Uneasiness.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 29.—Simultaneously with the announcement of the discussion at the Peace Conference in Paris concerning the disposal of the German colonies the German press is making an effort to arouse the interest of the people in the colonies.

The Cologne Gazette publishes an urgent appeal by "the Imperial League of German Colonials" telling the people they must demand the colonies back and asking for signatures.

Declaring that every nation has a right to a place in the sun and to the expansion of culture, the appeal says:

"The German people must demand the return of the colonies. We only want signatures, not subscriptions."

The Weser Zeitung sees hope for the German colonial question in ex-President Taft's recent speech.

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson's speech last Saturday before the Peace Conference contains the following sentence, as transmitted to Berlin and here retranslated from the German:

"The United States would have a feeling that it could not take part in guaranteeing these European adjustments unless this guaranty included the permanent surveillance of the world peace by the associated nations of the world."

This sentence, together with the reported decision of the Supreme Council that the German colonies must not be given back to Germany, has disquieted some German circles. The Boersen Zeitung, for instance, says:

"If President Wilson is correctly reported, he confesses openly that he, too, like Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George, does not desire Germany in the future community of nations as an equal among equals but as a nation watched by overseers * * * The President cannot wonder if people in Germany gradually begin to form the opinion that the hopes they placed in him are to be disappointed."

The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts, in commenting on the report regarding the division of the German colonies among the allied nations, says:

"The League of Nations is making a lovely beginning. The decision of the western powers to take the German colonies for themselves is born of a spirit diametrically opposed to that proclaimed by President Wilson. It appears more and more as if it were the intention of the western imperialists to leave to Mr. Wilson the merely musical and declamatory rôles of the performance and to reserve to themselves the business end of the show. * * * We Germans would prefer an honest policy of stand and deliver to a policy of imperial aggrandizement adorned with ethnical and oratorical phrases. But since America has not yet agreed to the pact we shall later see whether America can do anything except make speeches."

The official text of the passage is President Wilson's speech of Saturday, alluded to in the foregoing, as transmitted from Paris Saturday night, reads:

"It (the United States) would feel that it could not take part in guaranteeing those European settlements unless that guarantee involved the continuous superintendence of the peace of the world by the associated nations of the world."

Adriatic Brings 9,111 Bags of Mail.

The White Star liner Adriatic will arrive on Saturday from Liverpool and Brest with 9,111 bags of letters and 1,266 baskets of parcel post, which will be the first mails to arrive from England in two weeks. The Celtic will arrive on Sunday, and the Cedric on Monday, also from Liverpool via Brest, and they may also bring mails.

SHORTAGE OF COAL ALARMS GERMANS

180,000 NOW IDLE IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—The coal shortage throughout Germany is so threatening that for the moment all other questions are overshadowed. The larger factories in many of the cities are already closed, and it will be necessary to shut down many of the biggest plants in Berlin if the situation does not improve within a fortnight.

At present the daily production in the Ruhr district is less than 10,000 tons, against 24,000 during the war and 33,000 in peace times. Upper Silesia is producing 2,000 carloads, as against 11,000 in war times and 14,000 under peace conditions. The reserves are virtually exhausted.

The situation is further aggravated by the lack of enough railway rolling stock to transport even the comparatively small quantities mined. Of 2,100 cars required in the Ruhr district on Saturday only 1,000 could be obtained.

The Minister of Railways has had the greatest difficulty in obtaining locomotives for the transport of coal from Silesia to Berlin, getting only a fraction of the total needed.

In addition to the depletion of rolling stock through deliveries to the Allies, the situation has been complicated by labor conditions. A strike epidemic is prevalent in the coal district and it is impossible to get workmen enough for the mines.

There are large deposits of lignite in the district near Berlin, where the vein is near the surface and can be developed easily and without the dangers usually attendant upon mining. A briquette company has advertised in Berlin for 10,000 laborers for these fields. Only 150 men answered the call, although the city today is giving daily financial support to 180,000 of the unemployed.

The Government is now considering the unemployment question. The present conditions constitute a serious financial burden as well as an economic menace. The daily payments average about eight marks to an individual, and the unemployed, a great proportion of whom did not formerly live in Berlin, prefer to eat their free bread in idleness instead of earning a few more marks daily by working.

Simplicissimus depicts the political aspect of the situation in a cartoon showing an old cobbler at his last, who is quoted as saying: "I'll keep on working even if they do call me counter-revolutionary."

Vorwärts publishes an appeal to the striking coal miners from the Workmen's Council in the Government printing offices. The appeal says:

"Coal Miners! Comrades! Furnish us with fuel—its shortage is preventing the production of paper money in the Government printing office. If the resultant shutting off of the city's gas supply goes on wages for the working men and money for the support of the unemployed cannot be paid out. Therefore, furnish us with coal."

SOCIALISTS LEADING IN PRUSSIAN RETURNS

But Ebert Party's Vote May Not Be Enough for a Clear Majority, It Is Indicated.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 28.—The work of counting the vote cast in the Prussian elections is still incomplete, but partial returns show that the Majority Socialist vote was cut down in the larger towns, according to advices from Berlin.

The Independent Socialists made gains, probably a result of propaganda carried on after the shooting of Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg. It is believed that the Social Democratic Party, led by Philipp Scheidemann, will be the strongest body in the Prussian Parliament. The next party in strength will be the Democrats, with the Christian People's Party, formerly the Centrists, ranking third.

BERLIN, Jan. 27, (Associated Press.)—Sharp, wintry weather, causing an unusually large number of stay-at-homes, may have been responsible for the small vote in the Prussian elections on Sunday as compared with the balloting for the National Assembly a week before.

Lack of polling places forced thousands of voters to stand in line for hours, and this, combined with a letting up of enthusiasm, resulted in a defection among the bourgeois voters, who apparently were satisfied to leave the field to both wings of the Social Democratic Party.

DERNBURG REPUDIATES NOTE.

Says Message to von Papen Before Senate Committee Was Spurious.

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—In the recent investigation by the United States Senate Judiciary Committee into German propaganda, a letter, said to have been signed by Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former German agent in the United States, addressed to Capt. von Papen, former German military attaché in Washington, and said to have been found by the British when they captured German headquarters in Palestine, was read into the record. A copy of the published letter was sent to Dr. Dernburg and he authorized the following statement today:

"The letter ascribed to me is a pure fake from first to last. I never wrote von Papen either this or any other letter. As bearing on the reliability of material placed before the Senatorial committee, I would consider it of importance that this, my categorical denial, be transmitted to the other side."

On Dec. 18 last papers of Captain von Papen were placed on the record of the Senate Judiciary Committee. They included a letter of Dr. Dernburg to von Papen, dated at Berlin, Oct. 18, 1916, in which veiled reference was made regarding German submarine activity against Holland and the Scandinavian countries. What the plan was was not disclosed fully.

PRINCE MAX FOR PRESIDENT.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—Prince Max of Baden, the former German Imperial Chancellor, will be nominated by the German Social Democrats and the German Democrats as their candidate for the Presidency of the German Republic, according to a Berlin dispatch printed in the Neues Journal of Vienna.

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—Two battalions from one of the crack German regiments will leave for Weimar this week. They will be quartered there during the sessions of the National Assembly, and will be at the Government's direct disposal in case of necessity.

WEIMAR, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—The transformation of Weimar from a literary shrine and unimportant provincial town into the seat of the German National Assembly is presenting physical difficulties of no small calibre.

The chief problem is in connecting Weimar with the outside world as the town, which in recent years had partly disappeared from notice as a commercial and railway centre, is wholly unequipped for accommodating an important political gathering and for meeting the attendant demands of newspaper men. At present more than 1,000 telegraph and telephone experts are at work here establishing needed communication.

In spite of these preparations the press of Berlin, which continues to lament the selection of Weimar as the seat of the constituent assembly, fears that the pressure of news will find facilities lacking. It is now proposed to establish aerial communication between Weimar and Berlin, in order to lessen the burden of the wires. Connection also will be established with the wireless station at Nauen for overseas transmission.

LACK OF CASH ENDS REVOLT.

Bremen Rebels Quit When Money Fails—Doctors Strike.

BERLIN, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—The Spartacide domination of Bremen, according to reports to the Tageblatt of Berlin, has come to an end, not through the employment of force, but because the radicals were financially "starved out."

The Spartacides, following their practice, appropriated the various funds of the city at the beginning of their rule. They paid their supporters until the comparatively limited sums were exhausted, when the high salaries and appropriations for the unemployed ceased. The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council then asked the banks for a loan, but met a refusal.

Not being able to obtain any money, the Spartacides capitulated and signed a formal agreement pledging the holding of an election for the Bremen constituent assembly at an early date with all possible safeguards. They agreed that the assembly when it convened should take over all authority. The Spartacides also promised to respect the national laws and court decisions, to protect freedom of speech and of the press and to turn over financial control of the city to a commission of bankers.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The doctors of the German port of Wilhelmshaven, which is in control of the Spartacides, have gone on a strike, according to a Zurich dispatch to the Paris Matin.

REPORT LUDENDORFF RETURNS

Living in Berlin, Where His Services Were Refused.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—General Ludendorff, former Chief Quartermaster General of the German Army, has returned to Berlin, and is living in a small villa in the Grunewald district under an assumed name, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam, because he fears popular demonstrations.

The General is said to have placed his services at the disposal of the Government, which, it is added, declined them with thanks.

General Ludendorff fled to Sweden in the turmoil after the fall of the Hohenzollerns. A Stockholm dispatch on Jan. 10 said that he had requested and obtained from the Swedish Government permission to remain in Sweden for one month.

A report from Berlin on Jan. 21 said that Ludendorff was then in Pomerania.

NEW GERMAN ARMY GROWS.

COBLENZ, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—According to estimates made by intelligence officers of the American Third Army based upon reports from all parts of Germany, the organized German Army now in various depots numbers from 300,000 to 500,000 men.

The reports indicate that these soldiers are of such morale that they would hardly be available for operations of any extent. The number of men in the army, reports reaching Coblenz indicate, is decreasing rapidly.

The new volunteer army numbers between 100,000 and 300,000 men of doubtful morale, as they have not yet been organized fully nor tested fairly. The volunteer army which is being organized for the purpose of stopping Polish and Bolshevist invasions of German territory has 40,000 men in the region of Frankfort-on-the-Oder. Many volunteer battalions also are reported moving eastward.

The organized German Army consists of the classes of 1898 and 1899, less some men discharged because they live in occupied territory, less large numbers of deserters, and less some discharged according to demobilization plans. The officers and non-commissioned officers of this army intend to remain permanently in the service.

Evidence is said to be conclusive that the troops now in the depots have assumed the attitude of drawing their pay and doing as little as possible until they are discharged.

In arriving at the number of men in the organized army, the troops which have been unable to return from the eastern front are disregarded, as they generally come from the elder classes and are being discharged as soon as they reach Germany. No account has been taken of the naval units, which are demoralized and disbanding rapidly.

ALIBI FOR OUR SOLDIERS.

One Paris Robbery Attributed to Them Committed by French.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—At least one of the crimes attributed by Paris newspapers to renegade Americans in the city has turned out not to be either of American planning or execution.

The case was that of the theft of an automobile attributed by the Intransigeant to two Americans who were said to be making a specialty of this kind of crime. The men who stole the automobile have been arrested. There were three of them, and one proved to be a deserter from the French Army and the others French civilian accomplices.

REPEALS BIG MONEY GRANTS

Bill Passed by House Cancels $15,000,000,000 Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Without a dissenting vote, the House tonight passed the Emergency Deficiency bill with its rider, repealing appropriations of $7,179,156,900 and authorizations of $8,221,029,290, made during the war for the Army and Navy Departments.

The House adopted an amendment by Representative Dyer of Missouri, Republican, prohibiting expenditure of any part of the deficiency appropriation of $290,200,000 until all former Government employes, now in military service, are restored to their old positions in the departments.

For Naval Repair Station at Boston.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Plans for building about the Commonwealth drydock at Boston a great joint naval and merchant marine repair station were discussed today by Secretary Daniels and officials of the Shipping Board. It is proposed to construct smaller docks as well as shops at the site of the basin bought by the navy from Massachusetts.

EXPOSES BOLSHEVIST MISRULE IN RUSSIA

No Order, No Industry, No Schools Now, Says "Grandmother of Revolution."

APPEALS FOR WAR ORPHANS

Says Reds Get Support by Controlling Food Supply—Denounces Soviets.

Catherine Breshkovskaya, living witness and embodiment of half a century of struggle by intellectual and forward-looking Russia against reactionary and Czarist Russia, arrived in New York yesterday morning, ending a journey that began at Omsk. The "Little Grandmother of the Revolution," or "Babushka," as she is known to millions, was received at the Grand Central Station with flowers and cheers by a crowd of several hundred persons, who included a number of friends she had not seen in fourteen years. When her friends were able to tear her from the enthusiastic throng she was taken to the Henry Street Settlement. There she gave several interviews, and, in spite of her fatigue and her 73 years, she answered a rapid fire of questions about Russia, until her interviewers ran out of queries.

Mme. Breshkovskaya is opposed to the Bolshevists. She told a story of Bolshevist destruction, and of the plans of the Socialist-Revolutionists, the party of which she is a member. She wanted it understood that socialism and bolshevism could not be classed together. She was emphatic in her assertion that all of Russia would oppose intervention, if intervention by other nations was carried on for selfish motives. When asked how long the masses of the Russians would stand for the Bolshevist régime, she replied that Russia had lived for 300 years under the yoke of the Czars.

The work nearest her heart, said the little white haired women, who has spent the best part of forty years in Russian prisons, is the relief of the four million orphans of Russia, made helpless and homeless waifs through the war, the revolution, and the Bolshevist régime. She wants to tell the story of these waifs to America, and on Feb. 10 at Carnegie Hall she will be tendered a reception by the Civic Forum and the Friends of Russian Freedom, and will there make her appeal.

Next to the relief of the orphans, Russia needs books and teachers, she said. Supplies should be forwarded to her country, she added, and this as soon as possible. Agricultural implements, machinery, railroads, commodities of all kinds must go forward, she said, and Russia would give in exchange the treasures of the earth.

"Are you tired?" asked a solicitous friend, while she was being plied with questions at the Henry Street Settlement.

"Tired? I have been fighting for fifty years. Why should I be tired now?"

Bolshevists Not Socialists.

"Why do you American people think that the Boleshvists and the Socialists are the same?" she asked. "There is the greatest difference between them, and the Socialists are now at war with the Bolshevists and struggling against them. And why do you make the great mistake of dividing the Bolshevists from the Soviets, when the Soviets are the children of the Bolshevists in Russia today? During the first revolution the Soviets were needed, for there was no other possible organization of the people. They had no political liberty at that time, and we were very glad to have the Government in the hands of the people. But it was an organ for the moment only. Now the people have political liberty, and it should be possible for them to have a democratic constitutional government which would represent all the people.

"The people of Russia were freed and masters of life for three months following the revolution of 1917. They not only had the land, but they had the industries, only they were not able to handle them and now everything is gone.

"The rule of Trotzky and Lenine has been very bad. If you would only see the disaster their policy has brought to Russia. Under them Russia has been destroyed. There is no order, no industry, no education. The schools, the colleges, the universities, the libraries, the books, all are destroyed. And I am in America hoping to get thousands and thousands of books to send to the peasants, so that they may be able to learn to read. We need educators and we need railroads.

"The Soviets are not elected by the people. For the most part their members are sent from Petrograd and Moscow—Bolshevists, who act as dictators, and nobody can oppose them. They are Red Guards and Letts and German prisoners. Magyars and Chinese, who came in during the war to work in the industries, are still there, but they no longer have work, and they make up the troops in Moscow. The workers and peasants are against the Soviets—all except the armed groups composed exclusively of Bolshevists. And that armed group is made up of men out of work, who can get no food unless they join the Bolshevist army, which will give food only to its memoers.

"It is difficult to speak of Russia unless you understand Russia. So few do. Today everything on the surface is destroyed, but in the ground there is unlimited wealth; the natural resources are inexhaustible.

Bolshevist Propaganda.

"When Russia was freed from the yoke of the Czar we were as free as the birds that soar—free from the bureaucrats. It was a splendid Government that was started in Petrograd by Free Russia. It was planned to elect a Deputy for every 200,000 of the population. All over 20 or 21 were given the right to vote, excepting criminals. However, as early as June, 1917, Bolshevist propaganda swept the land. As soon as the Czar was overthrown the Bolsheviki started the cry, 'You will never get freedom. You will never get land if you wait for the Constitutional Assembly. Take it now.'

"They said there would be no more war under Bolshevist rule. The soldiers in Russia were glad to hear this, as they were tired of the war. They also promised an abundance of food. They said they had been promised food from other countries—from Germany."

Declaring her opposition to military intervention by the Allies, Mme. Breshkovskaya said that America must understand that an illiterate people, 80 per cent. of whom cannot read and write, who have suffered under the régime of the Czars, cannot make a "smooth" revolution. She believes the Russians will work out their own problems, but it will take years. The Russians in the towns taken by the Czechoslovaks, she said, are grateful to the Czechs for their deliverance. In telling of her escape from Bolshevist Russia after it had been reported that she had met death at the hands of the Bolsheviki, Mme. Breshkovskaya said that friends hid her for two months from the Bolsheviki in Petrograd and for six months in Moscow. Thence she was spirited away by other friends and made a great detour of the Bolshevist lines from Moscow to the Ural front. Thence she reached Omsk and traveled to Vladivostok. Her party, the Socialist revolutionist, she explained, stands for the convocation of the Constituent Assembly under a system of elective representation.

"Russia is corrupt," she continued. "It has been that way for two years. You cannot expect different conditions when there is no religion and no education."

At the Grand Central Station at 9:40 yesterday morning, when Mme. Breshkovskaya arrived from Chicago, the crowd which awaited her included Alice Stone Blackwell of Boston, Lillian D. Wald, head of the Henry Street Settlement, Mrs. Henry It. Massey, General K. M. Oberuchoff, Governor of Kief under Kerensky, and many Russian revolutionists and American friends of Russia. Helen Dudley, a social worker of Boston, who accompanied "Babushka," said that the enthusiastic welcome at the station was the same as greeted the aged exile in every city where she stopped from Seattle to the East. Several of her admirers thrust flowers into Mme. Breshkovskaya's hands and fought for a close glimpse of the brave little figure. Her friends bundled her into a taxicab, and she found herself shortly in the Henry Street Settlement, where, under the photograph of Prince Peter Kropotkin, a fellow revolutionist, she told her story.

AMERICAN OFFICERS SEE SLAV-AUSTRIAN CLASH

Germans Welcoming Them in Styria Fired on by Jugoslavs, Who Kill 5, Wound 50.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 28, (via Geneva.)—Colonel Sherman Miles and two officers of the American Mission today made an airship excursion to Marburg, German Styria, which is occupied by Jugoslavs. The Americans were enthusiastically welcomed by the German inhabitants.

General Maister, commander of the Jugoslav troops, was incensed by the demonstrations and ordered the troops to shoot, killing five and wounding fifty persons.

GREECE MAY BUY CHASERS.

Would Add Some of Our Small Craft to Her Navy.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Greek naval authorities have been examining American submarine chasers which have been in the Adriatic Sea, with a view to their purchase. The Greek Navy already has two former American battleships, and experts in the service favor a further augmentation of the fleet wit. American craft.

A fleet of thirty-six chasers was sent to the Adriatic to co-operate with the cruisers Olympia and Birmingham and eight destroyers in carrying out America's rôle in the execution of the provisions of the armistice with Austria. The chasers are now at Malta for overhauling, but in the meantime the Greek Government is making overtures for their purchase. These proposals may be entertained, as the close of the war makes it probable that there will be little further need of the chasers, which are particularly suited for navigation in shallow waters like those of the Greek Archipelago.

WANTS DANIELS OUSTED.

Mann Says He Should Be Impeached for Radio Purchases.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—James R. Mann, speaking in the House today, attacked Secretary Daniels for purchasing wireless systems, saying the Secretary had violated the law and "ought to be impeached."

Secretary Daniels recently told the House Merchant Marine Committee that the shore stations and radio ship sets of the Marconi Wireless and Federal Telegraph Company had been bought for about $3,000,000 from funds carried in the last naval appropriation bill. In his speech today Mr. Mann declared that not a line of the appropriation bill authorized the purchases.

"Utterly regardless of law," said Mr. Mann, "in violation of the law for which he ought to be impeached and removed from office—and it is not unlikely that he may be—he has gone ahead and spent money out of the appropriation for the purchase of radio systems.

"He came before this Congress and asked authority to make these purchases and was refused. If he had authority he did not need ask Congress for it, and the failure of Congress to legislate on the subject is a refusal of authority."

Secretary Daniels declined to discuss Mr. Mann's statements further than to say that before the land radio stations were taken over he and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, with the department's Solicitor, had examined very carefully into the question of the department's authority to act.

WATSON FAVORS LEAGUE.

Indiana Senator, However, Fears Interference with Internal Affairs.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29.—Senator Watson of Indiana, speaking here tonight at a McKinley celebration, said he was in favor of a League of Nations if it would not interfere with the rights of the United States to conduct its internal affairs.

"I am in favor of a League of Nations for arbitration and conciliation," he said. "I am in favor of a league consisting of the present Allies that shall enforce the peace of the world, that shall permit other nations to join it from time to time and thus augment its use to increase its authority, but that shall permit each nation to retain its sovereignty and to manage its own internal and domestic affairs."

Turning to what he termed the approaching power of socialism, Senator Watson said:

"There are now over 300 publications in the United States advocating the doctrines of socialism. A large number of our theoretical college professors are bowing at the shrine of socialism. These people frankly say they are opposed to our form of government and that they intend to overthrow it just as soon as they acquire sufficient power. They ought rigorously to be suppressed."

He also criticised the management of the war.

$86,590,000,000 DEBTS.

Sir Edward Holden Estimates Liabilities of Three Powers Only.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Sir Edward Holden, presiding at a meeting of the London Joint Stock City and Midland Bank, estimated that the amount of the national debts of Great Britain, Germany, and the United States at the end of the war would be respectively £6,418,000,000, £8,300,000,000, and £2,600,000,000.

The figures given for Germany do not include the debts of the various States.

STOPS BUYING GERMAN FOOD

American Troops Allowed to Obtain Only Vegetables in Coblenz.

COBLENZ, Jan. 28, (Associated Press.)—A new order has been issued from headquarters, prohibiting American mess officers from buying any food from Germans, with the exception of cabbage and a few other vegetables. This is to meet any contention which may be made by the Germans as to food supplies.

A few Germans continue to request food from the Americans, some of them contending that the latter buy articles in stores and from farmers at prices too high for the Germans to pay.

Gen. De Wet Gets No Passport.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 29.—The South African Government has refused passports to General Christian de Wet and Pieter Grobler, a grandson of President Kruger, members of a Nationalist deputation appointed by the Bloemfontein Congress to go to Paris. The purpose of the proposed journey was to lay before the Peace Congress proposals for an independent South Africa.

RUSSIAN REDS WIN SUCCESSES

Government had no real policy toward Russia, and asserted that, while the American Government had refused to deal with the "awful" Soviet Government, it last year used "the anarchists of New York to communicate with the anarchists of Petrograd," although the United States Government had refused to respond favorably to a proposal from the Bolshevist Government early in March, 1918.

Protection of Allied Supplies.

Senator Johnson characterized as mere pretense the declaration made by Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and other spokesmen of the Administration, that the real purpose of American intervention on the Archangel front was the protection of allied supplies. He declared that the Administration had made no real response to the questions he had asked regarding Russia in previous speeches.

"No answer has been made," he asserted, "because the implication in every question is known by the department to be true. Men are in this country today who can establish every single fact suggested, and if this body really desires information, if they wish to tell the mothers, fathers, and wives of the men who are freezing in Russia today what the facts are, they have at their disposal the evidence, and it can be brought before them on briefest notice."

The real purpose of the intervention of the American Government with troops on the Archangel front, Senator Johnson asserted, was to make "conjunction with the Omsk Government and perfect the ring of steel which we had thrown around interior Russia, and which was starving innocent women and children."

"If you favor armed intervention," he said, "it is obvious that the scale upon which it has been undertaken is too small to accomplish lasting results. It has become painfully clear in the last few days that by the present intervention we merly hazard the lives of our men. It is equally clear that the people of England, and our own people, will not tolerate intervention on a larger scale. Even if you favor intervention, you should for the protection of the lives of our soldiers insist that those there—few in number and their position courting disaster—be immediately withdrawn.

"If you favor intervention, why do you not on this floor, by resolution or otherwise, say so? If you believe in war with Russia, why not introduce an appropriate resolution and permit Congress to vote upon it in accordance with the Constitution? Upon what theory can you justify war without affirmative action by Congress? That we're in an actual state of war with Russia the recent ominous news from there demonstrates only too plainly.

"A Miserable Misadventure."

"I reiterate that England is under no illusion respecting our purpose in Russia and that France frankly proclaims it. Why did we enter Russia? I answer, for no very good reason, and we have remained there for no reason at all. What is our policy toward Russia? I answer we have no policy. We have engaged in a miserable misadventure, stultifying our professions and setting at naught our promises. We have punished no guilty; we have brought but misery, starvation, and death to the innocent. We have garnered none of the fruits of the victory of war, but suffer the odium and infamy of undeclared warfare. We have sacrificed our own blood to no purpose."

Senator Johnson read to the Senate a letter from Colonel Raymond Robins, formerly prominently identified with American Red Cross work in Russia, challenging statements of fact regarding Russia made by George Creel of the Committee on Public Information in a current magazine. In the Robins letter the statements are made that President Wilson's speeches were printed on Bolshevist Government presses, distributed by Government frank, and posted on the walls of Petrograd by the Bolshevist posting service. The money for this work was drawn on the O K of the Bolshevist Government, and the allied military missions, according to Colonel Robins, were helping to train the Bolshevist Red Army last April.

Colonel Robins's letter asserts that Edgar Sisson, one of the agents of the Creel committee, who was responsible for the Bolshevist exposé made in the documents given out last year by George Creel, "fled from Petrograd last March, shouting that the Germans would take Petrograd, in collusion with the Bolsheviki, within a few days, while American Red Cross agents remained in Petrograd and were still there in May, 1918, feeding starving children" under Bolshevist protection.

Colonel Robins's letter also asserts that "Mr. Bullard and all the American members of the Committee on Public Information in Russia" fled from Moscow on May 5 last year and went on board an English ice-breaker at Archangel, "dressed in English uniforms," where they remained several weeks, "while the American Red Cross was doing business as usual in Moscow, and English, French, and Japanese were still working for their Governments" under Bolshevist protection.

Another exhibit submitted to the Senate by Senator Johnson was a letter from Thomas D. Thacher of New York, who was a member of the American Red Cross mission in Russia, in support of the Senator's statement that early in March, 1918, when Germans were advancing, the French, British, and the Russian Soviets entered into a "mutual arrangement" for the protection of the Murmansk district. In his letter Mr. Thacher declares that in March of last year a British vessel fired a salute to the Russian flag, the only flag visible being a "red flag."

Proposals From the Bolsheviki.

Senator Johnson also placed in the record matter which, he asserted, had not been published in this country, for the purpose of showing that in March of last year the Soviet Government had officially presented to the Allies certain questions, "favorable answers to which every man then in Russia agreed would prevent a ratification of the Brest-Litovsk treaty by the All-Russian Soviet Congress."

Senator Johnson expressly disclaimed any desire to be regarded as defending in any degree the Soviet power of Lenine and Trotzky and declared their "insane ideas" no sane man could endorse. The document which Senator Johnson read and which he declared had not been published in this country, he said had been sent by the Soviet Government to the Allies as follows:

"In case (a) the All-Russian Congress of the Soviets will refuse to ratify the peace treaty with Germany, or (b) if the German Government, breaking the peace treaty, will renew the offensive in order to continue its robbers' raid, or (c) if the Soviet Government will be forced by the actions of Germany to renounce the peace treaty—before or after its ratification—and to renew hostilities—in all of those cases it is very important for the military and political plans of the Soviet power for replies to be given to the following questions:

"1. Can the Soviet Government rely on the support of the United States of North America, Great Britain, and France in its struggle against Germany?

"2. What kind of support could be furnished in the nearest future, and on what conditions—military equipment, transportation, supplies, living necessities?

"3. What kind of support would be furnished particularly and especially by the United States?

"Should Japan—in consequence of an open or tacit understanding with Germany or without such an understanding—attempt to seize Vladivostok and the Eastern Siberian Railway, which would threaten to cut off Russia from the Pacific Ocean and would greatly impede the concentration of Soviet troops toward the East about the Urals—in such case what steps would be taken by the other Allies, particularly and especially by the United States, to prevent a Japanese landing on our Far East and to insure uninterrupted communication with Russia through the Siberian route?

"In the opinion of the Government of the United States to which extent—under the above-mentioned circumstances—would aid be assured from Great Britain through Murmansk and Archangel? What steps could the Government of Great Britain undertake in order to assure this aid and thereby to undermine the foundation of the rumors of the hostile plans against Russia on the part of Great Britain in the nearest future?

"All these questions are conditioned with the self-understood assumption that the internal and foreign policies of the Soviet Government will continue to be directed in accord with the principles of international Socialism and that the Soviet Government retains its complete independence of all non-Socialist Governments."

Received in Silence.

Commenting on this offer, Senator Johnson made these statements:

"The men who were then in Russia familiar with the situation, including the representative of England and the representative of the United States, advised the Governments to respond favorably. I have copies of the telegrams which were sent at that time to different Governments. But the communication was received apparently in indignant and contemptuous silence.

"When last I addressed the Senate upon this subject I asked certain questions of the Government," Senator Johnson continued. "No answer has been made, of course, to questions that I asked, because the implication in every question is known by the Department to be true. Men are in this country today who can establish every single fact suggested, and if this body, or the Foreign Relations Committee, really desires information, if they wish to tell the mothers and the fathers and the wives of the men who are freezing in Russia today just what the facts are, they have at their disposal the evidence, and it can be brought before them upon the briefest notice.

"There is a heavy reckoning some day for those who have been responsible for this wicked and this useless course in Russia. And the heaviest responsibility, the wrong which can never be atoned, is the shedding of American blood in Russia. It is to this phase I desire to arouse the Congress, and to which, if I had the power and my voice would carry, I would arouse the people of the nation. It is of American boys and American blood I am thinking. I would not give one American life in Russia for all the Bolsheviki spawned by centuries of tyranny and mad with the lust of a ruthless ephemeral power."

QUITS MISSION OF ADMIRALS

Italian Member Disagrees with Allied Colleagues Over Dalmatia.

PARIS, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—A commission consisting of four Admirals, representing Great Britain, the United States, France, and Italy, has been in session at Fiume inquiring into the occupation of various forts along the eastern coast of the Adriatic.

This occupation came to the attention of the meeting of Premiers held in London early in December prior to the arrival of President Wilson. It was decided to ask four Admirals to make an inquiry with a view to determining the merits of respective claims being put forward in that region. Rear Admiral Bullard was chosen as the American representative, but he has now taken charge of wireless communication between Paris and America. He has been succeeded on the commission by Rear Admiral Albert P. Niblack, whose headquarters are at Spoleto.

Meetings of the commission have been suspended indefinitely, it is said, owing to the withdrawal of the Italian representative, who is understood not to be in entire accord with his colleagues as to the desirability of the inquiry.

CUPID'S SUCCESS IN A. E. F.

Expected 200,000 Soldiers Will Stay in France, Most Marrying French Girls.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—At least 200,000 Americans now in the army will remain in France, according to a statement made by a prominent member of the American colony in Paris and quoted by the Intransigeant today. The majority will remain, it is said, because they wish to marry French women, and the rest because they are charmed with French life and see great opportunities here for American energy.

MEMORIALS TO ROOSEVELT.

Hicks of New York Offers Bill for a $5,000,000 Museum.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Memorials to Theodore Roosevelt were proposed by two members of the House of Representatives today in bills which they introduced. One bill, presented by Mr. Hicks of New York, appropriates $5,000,000 for a museum of history and the arts, and the other, offered by Mr. Smith of Idaho, provides for a memorial or statue costing $250,000.

The museum suggested by Mr. Hicks would be situated on the north side of the Mall, between Seventh and Tenth Streets N. W., Washington. The building would be of granite and erected by the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, who would have future care of it. The plans under the bill are to be approved by the Fine Arts Commission.

TWO BILLS TO AID SOLDIERS.

Civil Service Preferment and Homestead Measures Advanced.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A bill giving preference to soldiers, sailors, and marines in Government Civil Service employment and providing for immediate reinstatement of employes who resigned to enter military service, was ordered favorably reported today by the House Committee on Civil Service Reform. Men who were wounded would receive preferential treatment.

Legislation, urged by Secretary Lane to modify homestead law privileges in favor of soldiers who served in the war or on the Mexican border, was approved today by the Senate Public Lands Committee and reported favorably. The House Committee has taken like action on a similar bill, which gives credit in obtaining homesteads for time spent in military service.

BRITISH STRIKERS WIN CONCESSIONS

Employers Grant a 48-Hour Week to All Road and Transport Workers.

YIELD TO NOTTINGHAM MEN

Glasgow Workers Parade and Threaten Strong Measures to Enforce Demands.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Amelioration of the strike situation came today through a concession by the employers of a forty-eight-hour week to all road and transport workers, which resulted from a conference.

The Nottingham miners' strike has been settled by the concession of the principal demands of the miners.

The coal miners of Fifeshire, Scotland, by a majority of 700 out of 16,000 votes cast, voted today to return to work. The men, who number 24,000, went on strike Tuesday.

On the other hand, the miners in many of the collieries in West Scotland have struck in sympathy with the men who threw down their tools on the Clyde. This action was taken in spite of their leaders' protests.

On the Clyde the situation has grown worse, and there were stormy scenes at Glasgow as a sequel to the refusal of the Labor Minister to intervene in the disputes. Thousands of strikers after a mass meeting paraded the streets, and after an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the municipal electricians to join the strike sent a deputation to the Lord Provost, warning him that unless he secured an answer to their demands that the Government intervene in the dispute by Friday unconstitutional methods might be adopted for enforcing their demands.

It was announced that the strikers in the Clyde district were estimated to number 70,000. Almost all the big shipyards and engineering works there are on the verge of closing down or are carrying on their work with small forces.

Want to Recast Labor Unions.

The strikers say that their object is to "remodel trades unionism," and to establish on a national basis the policy of "direct action," of which the present strike is an example.

The leaders of the Glasgow strikers are said to be trying to link the strike on the Clyde with those in London and Belfast, notwithstanding the differences in the aims of these movements.

The Belfast Strike Committee, which wields immense power, has taken upon itself, with the involuntary acquiescence of the civic authorities, some of the attributes of an "industrial soviet," the Belfast correspondent of The Manchester Guardian reports. The committee, it is added, is peremptorily discouraging violence.

There was much rioting in the dark streets of Belfast last night. Many plate glass windows in stores along prominent streets were smashed and some of the contents of the stores were stolen. There was considerable wanton stone throwing, many windows being broken. The police frequently charged with their clubs upon the rioters.

Accuses Leaders of Weakness.

Weakness and subordination of convictions to their personal interests is charged against many of the trades union leaders by Food Controller George H. Roberts, in an interview printed in The Mail today. He says that this is one of the chief causes of the "present anarchy" in the industrial circles of Great Britain.

Mr. Roberts, who is a veteran labor leader and was recently Minister of Labor, said:

"It is time that union leaders make a definite and determined stand. If subordinates refuse to honor their leaders' agreements, the leaders must resign.

"I know many union leaders who are very seriously alarmed by the probable effect of the demands now being made, regardless of the corresponding need for an improved organization and a higher efficiency among workers, but their position of dependence prevents them from taking a lead which they know to be vital to the national interests. They know that anything detrimental to national interests must ultimately mean disaster to the whole working class, but they do not dare to speak their minds.

"There must be a fight between revolution and reconstruction. If young bloods are allowed to smash the trades union organizations, we will have to face a long period of industrial chaos and a long process of disillusionment."

BRITISH HOME ARMY TO BE SENT TO RHINE

Occupation Force to Comprise 900,000 Men—Ranks Open to Volunteers.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The regulations governing the British armies of occupation are dealt with in an official statement issued tonight by Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War. The statement says:

"The British military commanders are of the opinion that 900,000 men are sufficient for this transition period. All the rest will be demobilized as fast as possible. The new armies will begin forming Feb. 1 and will be composed, in the first instance, of those who have enlisted since Jan. 1, 1916, and who do not exceed 37 years of age. Volunteers will be accepted for one year's service from among men otherwise entitled to release, while sixty-nine battalions of young soldiers now on home service will be sent immediately to help guard the Rhine bridgeheads and release the older men.

"The men of the new armies will be paid bonuses ranging from 10 shillings and sixpence per week for privates to 42 shillings for Colonel, in addition to the ordinary army pay. Leave will be granted on as generous a scale as possible.

"The occupation armies will be the home army, the army of the Rhine, the army of the Middle East, a detachment of the Far North, and garrisons of the Crown colonies and India.

"These arrangements seem to be the best devisable for the year 1919. During this year, however, we must remake the old British regular army so as to provide, on a voluntary basis, overseas garrisons and foreign stations."

In connection with the foregoing the Ministry of Labor announces that no further application for release of individual officers or men on pivotal or special grounds can be considered.

BRITISH HONOR FOR MORGAN

Receives "Honorary Freedom and Livery" of the Goldsmith Company.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—In recognition of his services to the Allies, J. P. Morgan today received a grant of "the honorary freedom and livery" of the Goldsmith Company. He is the first American and the first banker since 1795 to be so honored. King George and Foreign Secretary Balfour are the only other honorary freemen at present.

Many traditions of the company's 600 years of existence were carried out in the ceremonies in the imposing Goldsmiths' Hall when the resolutions, contained in a silver casket, were presented to Mr. Morgan. Speeches were made by the Earl of Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, and Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Lord Reading laid emphasis on Mr. Morgan's aid in floating the $500,000,000 loan for England in 1915.

The Goldsmith Company, which is semi-official in that its hall marks of gold and silver are according to Government standards, had its inception as a guild of gold and silver craftsmen. However, it has grown into an organization of England's most influential financiers, although never losing its connection with the gold and silver trade.

How often have you said

"I will make my will and provide for the future independence of my wife and family"—but you have put it off from day to day. You are still saying "I will make my will."

The best day is today, and the first thing today is to have your lawyer prepare your will. And while he is doing that, tell him to make this Company your executor and trustee.

MAY HOLD UP LOAN UNTIL END OF LENT

Treasury Considers Postponing Liberty Bond Campaign Until April 21.

OPPOSE 5 PER CENT. RATE

Officials Inclined to Keep It as Low as Possible to Protect the Previous Issues.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Because the Lenten season this year does not end until April 20, the Treasury is considering postponing the opening of the next Liberty Loan campaign from April 6, as tentatively planned, to April 21. A decision has not been reached.

No attempt has been made as yet by Secretary Glass or his advisers to settle on the interest rate or other terms of the loan, it was stated officially today. Whatever the terms may be, they will accord with the principle of maintaining the market price of preceding issues, officials declared. This is one factor tending to induce the Treasury to keep the interest rate on the Fifth Loan as low as possible, since it is felt that a rate as high as 5 per cent. would have a depreciating effect on preceding issues.

Further tax exemptions on bonds already outstanding, their acceptance in payment of certain forms of taxes in future years, or conversion into securities bearing higher interest rates, are means which might be adopted to maintain the prices of outstanding bonds.

Bankers are urging the Treasury to make the interest rate on the next loan 4¼ or 5 per cent., but officials are inclined to keep it lower if possible. They rely strongly on the patriotic impulses of small bond buyers to "bring the boys home" and "finish the job." These phrases probably will be adopted as campaign slogans.

Railroad employes were cautioned today by Director General Hines not to sell Liberty Bonds below the current market price, as published daily in newspapers, and were urged to retain the bonds if possible. If employes find it necessary to sell, he said, they should make arrangements with a local bank, which would charge only a small fee.

The warning was prompted by reports that Liberty Bond "scalpers" were operating extensively among railway employes and other workmen.

Favor a Five-Year Loan.

The local Liberty Loan Committee is receiving a multiplicity of suggestions with regard to floating the next bond offering, and there seems to be a gradual crystallization of sentiment in favor of giving the smaller out-of-town banks the opportunity of suggesting to the Treasury Department the rates which will be most acceptable to them. This attitude is not a general one in the financial district, but it is growing in favor because many of the heads of the big downtown institutions knew that they are in a better position to accept terms suggested by the small banks than the latter would be in respect to suggestions coming from the big banks.

Few of the plans agree on all points, but most of them indicate that the new loans should be floated on a basis that will prove particularly attractive to the man in the street as well as to the man of wealth and institutions which have big sums to invest. It is also generally admitted that the new loan cannot be based upon patriotism alone, nor on business alone. Bankers and bond men realize that to be a big success there must be a judicial mixture of business and patriotism in the floating of the loan, and many of them are urging such a mixture.

The conservative banker feels that the Government should not have to pay an interest rate too high for its credit position, while there are those who contend that the success of the loan depends on just such a rate.

One of the recent plans circulated in banking channels called for the issuance of a 4 per cent. tax exempt bond, running for five years, into which could be converted certain portions of the preceding bond issues. This found considerable favor in some quarters, as the conversion suggestion would automatically stiffen the preceding bond issues, but was not so well thought of by those who advocate that the issue be popularized by making a concession to the bond buyers of comparatively small means.

Another specific proposal was for a five-year 4½ per cent. bond, also tax exempt, which could be used in part for the payment to a stipulated percentage of increased taxes. This has not been generally considered as appropriate, because a 4½ per cent. issue exempt from taxation would be more expensive for the Government than is necessary.

One proposal called for a 4¾ per cent. bond to mature in five years with all subscriptions above $50,000 subject to tax, while another suggested an issue with all subscriptions up to $5,000 tax exempt, and yielding a larger return to the small subscriber than to the large one. In this suggestion provision was made for the conversion of all subscriptions to preceding bond issues up to the amount of $5,000 into the new short-term bond.

One group of bankers thought that a straight 5 per cent. five-year bond subject to all taxes was the best method to pursue, but this did not meet with widespread approval on the part of other bankers and individuals.

On one thing Wall Street is quite generally agreed. That is a five-year issue. The majority of the men who are paving the way for the new loan want a short-term offering, many of the out-of-town banks have indicated that they favor a short-time issue, and the consensus of opinion seems to be that Secretary of the Treasury Glass has a five-year offering in mind.

Loan Money Plentiful.

Notwithstanding that today is the date for the final payment on the Fourth Liberty Loan, on which there is approximately $400 000 000 due, and that a payment is also due today on the latest issue of $600 000,000 of Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness, issued in anticipation of the next Liberty Loan, there was a surprising abundance of bank money in Wall Street yesterday. Banks appeared to have more funds than at any other time in some weeks.

The demand for bankers' acceptances was especially brisk. Local banks and out-of-town institutions both participated in this demand, and by the close of the day it was said that dealers had been virtually denuded of all the paper they have been carrying recently. No exact amount of the volume of the business done is available, but some dealers said that they were convinced that at least $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, and possibly more, of good paper had been taken out of the market by the purchasing banks.

In addition to the supply of money for investment in acceptances, there was an unusually large amount offered for call and time loans on collateral security. On the Stock Exchange the rate for demand loans eased off slightly, and brokers reported that money lenders were more anxious to negotiate time loans on securities than they have been in some weeks.

PREPARE FOR VICTORY LOAN.

Committee Asks Citizens to Tear Down Posters of Other Loans.

The local Liberty Loan Committee has sent forth a call to all citizens to clear the country's decks for the new Victory Liberty Loan by tearing down all of the old posters which remain from other subscription drives. In asking for the removal of the old signs the committee explains that the appeal for the final loan must be a direct one, and that the old posters might prove a distraction to the potential Victory bond buyer.

It has been estimated that there are approximately 100 000 of these tattered signs on fences and buildings throughout the greater city, and the committee urges that all property owners tear them down to make way for the new loan posters, when the new campaign gets under way in the Spring.

MRS. INCH PROTECTS KIN.

Woman Accused by Herrman Says She Is Politician's Daughter.

Mrs. Betty Inch, on trial yesterday before Justice Weeks and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on the charge of attempting to extort $315 from Eugene P. Herrman of 675 Riverside Drive, refused to tell the prosecutor what he wanted to know concerning her family history. Mrs. Inch, who had been in the Tombs Prison over night because her bail of $5,000 had been recalled, in reply to questions, said:

"I shall not mention the names of my father and mother nor will I drag any of my relatives into this case. I am the daughter of a well-known politician and I came not far from New York."

Mrs. Inch was questioned concerning an affidavit she had made involving a naval officer and a woman in a divorce case, who had been visitors to Mrs. Inch's apartment. She admitted receiving $250 for this, but said she had signed the statement for an attorney because she feared a raid on her apartment. The court ordered the names of the persons involved to go in the record as "Mrs. X." and "Ensign Y."

APPROVES PROXY MARRIAGES

Judge Advocate General Holds Them to be Permissible in Army.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—In an opinion rendered today in the case of Wales T. Hawes of Cambridge, Mass., a member of the American Expeditionary Force, the Judge Advocate General of the army held that the military authorities in France might facilitate the marriage by proxy of soldiers abroad to their sweethearts in the United States where such marriages did not contravene State statutes. A previous opinion had disapproved such marriages. Hawes was married to Miss Annie Hiscock of Roxbury, Mass.

The Judge Advocate General, declaring such contracts permissible, said the best form in such cases was a single contract signed by both parties. He added:

"It is no doubt to the interest of society that marriage should exist between those who sincerely desire it, and much sympathy is felt for those who have been prevented from marrying in the ordinary way by the exigencies of military duty."

MEN'S CLOTHES TO BE SNUG

Form-Fitting Garments for 1919 Decreed by Tailors' Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 29.—Form-fitting clothes will be the vogue this year, the National Association of Merchant Tailors, which is discussing styles in annual convention here, has decreed, and some of the delegates went so far as to suggest that mature men of a plump, if not corpulent tendency, will need stays to wear the new styles.

According to the terms of the trade, "masculine styles for the ensuing twelve months are to be sprightly without conspicuousness, dashing without verging on extremes, youthful in temperament and inspirational. In place of the inevitable Summer flannels of the past, men will wear recreational raiment fashioned of silk, fine linens, and other delicate fabrics." Even the prosaic sack suit of business is to have a "swing" imparted to it by a high waist line and a long vent back.

A New York exhibitor shattered evening clothes traditions in the Fashion Show today with a double-breasted dinner jacket, which was pronounced to be one of the most artistic offerings in the exhibit, but it is for the slim man only.

Sharp's Successor Still in Doubt.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Appointment of a new Ambassador to France to succeed William Graves Sharp is still undecided upon. President Wilson has offered the post to a man who has not yet signified whether he will accept it. This man, it may be said, is not Vance McCormick.

FAIL TO HECKLE BECK AT MEETING

had managed to find strategic seats in the orchestra discovered that they would be unable to break up the meeting. Chairman Jonas of the Victory Committee began his speech outlining its plans. The soldiers who had moved their seats to the front row because, as they had told others, they thought they would have a better chance of yelling Mr. Beck down, went to sleep and remained in slumber through the remainder of the meeting.

"The Brooklyn Celebration Committee determined that it would have no part in any controversies that might be occurring in Manhattan," said Chairman Jonas. "We were not especially interested in the membership of any other committee, and we had no quarrel with any one. We desired to give a reception for our Brooklyn soldiers, and to perpetuate their deeds by some appropriate memorial.

"Anything that has been injected into the actions or the thoughts or the progress of the committee's work has been from the outside. I feel sure that a peaceable assemblage called to do honor to those who ought to be honored will not be marred by disturbance, because all ought to feel that this is a solemn occasion."

Mr. Beck, who was introduced as "one whose heart has been right and whose understanding has been unmistakably clear through every stage of the world's struggle," explained in the beginning of his speech that "the rôle that has been imputed to me in the attacks upon my selection has been false." It had previously been explained by Mr. Jonas that Mr. Beck had offered to withdraw if his acceptance of the invitation would embarrass the committee, that this offer had been rejected, and it had been insisted that he deliver his scheduled address.

Mr. Beck reviewed in part the progress of the war and the part taken by American troops and continued:

"The thunder, the long reverberations of Pershing's cannon sounding over the placid waters of the Meuse will awake echoes for generations and generations to come. No one can appreciate what it is going to bring, but to my mind, it is going to bring an early verification of a prediction that was made by the English historian, Greene, some twenty-five or thirty years ago, when he said that the centre of political gravity was about to shift from the Danube, the Rhine and the Seine and the Thames, and was to be shifted to the banks of the Hudson and the Mississippi.

"I do not pretend to quote his words exactly, but nevertheless, there was the fact in the mind of this scholarly and most accurate English historian that there was to be a mighty transfer of power across the Atlantic. And when today in Paris, in that ancient gallery of Versailles, dedicated by Louis XIV. to absolutism, but now the heritage of a free people, we see the solicitude with which every nation in the world awaits the word, as to any given policy, of the representative of the American people, we can begin to see the verification of that which the historian Greene so well taught.

"Now, these boys made it possible. If we had not intervened in this war, and if we had not actively taken part in it by sending our troops across the sea we would never have realized the splendid destiny which, as in the dawn of a new day, we see before us."

In telling of the fighting of the 77th Division in pushing the Germans from the Argonne and of the 27th in breaking the Hindenburg line Mr. Beck said he believed those achievements would be among the most famous military feats in the history of the war. He added that "we need not hesitate on the ground of propriety to erect a monument, no matter how imposing it may be, to our crusaders for the right in this war."

Concluding his speech, Mr. Beck referred again to the attempts to interrupt the meeting, and he was applauded loudly.

"I came to Brooklyn to ascertain whether a city, one of whose greatest sons demonstrated in England that the right of free speech could not be destroyed, whether that right could possibly be impaired in the city of Henry Ward Beecher," he said.

"I have had my answer. You have treated me after your own honor and dignity. I have tried to demonstrate that there is no force here or elsewhere that in a free republic can drown the voice of any man who has been invited to speak."

As Mr. Beck opened and concluded his address the greater part of the audience, from orchestra to galleries, rose in respect to him and three cheers were given for him. The opening demonstration continued more than a minute and he was interrupted frequently by applause.

Some of the soldiers who had left the meeting and others who, with civilians, were excluded after the hall was filled, held meetings outside. Under the leadership of civilians they denounced Mr. Beck and sang patriotic songs. They were carried away in motor buses. The police who, with the provost guards at the meeting, numbered more than 300, made no attempt to prevent these meetings.

One of the methods used to "pack" the meeting was revealed last night by three soldiers in Debarkation Hospital No. 3, in the Greenhut Building. While Sergeant J. W. Eisenhauer of Baltimore and Privates Edward S. Kammerer of Buffalo and Louis Alexander of Philadelphia were standing in front of the hospital along came a sight-seeing bus filled with soldiers. The driver shouted to them to jump in.

"We are all going over to see a man named Beck, who doesn't want the soldiers to get six months' pay when they are discharged," he said.

On the way to the meeting they were harangued as to the "villainy of Beck," "predatory profiteers," "the rights of the workingman," and kindred subjects. As the three men admitted, they did not know anything about Beck and not much about Hearst, but they got their instructions to shout down Beck the moment he was announced, and to yell for Hearst as loud as they could. When they arrived at the Academy they were packed into the gallery. Eisenhauer, Kammerer, and Alexander, however, saw through the game and refused to join with the plans of the rest.

That was not the end of the story. When the meeting was over, buses were again on hand. This time many of the men were hurried over to the Elks Club at 150 Oxford Street, Brooklyn. The three from the Debarkation Hospital were left, however, in a state of bewilderment. They did not know whether they were in Brooklyn or on the Rhine. If it had not been for a Red Cross officer, who came to their rescue, they would have had difficulty in finding their way back to the hospital.

The Red Cross man had heard of the party being held at the Elks' Club, so he and his charges made their way to the club, and there they stumbled into a real Hearst meeting. As they entered a man named Meyer was holding forth in the "predatory profiteer" strain, but upon the sight of the Red Cross man, he shut up like a clam.

After the soldiers had been implored not to "let the interests put it over them," a committee of seven was formed to ask Mr. Hearst to call a meeting in Madison Square Garden as a protest, and to see that the "poor soldiers should be given their rights."

When Eisenhauer heard the trend of the talk he arose to protest:

"I am not for Mr. Beck," he said, "nor am I for Mr. Hearst. I don't know either of them. But, boys, it is no way to let these men put it over you and use you to help Mr. Hearst out."

He got no further than this when he was stopped by the Chairman. "We believe in free speech and all that," said he, "but no one need try to speak against Mr. Hearst here. No matter what the opposition says, don't let them make you believe it. Hearst is all right."

At this point the Red Cross man and his companions felt that it was no place for them and they left.

WANTS GOV. SMITH TO ACT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator Wadsworth expressed himself today as in favor of American soldiers being received at New York by a thoroughly representative committee so that they would know they were being received loyally.

"I have no comment to make upon the Hearst committee," said the Senator, "and I do not want to be quoted as saying anything about it. But I will say this, that I feel that the homecoming soldiers should have a representative welcome."

Senator Wadsworth expressed the feeling that Governor Smith of New York ought to appoint a committee to receive the soldiers. This, he explained, was entirely apart from any criticism of the Hearst committee.

"The soldiers," said Senator Wadsworth, "ought to have a warm welcome, and it should be a welcome out of the hearts of the people. I feel that this can be done, and ought to be done, through a representative committee appointed by the Governor. Outside of that, I have no word to say."

DRY AMENDMENT IS PROCLAIMED

and Dixon Line, who are no more entitled to the name Democrat than the Bolsheviki."

Defeat Move for Recommittal.

There was every indication when the Senate convened this morning that the Senators were prepared for an all-day session and opponents of ratification were openly determined to fight every step of the way. The first move was an attempt to force a recommittal of the resolution, launched by Majority Leader Foley and Senator Boylan of New York. Senator Boylan, in moving for recommittal, declared that the defeat of Governor Whitman had shown that the people were opposed to ratification. His motion, however, was lost by a strict party vote.

Senator Sage was the first speaker against adoption of the resolution. He attacked Congress for perpetrating "a huge joke by passing an amendment which it must have known was a fraud and sham." He warned against the nation accepting prohibition and pointed to the condition of Russia as a reason for its defeat.

"In the States where prohibition in varying degrees has been enforced," he said, "the result has been disastrous to those traits which used to be regarded as desirable, such as honesty, uprightness, and truthfulness. The increase in the drug habit under conditions of prohibition, according to all reputable physicians with whom I have talked, will be a menace to our entire citizenry, and there is no question that the use of drugs is infinitely more destructive physically, mentally, and morally than the excessive use of alcohol."

Debate was proceeding normally until Senator Thompson made his charge that the "rum" interests had elected Governor Smith.

The Governor, elected because of the activity of the rum interests and the inactivity of others, has no voice in this matter," he declared. "Can it be that the liquor interests, who organized and spent their force in electing a Democratic Governor and forcing the Democratic Party as a party to make a party issue of opposition to this measure, are still forcing opposition and contention in their chagrin at having wasted their ammunition, or are they again proving the maxim, 'Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad,' and is this a continuance of the policy of asininity which the organized liquor interests have purposed for the last several years?"

He contended that the Democratic opposition was not directed from Washington, and added:

"In acting the case they can only be acting under orders from the other national headquarters of the Democratic party, the Wigwam on Fourteenth Street, which instructed Democracy of this State in 1916 to knife President Wilson, and this we have on such eminent authority as Patrick E. McCabe, of Albany, formerly one of the Democratic directors of mine, and Samuel Seabury, its candidate for Governor in 1916."

Defends Governor Smith.

Senator Black jumped to his feet to resent Thompson's imputation that the rum interests elected Smith Governor.

"If the rum interests have elected Smith Governor they have wiped out all the evils charged against them because they have given us a man," he said.

Technical jockeying to create confusion and delay assumed a serious aspect for the proponents of prohibition when Senator Black of the Bronx raised the point that the resolution for ratification was not properly before the Legislature. He based his contention on the fact that it had not been called to the attention of the lawmakers by the Governor, although he admitted that it had been regularly placed before the 1918 Legislature through Governor Whitman.

Governor Smith expressed the opinion this afternoon that once an amendment to the Federal Constitution was brought to the attention of the Legislature it remained for their consideration, properly, until it was finally disposed of.

Senator Black's point threw the Senate into confusion, and the leaders, together with Lieut. Gov. Walker, went into lengthy conference, the result of which was that it was held that Senator Black's point was upheld and that the amendment proposal was not officially before the Senate.

Senator Thompson appealed from the decision. Senator Brown asked that Thompson's appeal be laid aside and offered a privileged resolution which put the message of Governor Whitman, delivered to the Legislature last year, officially before the Senate. Senator Black contended that the resolution could not be adopted under the Senate rules, but he was overruled. Senator Thompson then withdrew his appeal.

Not to be outwitted by this adverse decision, Senator Black, declaring that it had already been ruled that the ratification resolution was not before the Senate, moved for adjournment, but this motion was lost by a vote of 29 to 21. Consideration of the ratification resolution was then resumed. Senator Davenport, "dry" leader, launched a vigorous attack on the saloon and brewing interests. He declared that the saloon had been made a greedy and profiteering institution by the brewing and distilling interests, and charged that the forces behind it had been "close to treason during the war."

DISTILLERS OUTLINE FIGHTING PROGRAM

To Attack Ratification in 14 States Which Have Referendum Laws, Officials Announce.

For the first time since they began talking about fighting the ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment, the trade men announced a definite program yesterday. The announcement came from the Executive Committee of the Distillers' Association of America, whose headquarters are in Chicago. The executive Committee came to New York on Monday and began on Tuesday a series of meetings in the Hotel St. Regis which will extend over several days. The statement was prepared for the committee by Levy Mayer of Chicago, its general counsel, and signed by Samuel Woolner, Jr., President of the Distillers' Association, and by George F. Dieterle, its Secretary.

According to the statement, the distillers will begin their fight by invoking the referendum in fourteen States whose Legislatures ratified the Federal amendment without giving the people of those States the chance to say whether or not they wished to vote upon it, as they are entitled to do under the Constitutions of those States. The States in question are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Idaho, Maine, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, and Utah. The statement reads:

"The Constitutions of many of the States contain a referendum provision which expressly provides that no action of the Legislatures is effective until the lapse of ninety days after the adjournment of the Legislatures. If during those ninety days 5 or 6 per cent. of the voters petition for a referendum, the action of the Legislatures must be submitted to a vote of the people. Until the people have voted in these States the action of the Legislatures does not take effect, and is neither final nor binding on the State whose Legislature may have begun the ratification of the Prohibition amendment.

Legislatures Still in Session.

Of the forty-two States whose Legislatures have acted, there are twenty-two that contain in their Constitutions the referendum provision. Of these twenty-two States, the Legislatures of fourteen are still in session, and until the Legislatures have adjourned, the ninety days within which to petition for the referendum have not begun to run. Immediate steps will be taken to have the referendum invoked in all of these fourteen States and probably in others, until the people in these fourteen States

Text of the Prohibition Proclamation Issued by Acting Secretary of State Polk

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Following is the text of the proclamation issued today by Acting Secretary concerning the adoption of the prohibition amendment:

To All to Whom These Presents Shall Come, Greeting:

Know ye that the Congress of the United States, at the second session, Sixty-fifth Congress, begun at Washington on the third day of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, passed a resolution in the words and figures following, to wit:

JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, (two-thirds of each house concurring therein), That the following amendment to the Constitution be, and hereby is, proposed to the States, to become valid as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of the several States as provided by the Constitution:

Section 1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States, as provided in the constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

And, further, that it appears from official documents on file in this department that the amendment to the Constitution of the United States proposed as aforesaid has been ratified by the Legislatures of the States of Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

And, further, that the States whose Legislatures have so ratified the said proposed amendment constitute three-fourths of the whole number of States in the United States.

Now, therefore, be it known that I, Frank L. Polk, Acting Secretary of State of the United States, by virtue and in pursuance of Section 205 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, do hereby certify that the amendment aforesaid has become valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution of the United States.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the Department of State to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this 29th day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

(Signed) FRANK L. POLK,
Acting Secretary of State.

have had an opportunity at a general election or a special election called for that purpose to vote upon the amendment, the amendment lacks ratification. Upon this question the opinion of eminent lawyers is unanimous.

"The people in these fourteen States, under their constitutional referendum rights, are a part of the lawmaking body. Until they have voted upon the proposition there has been and can be no legislative action. If the fourteen States be deducted from the forty-two States whose Legislatures have acted, the total number of ratifying States will be but twenty-eight, or eight less than the required three-fourths.

"After many years of agitation, the referendum has been incorporated into the Constitutions of these different States. This referendum is now a fundamental right of the people. It is intended that the people shall avail of this fundamental right, and that they shall vote upon the question whether inherent State powers and privileges and individual liberty shall be destroyed. Until the referendum has been exercised in the States to which we have referred there can be no binding proclamation by the Secretary of State or any other Federal authority that the amendment has been adopted."

The committee will hold another meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the St. Regis, which will be attended by members of the Executive Committee of the Association Opposed to National Prohibition, of which James Woods of the Hotel Belmont is Chairman. Frank A. K. Boland, general counsel for the New York Hotel Men's Association, will also attend the meeting to consult with Mr. Mayer. It is possible that associate counsel may be chosen at the meeting. The New York association held a meeting yesterday in camera at its headquarters in the Cambridge Building, Thirty-third Street and Fifth Avenue.

Slayden Suggests New Party.

Under date of Jan. 25 and on the stationery of the Committee on the Library of the House of Representatives, of which he is the Chairman, Representative James L. Slayden of the San Antonio, Texas, district, who has sat as a member of ten successive Congresses, wrote to Mr. Woods that he hoped the Association Opposed to National Prohibition would win its attack on the legality of the amendment, but he feared it would not. Congressman Slayden said he was under "the impression that, if that revolutionary amendment is ever to be done away with, it can only be through a long campaign of education, and in order to conduct such a campaign effectively it must be backed with unusual political power and sagacity."

Congressman Slayden says he believes that such an educational campaign can be best directed by the organization of a new political party. "There ought to be," the letter continues, "a political organization in this country to defend personal liberty and to try to swing the Government back to the original covenants between the colonies, as written into the Constitution of the United States. There are millions of persons in this country who resent an invasion of their personal rights, and it has occurred to me that they might be organized into a compact, co-operating body for the defense of these rights and for the defense of the original constitutional rights of the States.

"If this were done, and such a body were directed with half the political acumen of the Prohibitionists, it could defeat or elect members of the State Legislatures and Members of Congress, and make its power felt in a short time so that the class of public men who prefer office to principles would be terrorized and, let us hope, driven from public life. * * * Jefferson party, pledged to defend the rights of the States and of the Constitution and the personal liberty of the citizens would make a powerful appeal, and, even if it did not get strength enough to elect a President and control the country at the first election, it would be powerful enough by throwing its strength in this or that direction to compel respect for its views and ultimately accomplish important things."

James Holland, President of the New York State Federation of Labor, went to Albany yesterday morning, taking with him a letter which he said he intended to have presented to the State Senate. In the letter Mr. Holland not only roundly attacked the Prohibition Amendment, but he served notice on the members of the Senate that the "citizens of New York are American citizens, that they are entitled to all the rights of freemen, and will not, like a lot of dumb animals, stand mute while receiving the insolent, unjust, and outrageous treatment which is now being accorded them by the New York Legislature."

TO BUILD BIGGER SHIPS.

Plez Explains Why Fleet Corporation Is Revising Its Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Charles A. Plez, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, issued a statement tonight showing that the Government intends to build larger ships as an addition to the American merchant marine. It is understood that the larger vessels will be oil-burners, because the United States now controls 80 per cent. of the oil supply of the world.

"During the emergency," said the statement, "the Fleet Corporation built all the vessels it could, and selected types not because they might prove ultimately useful but because they could be readily and quickly constructed by existing yards. The suggestion has been made that the Fleet Corporation has built too many small-tonnage vessels and not enough vessels of large tonnage and greater sea speed.

"As this criticism is justified, the board decided several months ago to slow up its production of ships in order to afford an opportunity for a revision of its program if after investigation such revision appeared justifiable. The board is so conscious of the necessity of a complete review and determination of its future policy that it has decided to suspend work on all vessels the progress of which justifies the assumption that they can either be canceled, or have other vessels substituted for them with the minimum of expense."

Governor's Appointees Confirmed.

ALBANY, Jan. 29.—Four of Governor Smith's appointees to State offices were confirmed by the Senate today without opposition. They were Lewis Nixon of New York, as Superintendent of Public Works; Michael J. Walsh of Yonkers, as State Tax Commissioner; Henry S. Renaud of New York, as State Superintendent of Elections, and Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn, as Superintendent of State Prisons.

Important Correction!

On Wednesday, Jan. 29th, we advertised a sale of Fan-ta-si Silk Skirts at $13.75, which were not Fan-ta-si, but an imitation of this Silk, sold to us by a manufacturer who misrepresented his merchandise.

We offer an apology to Mr. J. A. Migel, maker of Fan-ta-si Silk, for the unwarranted use of his trade mark name. We would also like very much to refund the purchase price to any woman who bought one of these skirts under the impression that it was fashioned of the genuine Fan-ta-si Silk.

SUICIDE'S HUSBAND WAS NOT 'FENTON'

But Woman Friend Tells of Her Acquaintance With a Major Who Died Abroad.

ALL ARMY FENTONS ALIVE

The Other Major Died in Paris Last October—Friendly With Miss Packwood Two Years Ago.

Mrs. Jeanne Cazeaux, a dressmaker, living at 2,185 Broadway, made a statement to a TIMES reporter last night regarding Miss Azeele Packwood, the former driver in the motor organization of the Red Cross, whose body was found on Sunday in a lonely spot on the Palisades, where she had committed suicide probably a month ago. Mrs. Cazeaux said that Miss Packwood two years ago had an apartment at 2,185 Broadway, and the late Major Clarence Fahnestock, son of the banker, and himself a physician, whom she had met before she knew Miss Packwood, had visited Miss Packwood there many times. Major Fahnestock, who went overseas with an infantry regiment, died in France last October of pneumonia.

"When I read that Miss Packwood had committed suicide," Mrs. Cazeaux said, "I remembered that Major Fahnestock died of pneumonia in France in October, and that they were great friends when Miss Packwood lived here. I have not seen either of them since she moved away. That was about two years ago. I don't know anything about her affairs since then. But she told me that she was very fond of him."

Major Fahnestock left a large estate. He was not known to have been married.

The name of the man to whom Miss Packwood was said to have been secretly married was given as "Fenton" by her father, George Horatio Packwood, a wealthy retired real estate operator of Tampa, Fla., who is said to be on his way here. Mr. Packwood, according to word from Tampa, received his information that the marriage had taken place in a letter from Captain Adelaide Baylis of the Red Cross Motor Corps Headquarters. Captain Baylis said yesterday that she was under strict instructions from the New York County Red Cross not to say anything about the case.

Three officers by the name of Fenton have been in the army in France, but they are all alive. They are Lieut. Col. Chauncey A. Fenton of the General Staff, Major Ralph A. Fenton of the Medical Corps, and Lieutenant John S. Fenton, who has been assigned to the Red Cross. Lieut. Col. Fenton, who was recently promoted, returned from France in December. He said he did not know Miss Packwood or anything about the case.

Mrs. Hugh Cameron, who is in charge of the apartment house at 25 East Forty-eighth Street, where Miss Packwood had lived for two years, said that she had known the young woman during that time only by the name of Miss Packwood. Mrs. Cameron said, however, that she had learned of her marriage some time before Miss Packwood left.

"She always used the name of Miss Packwood," said Mrs. Cameron, "and I supposed that she was pretending to be unmarried in order to evade the rule that married women might not go to France. After she told us that her husband had died, and that she had decided to give up the place, she kept the key to the mail box of her apartment, in order to get any mail that might come to her. She had been receiving mail from time to time from France. After her furniture had been packed and sent away early in November to her father's home in Florida she kept the key for a month, and remained in this city for most of that time, awaiting confirmation, she said, of the news of her husband's death.

"During all the time that she was here she received very few visitors. Her husband was never here and never telephoned, as far as I know. Only one man ever came to see her, and that was her lawyer. I think he was here twice, both occasions being shortly before she left. She told me that the man was her lawyer, but she did not mention the nature of the legal business. I don't remember the man's name. His calls occurred after she said she had the news of her husband's death, but I don't know whether the lawyer's visits concerned his affairs or not. I never heard her mention the name of her husband, but she was a very fine young woman, and I have no doubt that her story was true."

The records of the Automobile Bureau showed that the young woman had obtained a license to operate an automobile in May, 1917, giving her age at the time as 26 years. Her application was indorsed by H. C. Heald and A. C. Edwards, employes of a sport store at 2,123 Broadway, who knew the young woman only casually from her visits to the store to make purchases. Mr. Heald said that the young woman had once remarked, apparently in jest, that she was too poor to buy a certain picture, but that she would buy it when she got her alimony.

Miss Packwood drove a two-seated automobile, which she kept at the Biltmore Garage, in East Fifty-seventh Street. It was stated there that she had always come alone to take the car out and to return it, and that in her relations with the garage she was known by the name of Miss Packwood only. Last November she removed the machine from the garage.

Mrs. Bradford Ellsworth of 344 West Eighty-seventh Street, a Lieutenant in the Red Cross motor organization, who identified the body as that of Miss Packwood, said yesterday that she had not been able to learn anything as to the identity of the young woman's supposed husband.

DUVEEN ESTATE $1,000,000.

Art Dealer Left Estate to Immediate Family.

The will of Henry Joseph Duveen, art dealer, which was found in a safe deposit box after a search under a court order, was filed for probate yesterday, but the petition accompanying the will does not disclose the value of the estate, estimated at more than $1,000,000. The charitable bequests are $5,000 each to the Mt. Sinai and the Woman's Hospital in New York, and the Middlesex Hospital in London. Mr. Duveen asked that he be buried beside his brother, Sir Joseph Duveen in Willesden Cemetery, London.

The bequests to employes consist of $2,500 to Thomas Kerr, $2,000 to H. W. Morgan, and $1,500 each to Edward Fowles and a Mr. Hale of the Paris office. Walter Duffin, valet, gets $2,500, and Albert May, butler, receives $500. Each employe of Duveen Brothers employed for three years gets three months' salary.

Mr. Duveen gave $5,000 to Mrs. Geoffrey Duveen, wife of his son, and $2,500 each to the four children of his sister, Betsy. He gave $16,500 to other nephews and nieces and to his wife and son, Geoffrey, the will gives three-fourths of the residuary estate in trust, the principal to go to Dennis, son of Geoffrey Duveen. Mrs. Duveen gets her husband's personal effects and the art objects in his home.

LEWIS MAKES PLANS TO TRY B. R. T. MEN

Manslaughter Cases to be Called in Nassau County Early in March.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County said yesterday that he would move the trial of the officials and employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, indicted for manslaughter, because of the wreck on the Brighton Beach line last November, on the first Monday in March in the Supreme Court of Nassau County. The defendants will make no objection to Nassau County as the place of the trial.

The Passenger Protective Association of Brooklyn issued a call yesterday for a mass meeting to be held in Erasmus Hall tomorrow night. The call condemned the change of venue of the trial of the indicted B. R. T. men and inquired if it was not in Nassau County that "some distracted women, for mere domestic irritation, killed first, were tried second, and acquitted third?" The call said that it was the intention of the association to unite every civic and social body in Brooklyn "behind the one issue of better transit facilities and better protection for the passengers."

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said yesterday that Frederick Page Royce, the newly appointed general manager, would receive a salary of $35,000 a year and that Mr. Royce's services terminated at the pleasure of the receiver. Mr. Garrison said he had no reason to believe that the banking interests which had financed the B. R. T. for years would show disinclination to lend to the receiver $3,000,000, the amount he will need to meet obligations maturing on or before April 1, on $6,000,000 of 4 per cent. B. R. T. refunding bonds now in the company's treasury.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce will give a luncheon to Mr. Garrison on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at which he will make an address on "Some Problems in the B. R. T. Situation."

The Public Service Commission yesterday adopted an order for public hearings on the questions of installing speed control and other safety devices on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines. The commission announced that special attention would be paid to the need of safety devices between the Park Place and the Prospect Park stations, near the scene of the accident. Delay in inquiring into the cause of the accident it was said, was due to a disinclination on the part of the commission to do anything that might interrupt the investigation of District Attorney Lewis.

FEARS REORGANIZED BOARD.

Citizens Union Opposes Bill Changing Public Service Commission.

The Citizens Union, through its Secretary, Walter Tallmadge Arndt, has filed with the Governor a long protest against the passage of the Foley bill providing for the reorganization of the Public Service Commission of this city, by having a single commissioner and four deputies to take care of the regulations of public utilities, and another commission to look after the construction of rapid transit lines. The saving in cost, it is pointed out, would be only $15,000 a year, and that the total cost might be much heavier by the necessity of duplicating the staffs of engineers, expert accountants, and other highly paid expert service.

The protest condemns the proposal of dividing the work carried on by the present commission, and says that the proposed law fails to concentrate responsibility, although concentration of responsibility was one of the arguments in its favor. It is said that derelictions would follow the proposed change and that efforts would probably be made to shift blame from one commissioner to the other with the result that friction would follow between them and effective work seriously hampered. Attention is called to the message sent to the Legislature in 1907 by Governor Hughes, the creator of the commissions, in which the purposes of the new law were explained and the statement was made that this city should have one board for both construction and regulation.

The protest states that when the commission issues directions covering work to be done it deals with both sides of the question, but that under the proposed plan a collision or even a deadlock might occur between the two commissioners. It is also pointed out that construction transportation lines might interfere with subsurface pipe and conduit servi and might interrupt the service that the regulatory commissioner would be responsible for, while the construction commissioner might not care for anything save the carrying on of his part of the work.

It is pointed out that the relief needed in the present case would obviously be the removal of the Commissioners with whom the Mayor and Controller have been engaged in personal controversies. But the "logical way," the protest says, would be for the Governor to fill the vacancies in the present commission, and if desired a third place, which is about to become vacant, so that the Governor could appoint a majority of the commission.

Railway Crash Angers Nicaraguans.

MANAGUA, Jan. 28.—After the railway accident near Masaya, Nicaragua, on Sunday, in which many persons were killed and injured, a mob of 1,000 attacked the railway station at Masaya and destroyed the fence surrounding it. A commission of engineers is endeavoring to fix responsibility for the accident, which was the latest of several fatal ones on the road.

ARMY TO USE 2,000 PLANES.

Others to be Stored or Given to the Post Office Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Army aviation plans, presented today to the House Military Committee, call for the use during the year beginning next July of about one-fifth of the airplanes now owned by the War Department.

Major Lyon of the Aircraft Service said that in the proposed army of 500,000 men the aircraft program called for 2,000 officers and 22,000 men, and that this force expected to operate 1,008 planes, with an equal number in reserve for replacement. More than 10,000 planes are on hand, he said, including 2,396 abroad.

"Those not kept for service," Major Lyon explained, "will be stored unless used commercially or given over to the Post Office Department."

HAIG HONORS NEW YORKERS

Lieut. Col. W. L. Hallahan One of Three Who Received the D. S. C.

Lieut. Col. W. L. Hallahan, commanding officer of the 102d Field Signal Battalion of the 27th Division, received the Distinguished Service Cross from Field Marshal Haig in the final days of the fighting in France, it was learned here today. He was one of three members of the former New York National Guard to win the British decoration, according to word received by friends.

Colonel Hallahan, formerly a New York City business man, went to Spartanburg with the 27th and participated in its entire tour of overseas service.

Argentine Senate Honors France.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—When the French Senate met today President Antonin Dubost read a cablegram from the Argentine Senate congratulating France upon the signature of the armistice and the victory of the Allies. It was heartily applauded. The reply sent to the Argentine Senate was also read.
